A COMPILER'S PORTRAIT PRESENTED TO THE GENEALOGY.

The portrait of Edmund Janes Cleveland, one of the compilers, was contributed by members of the Cleveland and Cleaveland family throughout the United States, as appears by the following letter:

CHICAGO, ILL., February 10, 1886.

EDMUND JANES CLEVELAND, Esq.,

Dear Sir:—Appreciating as we do the value to every member of the Cleveland family of the services you have rendered, and knowing as we do the vast amount of labor and the large expense you have voluntarily incurred in the preparation of the genealogical record of the family, we are desirous of giving expression in permanent form to our sense of obligation to you.

It is out of our power to cancel the debt we owe you, for which we trust you may find your reward in the gratification afforded by the successful achievement of your great work,—but as a token of our appreciation of the value of your labor and its results, we desire that your portrait should appear in a conspicuous place in the Genealogy, to be executed in the best style of art at the expense of your kinsmen.

The suggestion has been so cordially approved by every one to whom it has been made, including representatives of the family in every section of the United States, that it would seem invidious to give the names of the comparatively few who have had the privilege of uniting for a purpose which we are sure will be unanimously approved, and which we therefore ask in the name of the Cleveland Family, for whom I have the honor and pleasure to be the spokesman.

Very truly and respectfully yours,

HORACE WILLIAM SHALER CLEVELAND.

TO HORACE WILLIAM SHALER CLEVELAND and the CLEVELAND and CLEAVELAND FAMILY:

Dear Friends and Kinsfolk:—Your letter is read with feelings of sincere gratitude and high appreciation for this testimonial of esteem. This expression of friendship, and also the interest manifested and aid rendered in the compilation of the Genealogy by my kinspeople, will always be cherished in pleasant memories.

Affectionately and faithfully yours,

EDMUND JANES CLEVELAND.

SALUTATORY AND EXPLANATORY.

We can mutually congratulate one another that THE GENEALOGY OF THE CLEVELAND AND CLEAVELAND FAMILIES is a reality, and that the record of a large and useful family is to be preserved in a substantial manner for the perusal of the generations to come.

The study of genealogy has, in recent years, received a great impetus by the formation of the patriotic-hereditary societies: Society of Mayflower Descendants, of the Colonial Wars, of the Sons and of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of the Foreign Wars, and the like.

The researches of the compilers of this family history have been quite exhaustive. Not only have town, probate, and other municipal records, and church registers been searched, family records transcribed, many persons corresponded with and interviewed, local histories, genealogical and other publications excerpted, but a careful record has been made of every traced or untraced Cleveland found mentioned in published and unpublished army rolls, State archives, pension and other reports, periodicals, advertised-for persons, directories, etc., and yet the Genealogy is not perfect or complete.

The ancestries of husbands and wives, systematically and chronologically arranged under our new method, constitute a novel feature in the field of genealogical research. Its utility is doubtless apparent to all our readers, especially to those desiring admission into the various commemorative organizations; and to verify relationship to the founders of the United States, and to distinguished and useful personages who have made their mark in history. This is the first Genealogy to print in a regular uniform manner such collateral ancestries. A Coat of Arms and Crest of a family name is blazoned once in the Genealogy, usually with the first ancestry given of that name.

With feelings of extreme sorrow we mention the lamented decease of our associate compiler, Horace Gillette<sup>7</sup> Cleveland, at Cleveland, Ohio, February 3, 1888. We deeply regret that he was not spared to see the results of his years of indefatigable labors in this research. Without his aid this work could never have attained its present completeness.

The initial of a place stands for the name of that place which next precedes the initial. Other abbreviations can be readily understood.

The plus mark + in the margin of the page preceding the number of a person indicates that the number is repeated forward, in proper order, in the middle of the page over the biography or family record of the person. Whenever there is an initial without the usual abbreviatory punctuation it signifies that such initial is a complete name in itself, and does not stand for any other name. More than one date or place to one event denotes differing reports.

In the family records those named CLEVELAND and CLEVELAND are printed in CAPITALS, and those of Cleveland ancestry, who bear other names, are printed in Italics.

ORIGIN OF THE CLEVELAND FAMILY

THE ANCIENT FAMILY SEAT CLEVELAND, NORTH RIDING, COUNTY YORK, ENGLAND. THE ANTIQUITY, DERIVATION, ETYMOLOGY, AND ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE SURNAME CLEVELAND. THORKIL<sup>1</sup> DE CLEVELAND, OF CLEVELAND 1066, THE EARLIEST CLEVELAND OF RECORD. DIFFERENT CLEVELAND ARMS. THE NAME A TITLE IN PEERAGE. PLACES AND LOCALITIES NAMED CLEVELAND.

In the year B. C. 55 Julius Cæsar and the Roman army first landed in Britain, then inhabited by the aborigines. These ancient Britons were wild barbarians, did not cultivate husbandry, but lived upon the flesh of their flocks, and clothed themselves with the skins of wild beasts slain in the chase. Like other savages they painted or stained their bodies. They were armed with swords made of copper and tin, daggers, javelins, darts, spears, and shields, and drove war chariots. They were divided into 30 or 40 tribes, constantly at war with one another.

The Brigantes, whom the Romans found in Britain, were originally Celtæ, and Eburacum — York — was a Celtic town of the Brigantes before British Brigantia became a part of the Roman province. The language of the ancient inhabitants of Britain was Celtic or Gaelic, nearly similar to the present Welch, Irish, and Highland Scotch. Whether Brigantes was their original name seems uncertain, and it is not improbable that the name was given them by the Romans because of the mountainous tract they inhabited. The Brigantes had a queen of their own, Cartismandua, of great power and noble birth. In Hadrian's time the Brigantes revolted from the Romans. The province of Brigantia, the extensive country inhabited by the Brigantes, has a ridge of mountains parting the counties. Under them, to the German ocean, lie York co. and the bishopric of Durham, and, to the west, Lancashire, Westmoreland, and Cumberland, all which counties, in the infancy of the Saxon government, were comprehended in the kingdom of Deira.

The Saxons called these counties the kingdom of Northumberland, dividing it into two parts, calling that Deira or Deir Land, paicin, which lies on this side Tine, and Bernicia, from Tine to the Frith of Edenborough, both which parts had, for some time, kings of their own. Claudius Ptolemy, in his Second Book of the Great Construction, calls the city Eboracum, or Eburacum, Brigantium, the capital of the Brigantes, which had its name from king Ebrauc, its founder.

The conquest of Britain was completed by the year A. D. 72, during the reign of Vespasian, by the Roman governor Julius Agricola, who penetrated north of the river Tay. By an enlightened policy, Agricola taught the Britons the arts, introduced laws and government among them, and induced them to lay aside their barbarous customs.

The name Caluvium was given to the district (now Cleveland, Yorkshire, Eng.) either by Agricola or the Romans at some time between this period and the final departure of the Romans from Britain, A. D. 421, in the reign of Honorius. The name Caluvium, by the time of the Norman Conquest, 1066, had become Cliveland (or the Caluvian Lands, thus becoming descriptive), but, evidently contemporaneously with the changes in the surname, it gradually became Cleveland, which name it has always since borne.

The following extract, as illustrative of the etymology of the name, gives the opinion that the primary and leading idea of the name is clay, as descriptive of the soil of Cleveland:

Glossarium Antiquitatum Britannicarum, sive Syllabus Etymologicus Antiquitatum Veteris Britannicæ atque Ibernicæ, Temporibus Romanorum. Auctore Willielmo Baxter, Cornario, Scholæ Merciariorum Præfecto. Londini: MDCCXXXIII. p. 61—

CALUVIUM: Ita reponendum duxi in Anonymo, cum in Libro geminato errore legeretur, sexto etiam casu Calunio & Gallunio de eo quod procul omni dubio in Græco fuerat Exemplari Καλοσιον. Nam & in Vaticano MS. Calunio est atque Gallunio. Hoc vel nomen dedisse videtur Dynastiæ cuiusdam hodie dictæ Cleveland, five Terræ Caluvianæ, quæ in illâ parte Deirorum est, quæ Borealis Brigantum Triarchia dicitur. Videtur etiam urbs Caluvium hodie dici Gisborough five potius Ghestborough, quasi dicas Spiritualis Burgus. Satis vetustum hoc oppidum & antiquo monasterio celebre; undè & Saxonice nomen tractum videtur. Britannicum autem nomen fortitur, ut supra Caleva, de Lutofâ undi, ac si solutè scribatur Calai ui. Quò spectat & popularis Nenia, ab erudito Camdeni Interprete huc adducta:

————— Cleveland in the Clay
Brings in two soles, and carries one away.

A literal translation of the foregoing:

Glossary of the Britanic Antiquities, or an Etymological Catalogue of the Antiquities of Ancient Britain and Ireland in the Times of the Romans. Author, William Baxter, Master of the Mercers' School. London 1733 p. 61—

CALUVIUM: Therefore I have been led to consider that it should be placed in anonymosness, since in the book, by means of a repeated error, it could be read even in a sixth case Calunio and Gallunio, for this reason that without any doubt in the Greek copy it had been Kalouion, for also in the Vatican manuscript it is Calucio and Gallucio. Or else this name should seem to have been given to a certain dynasty [lordship] to day called CLEVELAND or the Calucian Lands which is in that part of the Deirans [Deira] which is called the Northern Triarchy of the Brigantines [Brigantes]. There also appears a city [or town] Calucium, which is now called Gisborough or rather Ghestborough, as if you should say Spiritual [ghostly or ecclesiastical] Burgh, The town is of a good age celebrated by reason of an ancient monastery, whence also its Saxon name seems to have been derived. But as above it comes by the BRITANNIC name Calera from Muddy water: as if in a loose way it should be written Calai iii. Which also is referred to in the popular ballad by the learned Camden which is here noted in explanation: etc.

[The lines that here follow, differing somewhat from Baxter, are now quoted from Camden's Britannia, 1806, III: 325]:

Cleveland in the clay,
Bring in two foles and carry one away.

[To which we venture an explanation thus:

“Cleveland [is located] in the clay,
Bring [addressed to the traveler] in two soles [of your feet] and carry [only] one away.”]

Ord. 115, remarks: Into the correctness of Baxter's Etymology I need not here inquire; but that the spot described in the previous pages was the bona fide British metropolis of Cleveland, and an important British settlement [note concerning tumuli], is, I hope, set at rest by the testimony of antiquity and the singular vestiges which remain to this day.

To show that, as in everything else, there is a difference of opinion as to the derivation of our patronymic, we quote:

Our English Surnames, their Sources and Significations. By Charles Wareing Bardsley, M.A. London, Eng., 97.—Our Cloughs represent the narrow fissures betwixt the hills. From the same root we owe our ‘Clives’ (the ‘de la Clive’ of the Hundred Rolls) ‘Cliffes,’ ‘Cleves,’ and ‘Clowes,’ not to mention our endless ‘Clifords,’ ‘Clevlands,’ etc.

Britannia: or, a Chorographical Description of England, Scotland, and Ireland, etc. By William Camden. Translated from the edition published by the author in MDCVII. By Richard Gough. 1806. III: 251.—From Whitby the shore retires to the west near Cleveland, so named, as it should seem, from the hills which we call cliffs, ridges of mountains. Camden's Britannia, by Edmund Gibson, 1695, p. 751—Cleveland, so called, as it seems, from precipices, which in our language we call Cliffs, for it is situated by the side of several steep hills from the foot of which the country falls into plain fertile ground . . . The neighbouring tract call'd Cliveland. One could hardly imagine how this name could be taken from Cliffs when travellers have observ'd it to be a plain. . . . The soil is exceeding clayie, which has occasioned this proverb, Cliveland in the clay, etc.

The Yorkshire Coast and the Cleveland Hills and Dales, by John Leyland, London, 1892, p. 5.—The second range of the north-eastern hills—the Cleveland Hills themselves—which by their great precipices and rocky cliffs, gave its name to the district—the Klifflond of the Norsemen. [Old Norse klifa to climb].

Journal of the British Archaeological Ass'n, 1864, p. 13—Of the coming of Harald Hardrada [Harold Hardrada, king of Norway, ravages Cleveland, Sept., 1066,] we read in his 'Saga' that he first made the coast of Cleveland—the cliff land.—p. 198—Harald Hardrada, having made the coast of 'Klifflond.'

Etymological English Dictionary by N [athan or Nathaniel] Bailey—CLEVELAND [q. d. Cliff-Lane, by reason of its being steep and almost impassable with Cliffs and Rocks] a place in Yorkshire. Ord's Cleveland 183—Peter de Hemingburgh A.D. 1323 restored 1 messuage and gave 2 acres in Clyf-lane.

An Etymological Dictionary of Family and Christian names. With an essay on their derivation and import. By William Arthur M.A. N. Y. 1857, p. 97—CLEVELAND. Local. Derived from a place by that name in Yorkshire, Eng.; a corruption of Cliff-lane, and so called from its being steep and almost impassable with cliffs and rocks. Suffolk Surnames. By Nathan Ingersoll Bowditch. London. Boston, U. S., 1861, p. 1.—Surnames have been assumed in some instances before the Norman conquest. p. 221.—The face of nature has been ransacked for names, [viz.] Cleaveland and Cleveland etc. The names we bear. By H. A. Long. Glasgow, p. 26—Names derived from trades and titles; Cleveland: Cliff land.

A new English Dictionary on Historical Principles, Edited by James A [ugustus] H [enry] Murray, Oxford, [Eng.]: New York: 1884-1899—Cleve, cleve (kliv). Now local. Forms: 3 cleof, clef, cleoue, 3-7 cleue, 5 clefe, 6-7 clief, cliue, 4-cleve, 6-cleeve (9 improp. cleave). [M. [iddle] E. [nglish] cleof, cleove, a variant of clif, CLIFF, founded on the O [ld] E. [nglish] pl. forms cleofu, cleofum (co=u—fracture of i). (Sometimes erroneously spelt cleave and associated with cleave to split, with which it has no connexion.) In many local names, e. g. Clevedon, Cleveland, Cleve Hill, Old Cleve. Cf. CLEO, CLIFF.]

[Evidently these etymological definitions do not, at least, apply to the surname Cleveland, which is simply an ideo sonans of the Roman Caluvium.—COMP.]

The district of Cleveland in the North Riding of Yorkshire, Eng., is the original and ancient seat of the Cleveland and Cleaveland family, and from this place the family name is derived. Although not set down in the map as a geographical division, Cleveland is so beautiful and popular a part of England as to have been the subject of three histories (each elegantly illustrated with copper, steel, and wood engravings and maps), one work on the dialect peculiar to the district, and one geological treatise, viz. :

*The History of Cleveland in the North Riding of the County of York: comprehending an historical and descriptive view of the ancient and present state of each parish within the wapentake of Langbargh: the soil, produce, and natural curiosities; with the origin and genealogy of the principal Families within the District. Bewick's Geological Treatise on the District of Cleveland, 1861. Royal 8°. Treatise on the Ironstone of the Cleveland District. By Joseph Bewick. Newcastle on Tyne, 1860. Royal 8°.

Both Graves and Ord quote Baxter's Etymology.

Boundaries: Cleveland is that part of the north riding (from the Saxon of several hundreds) of York included in the wapentake (a touching of armour, wepun armour, tae touching) of Langbargh (Long-hill) East, bounded north by the Tees and German Ocean; east by Mulgrave Castle and Thordisa; south by Grosmont Bridge, Wheledale Moor, Skinner Howe, Rolles-Cross, and Westerdale; then ascending the summits of Ingleby, Broughton, Carlton Banks, and Arnecliffe, it includes Appleton-upon-Wisk on the west. Cleveland is 40 miles long, and 18 broad, containing the parishes of Acklam, Appleton, Arnecliffe (Ingleby-Arnecliffe), Ayton, Carleton, Cranthorne, Danby, Easington, Egton, Faceby, Gisborough, Hilderwell or Hinderwell, Hilton, Kirkby, Kirkleatham, Kirklevington, Lofthouse, Lythe, Marske, Marton, Newton, Ormesby, Rudby (Hutton Rudby), Seamer, Skelton, Stainton, Stokesley, Upleatham, Whorlton, Wilton, and Yarm.

Ord states that in monuments of antiquity, in abbeys, priories, hermitages, castles, fortifications, and encampments; in remains of former grandeur, and relics of great and illustrious families, the vale of Cleveland abounds more than any similar locality in England; in the magnificence, variety, and extent of its natural scenery, Cleveland may compare with any part of the kingdom. Its moors, fruitful valleys, picturesque dales, groves of beech and pine, forests of oak, sublimity of the ocean girding its shores, and towering sea cliffs.

Graves and Ord give extended pedigrees (several tracing into Normandy) of the following families: Allan of Blackwell Grange; Baliol of Stokesley; Bate of Eseby; Beckwith of Handale Abbey; Bellasise, Viscount Fauconberg, Baron of Yarm; Bigod, Bigot; Bowyer of Danby; Bruce, de Bruce, Brus of Skelton Castle (from A.D. 721); Bulmer of Wilton; Carey, Lord Hunsdon, viscount Falkland; Chaloner of Gisborough; Colthurst, Coulthurst of Upleatham; Colville of Ernclyve; Consett (Dryden) of Normanby; Constable of Dromondby; Conyers of Boulby; Conyers and Strangways of Ormesby; Coulson of Ayton; Cranthorne of Cranthorne, Danby, Lords of: Danvers, Latimer, Neville, Thwenge; Dundas of Upleatham; Eures; Everingham of Skinninggrave; Forster of Stokesley; Foulis of Ingleby; Gower of Stainsby; Hale of Tocketts; Hall; Holand; Hustler of Acklam; Ingram of Ruddy and Temple Newsom; King; Layton of Sexhowe; Lee of Pinchinthorp; Linley of Skutterskelfe; Lowther of Wilton; Marwood of Little Busby; Mauleverer of Arncliffe; Malo-lacu, Mauley of Mulgrave; Meinell of Whorlton; Meinell, Meynell of Yarum and North-Kilvington; Meryton of Castle-Levington; Morley of Normanby; Peirson of Stokesley; Pennymann of Ormesby; Percy of Kildale; Radclyffe, Ratcliffe of Mulgrave; Salvine of Newbiggin; Sheffield, Earl of Mulgrave; Smallwood of Upleatham; Stapleton of Eston, Myton etc.; Stevenson; Strangways of Whorlton; Tocketts of Tocketts, Toccotes; Trotter of Skelton Castle; Turner of Kirkleatham; Twenge and Lunley, Lords of Kilton; Wharton-Myddleton of Grinkle; Wharton of Skelton; Yoward of Westerdale.

Ord quotes the old-fashioned little story of Margery Moorpot as a specimen of the broad Yorkshire dialect of Cleveland:

Gulwell. What countrywoman are you?

Margery. Ah's Yorkshur, by mah truly! Ah wor boorn and bred at Lahtle Yatton, aside o' Roseberry Toppin.

Gulwell. Roseberry Toppin! Where 's that, my pretty maid?

Margery. Sartainly, man, ye knaw Roseberry! Ah thought onny feeal hed knawn Roseberry. It 's 't biggest hill i' all Yorkshur. It 's aboon a mahle an' a hawf heegh, an' as cawd as ice at t' top on 't, i' t' yattest day i' summer; that it is.

Gulwell. You 've been in some service, I suppose?

Margery. Hey, Ah 'll uphod ye hev E, ivver sin E wor neen yeear awd. Neca makkins! Ah 'd a God's-penny at Stowsley market, hawf a yeear afoore 'at E wor neen; an' as good a sarvant Ah 've been, thof Ah say it mysel, as ivver com within a pair o' deers. Rosebury, in the Parish of Newton, was a landmark for sailors, a sure prognostic of weather, hence the old distich :

"When Roseberryye Toppinge wears a cappe, Let CLEAVELANDE then beware of a clappe."

Graves gives a catalogue of Cleveland animals and birds. Ord illustrates the well known Cleveland bay horses, and gives a fine Geological Map of the Cleveland coast. Cleveland has a number of fossils and minerals — one of them named Clevelandicus, of marlstone formation — which have been illustrated in Dr. Young and Bird, Phillips, Sowerby, De Blainville, Miller, Voltz, Agassiz, Conybeare, and De la Beche. There is alum, building-stone, and lime. The soil of Cleveland is a strong, fertile clay, and red sandy soil.

The Cleveland, Cleaveland family was founded, evidently, by THORKIL, in all probability a Saxon land-owner, who, it appears, at or soon after the time of the Norman Conquest, assumed the surname DE CLIVELAND, calling himself THORKIL DE (of) CLIVELAND.

THORKIL DE CLIVELAND, who is number +17701 in this Genealogy, the earliest Cleveland of record, had his seat, evidently, in or prior to 1066 at Gisborough, Cleveland, county York, Eng., the Urbs Caluvium of the Romans, and here late in life (for it appears that his son owned lands in his name Uctred) he assumed his surname, which many have since borne. His first name, THORKIL, indicates that he was of Anglo-Saxon ancestry, and not of Norman descent, though both these and the Danes were of the same origin. His son Uctred de Cliveland, who was evidently the Uctred, the Saxon land-owner of 3 manors in the town of Ghigesburg and other possessions mentioned in Domesday [Doomsday] Book or The Great Survey of England of William the Conqueror A.D., MLXXXVI. Photo-Zincographed by Her Majesty's Command at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel Sir H. James, R.E. F.R.S. &c. Director. MDCCCLXIII. Vol. I, large 4°, pp. 382; Vol. II, small 4°, pp. 450, — the impiously styled "Book of the Day of Judgement," — made, by command of the Conqueror, in 1079 and years following, completed 1086-7, (first published 1783-1816). Uctred gave land to the Priory — abbey, cathedral, and monastery — of Gisborough (mentioned by Baxter), variously spelt Ghestborough, Ghigesburgh, Gisborne, Gisborough, Gisbourne, Gisburghe, Gisburne, Giseburne, Guestborough, Guisbrough, Gysbrough, Gysburgh, Gysburna, Gysburne, Gyseburne, now (1899) called Guisborough, in the deanery and archdeaconry of Cleveland. The Priory was built A. D. 1119, by Robert de Brus of Skelton Castle in Cleveland, Lord of Cleaveland, who d. 5 ides May 1141, buried in the Priory, his tomb still remains below a window in the rear wall (nearly all that is now left of the Priory, which is now a part of the Chaloner estate), a son of Robert de Brusce or Brus, a noble Norman knight who landed in Eng. with the Conqueror, owner of 43 manors, ancestor of the three kings Bruce — Edward de Bruce, King of Ireland, May 2, 1316 [whose father, Robert de Brus, was Earl of Cleveland, etc.], his brother Robert de Bruce, King of Scotland, Mar. 27, 1306, father of David Bruce, King of Scotland, and ancestor also of Margery Bruce who m. Walter, third Lord High Steward of Scotland, and from whom descended the Stewards, Kings of Scotland and England, also Her Present Majesty Victoria, Queen.

Robert de Brus recites the name Uctred de Cliveland in the "CHARTER OF FOUNDATION OF THE PRIORY OF GISEBURNE, IN THE COUNTY OF YORK. . . . I have also given to the aforesaid church my mill in Gysburne, with soc and molt, as I had them, so that no one may make a mill in the parish without the license and consent of the canons. Let them also possess free-service with the land of the son of Gaufrid, and of the land of UCTRED DE CLIVELAND, which was due to me." (For full text of this charter see Ord., 176-7.)

The English ancestry of the Cleveland emigrants to America is not yet definitely settled. The Parish Records of St. Nicholas Church, Ipswich, Eng. (printed 1897), show baptisms, burials, and marriages, 1542 to 1612, of ancient Ipswich, Eng., Clevelands, all of whom were unmistakably kin to Moses' Cleveland of Woburn, Mass., 1635-40, and wore the same Christian names as Moses', and his immediate descendants, viz.: Moyses, Samuel, Isaac, John, Ambrose, and William Cleveland, the last named being the earliest Ipswich Cleveland of record, born about 1520: see numbers +19632 — +19647, p. 2504-5 of this Genealogy.

Antiquities in Leicestershire: Being the Seventh Volume of the Bibliotheca Topographica Britannica. London: Printed by and for J. Nichols. MDCCLXX. p. 134-141 — THOMAS CLEVELAND, M.A. Vicar of HINCKLEY. The family of this most worthy Divine came from Yorkshire, and most probably from York, where some of them were respectable citizens for several generations; but their more early progenitors had considerable landed property in the North-Riding of Yorkshire, particularly in that district or tract of country lying near Gisburne and Whitby, called now Cleveland, but anciently Cliveland, whence they derived their name. It appears that the Vicar of Hinckley always wrote his name Cleiveland: which orthography was generally followed by his descendants, but not universally, for some of them wrote it Cleveland and Cleaveiland. And in more early times, like that of all other ancient families, their name was written with every possible variety of spelling, viz.: Cliveland, Cliveland, Cliveland, Cleiveland, Cleaveiland, Cleveland, Cliveland, and even Clefeland [the name of the district Cleveland appears, at different times, with some of the same variations — Comp.]. What has occurred concerning their first ancestors (who appear by their names not to be of Norman, but Anglo-Saxon descent) will be seen in the following attempt towards

There has been much controversy as to the correct or proper orthography of the surname. The signature of MOSES<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND of Woburn, Mass., as subscribing witness, Dec. 8, 1662, to a certificate, would certainly indicate that the ancestor of the Clevelands of New England origin spelled his own name CLEVELAND. On old Woburn records the name is rendered Cleauland, 1648 to 1680, 1692; Cleiveland, 1648; Cleaveland, 1697; Cleavland, 1686 to 1697, 1717; Cleaveland, 1701 to 1704; Cleiveland 1702. In England, from a very early period, the name has always been spelled CLEVELAND, except in a few instances where it has been rendered CLEAVELAND and CLIVELAND. Certain branches and individuals of the posterity of Moses' Cleiveland spell the name CLEAVELAND; descendants of Josiah' Cleiveland are of this number. Rev Aaron<sup>1</sup> Cleveland, b. 12, while in England in 1757, made inquiry relative to his ancestors at the Herald's Office, College of Arms, London, and learned that the proper orthography of the name was Cleveland. He was satisfied that the letter a in the first syllable of the name was an interpolation which had crept in since Moses' Cleveland left England. Accordingly, Rev. Aaron' dropped the superfluous a, and from that time spelled the name CLEVELAND, as all his posterity since have done. The descendants of ALEXANDER' CLEVELAND, †16001, of Prince William Co., Va., have always spelled the name CLEVELAND. These Southron Clevelands in feature so closely resemble the Clevelands of New England extraction that there remains no doubt that Moses' Cleveland and Alexander' Cleveland were closely related in England; and the Clevelands of England bear so striking a likeness to the American Clevelands that it is evident all descended from Thorkil de Cliveland.

Concerning the authoritative use of arms:

Burke's Armory, II—Besides these officers [the Garter, Clarenceux, and Norroy Kings of Arms], there are inferior ones, denominated Heralds and Pursuivants; and the whole, incorporated by Charter of Richard III. constitute the College of Arms. Lord Chief Justice [Edward] Coke asserts that every gentleman must be "armigerous," and that the best test of gentle blood is the bearing of Arms, which are the most certain proofs and evidences of nobility and gentry—hence the anxiety for such a distinction, and hence the prominence and pride of its display. From the old and noble families of the British, Saxon, and Norman lines, who assumed Arms as military ensigns, and then adopted them as honourable distinctions, sprang many of the ancient gentry of Eng. Notwithstanding this voluntary assumption of Arms in early times and the occasional practice of the greater nobility in granting them to their tenants and dependants, it must not be inferred that all our ancient gentry or lesser nobility who acquired coat armor so obtained the distinction; on the contrary, armorial ensigns, as lessee gentilitia, were frequently assigned by the Crown to such as were gentlemen of blood, and had signalized themselves in tournament or battle. Arms were no sooner, however, esteemed as incontrovertible evidence of honour and blood, than the possession was eagerly sought for by all who by their own industry, the patronage of the feudal lord, or through royal favour, had obtained landed property, but who had not previously served in a military capacity; hence the applications to the crown for grants of Arms became so constant, that the King empowered Clarenceux and Norroy to grant ensigns armorial within their respective provinces, under authority of the Earl Marshal; yet an indisputable right still vests in the Crown to confer Arms, Crests, Supporters * * no one being, by the law of gentility in England, allowed the bearing thereof, but those that either have them by descent or grant, therefore Henry V by proclamation did inhibit [ &c. ] In total disregard of this royal ordinance, abuses were found to have crept into matters appertaining to descent and arms * wherefore Commissions were issued to the two Provincial Kings of Arms, authorizing each * to visit his province * to convene those who assumed to bear Arms, and were styled esquires and gentlemen; to cause them to show by what right they claimed the use of Arms. The circuits of the Kings of Arms, called VISITATIONS, commenced about the beginning of the 16th century. The Visitations occurred once about every 3 years, when the Kings of Arms were attended by a draughtsman [ &c. ] Those who are enabled to deduce descent from an ancestor whose armorial ensigns have been acknowledged in any of the Visitations, are entitled to carry those Arms by right of inheritance. When, however, such a descent cannot be established, the party must then prove his right as descending from some original grantee, or memorialize the Earl Marshall that he may become a grantee himself.

The name Cleveland is a title in Peerage; the district of Cleveland has given the title of Duke of Cleveland, Marquis of Cleveland, Earl of Cleveland, etc.

I.

MOSES<sup>1</sup> or MOYSES<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND or CLEAVELAND, the common ancestor of all the Clevelands or Cleavelands of New England origin, came, when a youth, from Ipswich, Suffolk county, England. According to family tradition he sailed from London, Eng., and arrived in America in the year 1635. He first landed somewhere in Massachusetts, probably either at Plymouth, Plymouth co., or at Boston, Suffolk co., Mass.

MOSES<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND was born probably at Ipswich, Eng., about 1624 (according to court files of Woburn he was 39 years old in 1663), died at Woburn January 9, 1701-2, Married in Woburn y<sup>e</sup> 26 : 7 m. [September] 1648 Ann Winn, born, according to family tradition, in Wales, or, according to another account, in England, about 1626, died probably at Woburn prior to May 6, 1682 (no record of dates and places of either her birth or death), a daughter of Edward and Joanna (——) Winn.

Children, all born at Woburn:

MOSES<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND arrived in this country, according to all accounts and traditions, about the year 1635, only fifteen years later than the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock, 1620. The following letter of inquiry, written from Ipswich, Essex co., Mass., by his great grandson, Rev. JOHN<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND +233 (Josiah<sup>3</sup>, Josiah<sup>2</sup>, Moses<sup>1</sup>), to John Cleaveland +17805, explains the origin, occupation, etc., of Moses<sup>1</sup> Cleveland. The copy of this letter, as originally made and retained by the reverend gentleman himself, and in his hand-writing, has since become the property of one of the compilers. It is here given, verbatim et literatim:

“Sir: Being informed (by the Bearer, one Samuel Bates) of your Name and the Place of your abode, I supposed it highly probable that your are of the same Family that I sprang from. My Great Grand-father’s name was MOSES CLEVELAND, and came from Ipswich, in Suffolk. He was young when he came to New England, and was an apprentice to a joyner, and came with His Master. He settled in Woburn, near Boston, married, and had seven Sons, besides Daughters, and his sons all left Children, and all in New-England, of the Name are his Posterity, and all spell the Name as I do, tho’ we are not certain that we spell it exactly as the same Family does in England. Because, as the said Moses was young when he left England and could not read and write if I am not misinformed. I have seen the Name spelt as I spell it in Books Printed in England but most commonly I find it spelt thus CLEVELAND or CLEVLAND, but as you are undoubtedly of y<sup>e</sup> same Family, if These Lines should come to your Hands I should esteem it a Favour that you would write me, and give me some account of your Family. I am a Minister of y<sup>e</sup> Gospel and Pastor of a Chh. in Ipswich in the county of Essex and Province of The Massachusetts Bay in New England. Excuse the Boldness and Freedom of your Humble servant and Unknown Friend

JOHN CLEVELAND

Ipswich New-England Dec 25 1759

The superscription is as follows: “To Mr. John Cleaveland, Malster in Ipswich, in County of Suffolk, Living in Silent St., Near St. Clemence Church England” This letter was not answered; how appropriately the malster dwelt in Silent street.

Historical Collections of the Essex Institute, Salem, Essex co., Mass. IV: 267—The Herrick Family, containing following in letter to George R. Curwen, dated Baltimore, Oct. 29, 1852, from Rev. Arthur Cleveland<sup>d</sup> Coxe (afterwards Bishop of Western N. Y.) +3258. "Facts always prove their own utility. I send annexed a fact which I find in my record book * * * Henry Herrick a younger son of Sir William Herrick of Beau Manor Park, Loughboro' parish, co. Leicester Eng. went from Virginia to Salem and was there June 28 1653 as appears from a letter now at Beaumanor, addressed to his brother. With this Herrick and the Skipworths of Cotes Eng. went to America a CLEVELAND of Loughboro. The above communicated to me while in England 1851 by the Rev. HENRY<sup>d</sup> CLEVELAND, Vicar of Romalldkirk" [+2623.]

Some have thought that this CLEVELAND was MOYSES<sup>l</sup>, and that he accompanied Herrick to New England. It may be that this was ALEXANDER<sup>l</sup> CLEVELAND +16001 of Virginia, or his ancestor. See CHAPTER II. The city records of Ipswich, Eng., show nothing concerning ancestry of Moses<sup>l</sup> Cleveland, but he was doubtless from that city or vicinity, where have dwelt Cleveland families from before 1635 to this day. (See CHAPTER III: MOSES CLEVELAND +17831, b. Ipswich, Eng., 1718.)

When Rev. Aaron<sup>l</sup> Cleveland +120 was in Eng., 1754-5, he found relations, among them Sir John Cleveland +17796 of the Navy Dep. [evidently identical with John<sup>2</sup> Cleveland +17795, Secretary to the Admiralty], a wealthy and noble gentleman, who welcomed to his residence his kinsman from America, and offered to provide for and educate the two eldest sons of Rev. Aaron<sup>l</sup> if they were sent to Eng. It would seem that this unusual hospitality and benefaction indicated the discovery of exact relationship. It is not impossible that Sir John was a great-gr. s. of a brother of Moses<sup>l</sup>, and that they were 3d cousins to each other.

The name of Moses<sup>l</sup> Cleveland is not found on the custom house lists of passengers of London or other ports, nor on the Boston court lists. These lists, however, do not always agree, for many came secretly, not being willing to take the required oaths of allegiance to the government and supremacy of the church, or to pay the subsidy.

A certificate from a magistrate, that all legal forms had been complied with, was necessary to procure a permit to emigrate, and many would not bend their consciences to the powers either of state or church by taking the required oaths, so at least one-fourth of all smuggled themselves aboard.

The Original Lists of Persons of Quality, Emigrants, &c., to America, 1600-1700, by John Camden Hotten, mention several joiners who came to Massachusetts 1635, bringing servants whose names are not given. There is a tradition that Moses<sup>l</sup> Cleveland was a ship's carpenter's apprentice, and worked his passage over. It is generally stated that he came from Ipswich an indentured apprentice to a joiner, housewright, or master builder, name of his master not ascertained, conjectured to be Edward Winn (whose daughter he afterward married), for "he went to Woburn with his master," and there settled in 1640-1.

Perhaps Moses' landed at Plymouth, but more probably at Boston, where, in 1635, there were far better docks. He likely remained from 1635 to 1640 in Boston or vicinity.

In 1642, the selectmen of Woburn appointed "land viewers" to view and set off a share of the public lands promised by the General Court at Boston to MOSES CLEVELAND, and in 1643 he became a freeman. A freeman was required to be of godly walk and conversation, to be at least 20 years of age, to take an oath of allegiance to the government of Massachusetts Bay Colony, to be worth £200, to hold office if elected or pay a fine of 40 shillings, to vote at all elections or pay the same fine. These restrictions and conditions were so onerous that many who were eligible preferred never to become freemen, being more free as they were. Gov. John Winthrop's History of New England contains incomplete lists of freemen.

The History of Woburn, by Rev. Samuel Sewall, M.A., 1808, p. 7. Woburn [deriving its name from Woburn, Hundred of Manshead, Bedfordshire, Eng.] was originally a grant of land made 1740 by the General Court of Massachusetts to Charlestown [now in Suffolk co. and a part of Boston]; and for ab. 2 years afterwards was called "Charlestown Village." The settlement of Charlestown, which is the most ancient town, not only in the county of Middlesex, but likewise (Salem and Dorchester excepted) in the Colony of Massachusetts as distinct from that of Plymouth, had commenced in 1620.

The earliest settlement was made in the part now called North Woburn, Middlesex co., Mass. Persons who, of late years, have had the pleasure of visiting Woburn (only a short distance from Boston), could not but admire the great beauty of this model New England town.

Woburn Militia Muster Roll, 1663: — "MOSES CLEVELAND, aged 39 years," therefore he was born 1624.

Woburn town records show grants of land, taxed estate, and town offices held: 1: 11 -- 10 of the 8<sup>m</sup> (Oct.) 1647. *Letter of Rev. Moses' resided on the part then called New Bridge, which, since the separation of Wilmington from Woburn, lies in the northeasterly part of Woburn, now called North Woburn.

Concerning the residence of Moses' Cleveland, the following from the able article by William Richard Cutter, Esq., Librarian of the Woburn Public [Winn] Library, appeared in the Woburn Journal, July 2, 1886: -

THE CLEVELAND ESTATE IN WOBURN.

It has been thought desirable in view of the possible visit of the chief magistrate of the United States to Woburn, to show the place where the Cleveland family dwelt during the period of their residence in the town. Woburn is full of historic material and in six years from now will celebrate its 250th anniversary. The original Cleveland located himself in Woburn a few years after its first settlement and became the progenitor of a numerous race, and the fact should not be lost sight of in connection with the intended honor of the President's visit, that old Woburn is the Cleveland family's ancestral home in New England, and that in this town nearly all the Cleveland family in the United States originated; also that the family has been highly respectable and eminently useful in the past two hundred years. It is not our object merely to show the honored head of the nation an ancestor's gravestone which happens to be preserved in our oldest burying-ground, but to show him the town, the hamlet, and, if possible, the site of the homestead where his first ancestor lived. We can show him lands which his lineal ancestors certainly owned, and whose title has been carefully traced to the present time. We can show him their autographs on deeds, and we hope to show him, conclusively, the site of the first Moses Cleveland's original homestead. But these things are not all so easy as they may seem. In the long period that has passed, some deeds, possibly never recorded, are supposed to be lost, and the chain does not seem to be complete. There are besides a number of widely separated lots scattered about the area of the section where their homesteads were located, whose disposal also appears in the list of the recorded titles, and adds to the complication of the subject.

Efforts to ascertain the locality of the Cleveland family homestead were begun some time ago. An entry in the early Woburn records shows that the family owned two homesteads in 1680, and this fact may aid us in a more positive identification of the first or original homestead. From the above entry it clearly appears that the locality of both homesteads was in New Bridge, or North Woburn. We arrive at this conclusion from the fact that the selectmen, at a meeting in 1680, prepared and spread upon the records a Tithingmen's List of the eighty-two families then located in the town. To each tithingman in the several districts nine were assigned for his oversight the tenth family being his own. Thus the tithing, or tenth, was preserved in its full sense. These tithingmen were a species of police, and were appointed yearly. At the meeting above mentioned the following persons were appointed for Samuel Snow "to oversee" as tithingman, namely, Moses Cleveland, Aron Cleveland, Joseph Knight, Junior, Thomas Henshaw, Francis Wyman, John Farrer, John Wilson, Senior, Zachariah Snow, and Joseph Carter.

The above company composed the group of ten adjacent families comprising for that year the New Bridge End district, embracing very closely the present area covered by the North Woburn Ward, as arranged by the assessors of the present town. We know that Samuel Snow lived on Pearl street, very near the present center of North Woburn village, and that Moses Cleveland was probably his next neighbor, and Aaron Cleveland his next, and so on, and that the first five of the list were probably located at North Woburn Centre. Francis Wyman and Zachariah Snow and Joseph Carter lived on Wyman Lane, now Wyman Street, and John Farrar and John Wilson were located somewhere in that neighborhood. There is no mention of Clevelands in any other group, and it is singular that the first four were closely related. Moses Cleveland, the original settler, was the father of the Aaron Cleveland named as his neighbor, and Thomas Henshaw married a daughter of the first Moses, and a kinsman of the Joseph Knight, Junior, intermarried with the Cleveland family. John Wilson, Sr., was also the father-in-law of Aaron Cleveland. Joseph Carter and John Wilson both owned lands bounded north on Hungary Plain in 1676. This old name is Hungary, and not Hungry Plain, as it is sometimes called. It could almost be stated as a rule that the families of the early settlers generally intermarried with those who were their next neighbors. The Aaron Cleveland named, and a son of the original Moses Cleveland, is the Aaron Cleveland of the 1716 gravestone. The fact that the father and son are named separately as the heads of families, which they truly were at the time, shows that in 1680 they probably had separate homesteads.

We are indebted to John Warren Johnson, Esq., for the following researches, of which an abridged statement is here given:

In 1699, Isaac Cleveland, late of Woburn, now an inhabitant in a place called Pigs-cornet in Connecticut Colony, conveyed to James Fowle a certain piece of Ruff (rough) land in Woburn, at a place called the Young Men's Lots, and was granted to "my brother," Moses Cleveland, who was one of those young men to whom the tract was originally granted. Samuel Carter conveys to Aaron Cleveland a plantation here of woodland adjacent to Boggy Meadow, or fields, in 1687, probably on the same locality as the above-named piece.

On October 30, 1717, Ebenezer Cleveland of Martin's Vineyard, or a portion in the deed, Martin's Vineyard, eldest son and heir of Moses Cleveland, "late of Martin's Vineyard, deceased," who was the eldest son and heir of Moses Cleveland, "late of Oburn, deceased, intestate," conveyed to his younger brother, John Cleveland of Freetown, all right, etc., in the estate of his grandfather, Moses Cleveland, "in the town of Oburn aforesaid."

Aaron Cleveland, the legal ancestor of President Cleveland, son of Aaron, Senior, being then of Charlestown, buys of Sumners Pierce, on April 10, 1722, thirty acres lying at a place in Woburn called New Bridge, also ten acres in Berry Meadow Swamp. The larger piece was bounded westerly, partly by the town road and partly by land which was formerly Joseph Pierce's, now in the possession of said Cleveland, south by land of Josiah Pierce, and east by Boggy Meadow Brook. Shortly afterwards, Nathan Richardson conveys to the same Aaron, "all right in estate that Joseph Pierce, late of Woburn, died, seized." A few days later Aaron and Abigail, his wife, mortgage to the Massachusetts Commissioners their tract of thirty acres in Woburn, at a place called the New Bridge, bounded north by lands of Nathaniel Tay, east by Boggy Field, Meadow Brook, south partly by Josiah Pierce, and partly by land formerly belonging to Joseph Pierce, and west by the Country Road leading to Andover, (Essex Co., Mass.) This mortgage was discharged by the succeeding owner. The Country Road leading to Andover is the same as the town road above mentioned, and is the present Main Street (via Elm) through North Woburn, in other words the country road and ancient stage-route, known in 1794 as the road to Andover, Haverhill, Essex Co., Mass.) etc.

Aaron Cleveland, last named, next conveys to Jonathan Blanchard of Andover, on April 10, 1724, "one certain messuage or tenement," with several other pieces of land and meadow belonging to the same, all lying in Woburn. Namely, a house and barn which was formerly Joseph Pierce's, deceased, now in the possession of the said Cleveland, with thirty acres of land, which is the homestead, lying at a place commonly called New Bridge. This land was bounded north and west apparently on the main road above mentioned, east upon land which formerly belonged to William Pierce, now in said Cleveland's possession, and south upon land of Josiah Pierce. Another of the premises is a piece lying on the east side of the above homestead, containing also thirty acres, and also bounded west on the aforesaid town road, being apparently the same thirty acres mentioned in a preceding paragraph, and bounded east on Boggy Brook. The other premises were the only lots named in the inventory of Aaron Cleveland, Senior, at Maple Meadow and Wood Hill.

According to the above, the Clevelands owned a large portion of what is now the centre of North Woburn village, lying east of the road which from time immemorial has passed through that place. The spot is opposite to the birthplace of Count Rumford. The thirty acres which constituted the Cleveland homestead is the farm formerly connected with the Rumford house. Our opinion is that the home of the first Moses Cleveland was located somewhere on this lot, and that the house and barn which, in 1724, were described as "formerly Joseph Pierce's," were the house and barn owned and occupied by Aaron Cleveland, Senior, who died in 1710, which property was also a part of the same lot. The original Moses Cleveland may have been only a tenant on the same premises, and the owner simply of outlands. From the fact that he left no will, he appears to have had a small property. The estate apparently extended along the main road from the place known for many years as the homestead of Samuel Thompson, Esq., to a point near School Street. The part of the Middlesex Canal lying in this vicinity is the channel of the ancient Boggy Meadow Brook.

The title to the main piece from this point is as follows: Jonathan Blanchard conveys to Ebenezer Thompson, 1729, 13 acres, part of his home lot, bounded north west by the town road, and again, in 1732, more of his homestead, or 25 acres, including apparently the Rumford place. Ebenezer Thompson in will allowed in 1758, bequeathed his homestead, consisting of a mansion house (the present Rumford House), barn and out-housing and about thirty acres of land, on part of which said buildings stand, to his son, Hiram Thompson, then a minor under twenty, in years. The same Ebenezer Thompson also remembers, by will, his daughter-in-law, Ruth Thompson (mother of Count Rumford, who was born two years previous to wife of his eldest son Benjamin, deceased, his grandson Benjamin Thompson (the Count) to whom he gives sixty-seven acres, being partly in Woburn and Wilmington (Middlesex County, Mass.), at the Wood Hill District, and lying on Wood Hill Brook, and also an interest in his lands in Brimfield (Hampden Co., Mass.), and a piece of land in Wilmington. He also remembers his daughter, Hannah Flagg.

The land which Ebenezer Thompson purchased of Jonathan Blanchard in 1732, Hiram Thompson mortgaged to Stephen Hall of Boston, in 1770, and again to Samuel Thompson, Esq., in 1798. He conveyed to the Middlesex Canal proprietors four acres out of this lot in 1801. He also conveyed to Willard Jones, his son-in-law, a half of his estate in 1808, and in his will probated in 1812, bequeathed the improvement of his estate to his wife, and after her death it was intended to be divided among his children, Ebenezer and Benjamin Thompson, Bridget Jones and Hannah Tidd, with a legacy to his grandson, Sewall Thompson. The estate was settled by commissioners and the Supreme Judicial Court in 1813 and 1814. The advertisement of sale in 1814 describes the property as a farm of about thirty acres, etc., situated in the north part of Woburn. The whole was purchased by Willard Jones, and its history from that time is well-known.

MOSES' CLEVELAND evidently was a near or an adjoining neighbor to his brother-in-law, George Polly (husband of Elizabeth Winn), who deeded his real estate in Woburn, Apr. 10, 1653, to John Lakin of Reading, as appears in the following: John Lakin's Deed 1653 Communicated by the Hon. Samuel Abbott Green M.D. of Boston: in The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Boston: Published by The New-England Historic Genealogical Society. XLV: 81-2—

MOSES' CLEVELAND became a man of some prominence in New England and, it would seem, was identified with all the political movements of the day.

From N. E. His. Gen. Reg., Oct. 1851, V: 391-2: Old Dorchester—That the success of [Oliver] Cromwell was highly gratifying to the great body of the first settlers of New England requires no confirmation, and that a government had been overturned which had been the cause of their expatriation and consequent hardships and sufferings, was viewed with much satisfaction by them, admits of no question. It was easy therefore for them to conform to a government growing out of Cromwell's revolution;—a government every way congenial to their habits, wants, and feelings. And having gone on under a congenial legislation for many years, a sudden change must necessarily cause much commotion; especially as they could have no choice of rulers in Eng. It was certain too that if their oppressors should come into power, they could expect to be treated at least with coldness and rigor. A change came; the restoration took place—not a restoration of good government, but a restoration of a government dependent on the will of an unprincipled king * trials, troubles, and difficulties our fathers experienced. * When it occurred, many of them, probably, had but little faith in its stability. That this was the case appears strikingly manifest from some documents of that day now before us. As early as 1662 a letter was received from Charles II., a tolerable copy of which may be read in [Gov. Thomas Hutchinson's Collection of Original Papers [relative to the History of the Colony of Mass. Bay 1769] [II; Prince Society Publications]]. That the letter was very unacceptable to the colony is set in a clear light, by the manner of its reception in a single important town. Copies were probably sent to all the towns, though we have met with but one of them, and that was sent to Woburn. It was thus directed:—

“TO y<sup>e</sup> CONSTABLE OF WOOPERNE WHO IS HEREBY REQUIRED TO PUBLISH OR CAUSE THE SAME TO BE PUBLISHED AT A GENERALL FOUNE MEETING THERE.” How speedily it went from the “Generall Covrt” to Woburn, does not appear, but it was returned with the following endorsement upon it:—“This is to Certify whom it may concern, that I Thomas Dutton of woobvyrn do acknowledg, that on request of several inhabitants of the said tovrn, did proevre this Letter of the secretary & gaue it to the CvnstabLe Isack Cole who refused it, & so i brought it again this 8 of Desember 62. THOMAS DUTTON.”

He was admitted to full communion in the First Church in Charlestown Mass. 6 day 1st mo (March) 1692.

MOSES<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND is probably buried in the Old First Burying-Ground at Woburn near the grave of his son Aaron<sup>2</sup>.

A more thorough search in England may yet discover the ancestry, etc., of Moses<sup>1</sup> Cleveland.

Scowall's Woburn, 602.—Many have been the descendants of MOYSES CLEVELAND who came to New England the humble apprentice of a joiner in 1635 and established himself in Woburn about 1648, that have done worthily in their day: have been distinguished not only by their position in society, but by their weight of character and influence, and by the usefulness of their lives.

The American Biographical Dictionary by William Allen, D.D., 1857, p. 14. in an account of MOSES CLEVELAND, SAYS, “From him are doubtless descended all in this country who bear the name Cleveland or Cleveland.” This manner of statement is an ordinary error concerning the posterity of Moses<sup>1</sup> Cleveland.

Genealogy of Moses<sup>1</sup> Cleveland and descendants may be found in following:

A Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England showing 3 generations of those who came before May 1692 on the basis of Farmer's Register, by James Savage, 1806, 1: 166; Early Puritan Settlers of Connecticut, by Royal R. Hinman of Hartford, 1852, p. 618; Sewall's Woburn, 500.

The name Cleveland disappeared from Woburn before the close of the first century of the town's existence, and the family distinction may be said to have been gained elsewhere.

Mrs. Ann (Winn) Cleveland d. probably previous to May 6, 1682, for at that date her father, Edward Winne, made his will mentioning her 3 youngest children, but not herself.

Moses<sup>2</sup> Cleveland emigrated from Woburn probably early as 1679-80, when his name last appears on the tax list, or he certainly left soon after March 31, 1686 (date of son Joseph's birth). It is not improbable he (and not his father) was adm. church Charlestown 6 (1) 1691-2, if so was then living there. He evidently settled next at or near Edgartown, Island of Martha's (then Martin's) Vineyard, Duke's co., Mass. Here he was a farmer, and very probably became a mariner like his father-in-law, Nicholas Norton. Many of his descendants have since followed the seas.

Moses<sup>2</sup> and Ruth (Norton) Cleveland sold land at Edgartown, March 8, 1694, and soon removed to Southold, N. Y., where their son ICHABOD<sup>3</sup> was born next year, and where they probably always afterward dwelt and died. No record of his death, which occurred prior to Oct. 30, 1717, for a deed of that date executed by his son, EBENEZER<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND mentions MOSES<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND decd. A deed of Ebenezer<sup>3</sup>, July 16, 1718, mentions "my father Moses Cleveland lately deceased," and "grandfather Nicholas Norton." Ebenezer<sup>3</sup> in a deed at Edgartown, July 26, 1717, describes "land being same given in will of Mr. Nicholas Norton to my father and mother Moses and Ruth Cleveland."

Thomas Henshaw first appears at Woburn 1672, taxed in the List for Meetinghouse rate. His name is not in the Tax List for 1666, nor among those who had right in the common lands of Woburn, 1668. Evidently he was an immigrant from England prior to 1672. He was a soldier in King Philip's war. Mass. Archives, LXVIII: 134—Thomas Henshaw credited under Lt. Edward Oakes £101. 11s. 04d., and under Maj. Simon Willard, Sept. 17, 1675, £1.04. Many years afterward he was wounded in battle with the Indians and died from the effects.

For a large part of our account of his posterity our obligations are due Andrew Henshaw Ward, Esq., of Boston, Mass., who kindly loaned the records of his late father, Andrew Henshaw Ward of East Bridgewater, Plymouth co., Mass.:

AARON<sup>i</sup> CLEVELAND was a soldier in King Philip's war, 1675-6 (as were also his brothers MOSES<sup>2</sup> and SAMUEL<sup>3</sup>). From mittee chosen by the proprietors for laying out highways.

Aaron<sup>2</sup> Cleveland was a man of distinction in the town, and wealthy. He gave his children every educational advantage possible at that early day.

Sept. 24, 1716, inventory of Aaron Cleveland, Senior, shows the following real estate:
Homestead—house, barn, orchard adjoining, about 14 acres.

A lot at Wood Hill, about 20 acres.

A lot near Boggy Saw Mill, so called, about 14 acres.

A lot at Maple Meadow, about 2 acres.

A lot at Rock Pond, about 30 acres.

A lot at Mile Stone Swamp, about 3 acres.

All the real estate was assigned to Aaron Cleveland, and he gave bond to pay the other heirs their proper share. He immediately sold two outlying lots to Joshua Sawyer, one lying by the road leading to Boggy Saw Mill, and the other being a part of the lot at Wood Hill, the east line beginning at Cold Spring Brook and running half a mile to a small elm tree.—W. R. Cutter's article, Woburn Jour.

The Woburn Journal, Sept. 25, 1885, thus describes our plate of the grave of AARON<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND. No other headstone of a Cleveland is now to be found in Woburn :

"The public are already familiar with the fact that Edmund J. Cleveland, Esq., of Hartford [Hartford Co.], Conn., was lately in Woburn, and had a photograph made of the gravestone of the ancestor of President Cleveland in our old burying-ground. The result is now before us in a handsome heliotype picture, entitled 'The Grave of Aaron Cleveland in the Old First Burying-Ground, at Woburn, Mass. He was the ancestor of President Grover Cleveland.' The lettering and ornamental parts of the gravestone are brought out in the picture in a beautiful and unique manner. The gravestone is of a peculiarly hard and durable stone, and the ornamental carving is of superior workmanship. It belongs to a class of stones imported from England, where the ornamental portions were undoubtedly made, the lettering being put on in this country to suit the wishes of the purchaser. These points are proved, first, by the stone differing in kind from any found in this section, and second, from the superiority of the ornamental work to that cut afterwards on stones quarried at that day in our own country. The portrait of Mr. E. J. Cleveland is introduced in the picture as an effective feature. Mr. Cleveland is writing a book on the Clevelands, and holds the manuscript of that work in his hand as he sits in a chair at the foot of this celebrated and honored grave."

The inscriptions read as follows :

[Headstone.]
 "Here Lyes the Body of M<sup>r</sup> Aaron Cleaveland who Departed This Life September
 the 14 1716 in y<sup>e</sup>
 62nd year of his Age"
 Cleaveland"

The designation or title Mr., denotes, without doubt, that he was a man of distinction in his day. Very few of the stones in the cemetery are inscribed with this special mark of deference and respect. Young Folks History of the United States, 1880, by Thomas Wentworth Higginson +3174 [a lineal descendant of Aaron<sup>2</sup>], 86—

Only a few people of the highest social position, such as the clergy and magistrates, were called by the title Mr. and Mrs., the common designation being Goodman and Goodwife.

Conn. His. Collections. By John Warner Barber, 420 — Canterbury originally belonged to Windham, Windham co., Conn., afterwards to Plainfield, Windham co. Gen. Assembly enacted, 1703, that Plainfield should be divided and the inhabitants on the W. side of the river should be Canterbury. The settlement of this tract commenced ab. 1700. The settlers from Conn. were: Maj. James Fitch, Solomon Tracy, from Norwich, New London co., Conn.; Tixhall Ellworth [Ensworth?], Samuel Ashley, from Hartford, Conn.; but the greatest number were from Newtown, Middlesex co., Mass., Woburn, Dorchester, Barnstable, Barnstable co., Medfield, Norfolk co. Among these, John, Richard, and Joseph Woodward, William, Obadiah, and Joseph Johnson, JOSIAH and SAMUEL CLEVELAND; Elisha Pain, Paul Davenport, and Henry Adams. Canterbury is bounded N. by Brooklyn, Windham co., W. by Windham, E. by Plainfield, S. by Lisbon, New London co., and P. It is 8 miles long,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  broad, watered by the Quinebaug. It is divided into 7 societies, Canterbury and Westminster, Windham co. History of Connecticut, by Benjamin Trumbull, D.D., II—Among first settlers of Canterbury were Josiah and Samuel Cleveland.

Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society, VIII. Fifth Series—Winthrop Papers: 1882, p. 500—Power of Attorney of Benj. Palmer and SAMUEL CLEVELAND, endorsed on a blank leaf of letter of Wait Winthrop to John or Adam Gallup, Boston, Oct. 10, 1695: "This may sertefy that I Bejemin Palmer and SAMUEL CLEVELAND living in the Quaneboge plantation in the collony of Conettcut in New England being yeomen for as much as Mag<sup>r</sup> Jams Fitch isqu<sup>e</sup> having forceably entred into our house; at a nother time John Plume of New Lundun jun<sup>r</sup> [New London, Conn.] also brock into the house; and also by them and seneral other persons we have rescued a grat deal of damige in our corn both Indean corn and rye being threshed out and caried away; also considerable stry mad under a pretence of law, we being greatly damnefyed by the same in consideration thereof or any other thing in this case we do chus and apoint also impower our loueing frin John Gallup of Stoningtown in the counte of New Lundun in the collene of Conettcut in New England to complaine to and prosecut what he sese cause, both together or apart. We also do impower him to chuse or tack into or with him for the manigment or prosecuting of the thing or to chus any other persun or persuns that he may stand in need of, as tho we, the above said Benjamin Pallmar an Cleuean weare there present. Witness our hands and selles the 2 day of Novemb. 1695. The words enter lined betwene the 10 and 11 lin wich was or any other thing in this case and also between the 15, 17 line, the word or to chuse thes words were before sining and sealing. Sining and sealing in presencese of us: BENJEMEN PALMAR [Seal] Thomas Williams, Henry Stephens SAMUEL CLEAVELAND [Seal]"

These troubles mentioned pages 507, 517: Wait Winthrop writes, Apr. 8, 1697, to gov. of Conn.: "in behalf of the new plantation at Quinabogue with respect to 2 of our tenants Benj. Palmer and SAMUEL CLEVELAND who have been contrary to all law and reason unjustly molested by Capt. Fitch"

History of Windham County, Conn., By Ellen D. Larned, I, 1874, II, 1880—makes frequent mention of CLEVELANDS and others of Cleveland blood, and the important and prominent parts they bore in the organization and subsequent history of Windham co.

1698—1698, SAMUEL CLEVELAND, the tenant succeeding Benjamin Palmer, (tenant of Maj. James Fitch) was reduced to still greater suffering by over-extortion of produce for rent, so that the Maj. himself wrote to Thomas Brooks and Benjamin Spalding, "That they should deliver to said Cleveland all that might be judged needful for his present necessities." 170—Other settlers soon followed Maj. Fitch. Samuel Adams from Chelmsford; Elisha Paine from Eastham, Barnstable co., Mass.; Obadiah and William Johnson, SAMUEL and JOSIAH CLEVELAND from Woburn; Thomas Brooks, Rowland Jones, and Robert Green settled W. of the Quinebaug. To encourage these settlers Owanecco, chief of the Mohegans [See History of Norwich, Conn., By Francis Wareearing Caulkins, 255-6—The mark [sign manual] of OYANACO OWENNEKO] in 1698 made over to Maj. James Fitch, JOSIAH CLEVELAND, and Jabez Utter the land between the Quinebaug and Appaque rivers, extending  $8\frac{1}{2}$  miles N. of Norwich north line, except those lands formerly granted to Maj. Fitch, Solomon and Daniel Tracy and Richard Bushnell, "in trust for y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants now dwelling in the plantation of Quinebaug they bearing their proportion of charge to wit: Thomas Brooks, Obadiah Johnson, SAMUEL CLEVELAND, Robert Green, Rowland Jones and Maj. Fitch. The above are on the w. side of Quinebaug; the intention is to promote plantation work." This conveyance did not prevent Owanecco's selling the same land to other settlers at every opportunity. Indeed, some tracts were sold to 3 or 4 different purchasers by this "flexible" and unscrupulous chieftain. In May, 1698, the inhabitants E. and W. of Quinebaug River had become sufficiently numerous to present to Gen. Court the following petition: "whereas some & families are here and have made some settlement, and although the place be of itself considerable for a good township there ought to be a regular orderly settlement, and that we may have the privilege which belongs to other towns, without which we cannot as we should serve God nor our country, we, therefore, pray for town privileges, and that 2 suitable persons be appointed to measure out 10 miles square, and that we may have a name and brand, and freedom from charges. We also pray that the Court would appoint a committee of indifferent uninterested persons to lay out allotments and to equalize such as have been in part laid out, for without any reflection on the persons that have been already concerned, we humbly conceive it cannot be reasonable to suppose that a peaceable, honorable, speedy, righteous laying out of lots and divisions of lands and meadows can be by 6 brothers who also pretend to and would hold, near a sixth part of the plantation to themselves; where, as it is well known that this place lyeth under many pretended claims besides our honorable Governor's claim and by their own surveying running near 2 miles for less than 100 acres to lay out spots of meadow — such actions, so contrary to law, if not regulated, the place is spoiled, and, therefore, we humbly pray the Assembly to appoint Capt. Wetherell, Mr. Pitkin and Mr. Ely to inquire into the legal proceedings, and inform the weak and feeble that they may have a more speedy and peaceable settlement, so that we may have the worship of God among us — the which above all is to be desired and sought for and have our rights defended to ourselves and heirs May 9 1700

112— Some difficulty was found in collecting church rates. Some inhabitants of this somewhat lawless community were indifferent about religious worship, while others — especially the Mass. settlers — were deeply anxious to establish religious institutions and settle their plantation upon a sound Christian basis. Meeting Nov. 13, 1693, agreement adopted to which Samuel and Josiah Cleveland were signers. 110— Samuel and Josiah Cleveland were selected for the important service of considering "all that may tend to the good well fare of this town." 110— Division of Plainfield Articles of Separation:—"we agree that the Quinebang shall be the division to the centre of Peagscomsuek Island, and from the centre of that island [a line] due east, a quarter of a mile — thence a line run straight to the south bounds of town a mile eastward from the Quinebang River, and in whichever part of the great cedar swamp shall fall, the inhabitants on both sides shall have liberty to use the timber. Both sides paying for the ministry, only the west side not to bear any part of the charge for the meeting-house now built on the east side — the inhabitants of the west side to procure a minister for themselves as soon as the lines are run. New England Historical and Genealogical Register, VI, 57—Early settlers of Plainfield, Conn. Plainfield was granted to Gov. John Winthrop of New London about 1673, settled from Mass., incorporated 1699, and contained Dec. 24, 1702, following freeholders. Residing w. side of Quinebaug River—James Fitch, Esq., SAMUEL CLEVELAND, Obadiah Johnson, Robert Green, JOSIAH CLEVELAND, Elisha Paine, Richard Adams, Thos. Brooks, Benj. Samuel<sup>2</sup> Cleveland was taxed 1716 on £84 valuation when there were only 63 taxable inhabitants in Canterbury; of these 9 were Clevelands. SAMUEL<sup>2</sup> and JOSIAH<sup>2</sup> were the first CLEVELANDS who left Woburn and settled in Canterbury. About 1699 they were joined by their brothers, ISAAC<sup>2</sup> and EDWARD<sup>2</sup>.

The posterity of SAMUEL<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND numbers many talented, cultured, and useful persons; many of them have been prominent in the affairs of the nation. The professions are largely represented. The greater proportion are successful business men, merchants, manufacturers, producers, etc., who, by industry, have accumulated wealth and are noted for philanthropy.

JOSIAH<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND served in the Indian wars, 1688-9, probably in Maine. Settled at Chelmsford 1689, as did also his bro. Samuel<sup>2</sup>.

N. E. Reg., XLIII:373—Garrison in the West Regiment of Middlesex, Conn., by Isaac W. Hammond, A. M.: Chelmsford, Mar. 16, 1691-2. Nathaniel Hill, and with him Serj. Samuel Flechers, JOSIAH CLEVELAND, and their families, 7 men.

He followed, 1693, Samuel<sup>2</sup> to Plainfield, the part afterward Canterb., when there was but one white or English family in that town. The west side of Quinnebaug river was first settled 1690. In 1698 Josiah<sup>2</sup>, Samuel<sup>2</sup>, and others were made trustees of lands west of the Quinnebaug by Owaneco, chief of the Mahicanni, or Mohegans. In 1699 Josiah<sup>2</sup> purchased 176 acres of Owaneco, "then being Peagscommock." Josiah<sup>2</sup>, Samuel<sup>2</sup>, and others sign May 9, 1699, petition to General Court for organization of Plainfield, May 31, 1699. Josiah<sup>2</sup> was one of the 38 who signed, Nov. 13, 1699, petition to Gen. Court for "town powers and privileges." He was one of the 10 in a "committee of the oldest and most respected inhabitants" of the place appointed to assume the jurisdiction of their territory, and reported June 13, 1701, the result at length. Samuel<sup>2</sup>, Josiah<sup>2</sup>, and Isaac<sup>2</sup> were, Dec. 24, 1702, among the freeholders and proprietors of Plainfield applying for a separate township. Plainfield was divided Oct., 1703, and the west side named Canterbury, which then had but 10 inhabitants (Josiah<sup>2</sup> of the number) signing the articles of division. Sewall's Woburn, 601; Hinman's Conn. Settlers, 620.

DELIVERANCE<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND evidently lived near North Kingston, and not improbably followed his father to Windham co., but is thought to have returned to R. I. No trace has been found beyond name and those of his heirs in will of Edward<sup>2</sup>. He was dead before date of the will. The destruction and mutilation of the R. I. records during and since the Revolution preclude their important aid in the research.

DELIVERANCE<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND, it appears, was named in honor of his mother, the name in those days applicable to either sex, as will be found in other cases. In order to avoid confusion in this Genealogy, each DELIVERANCE is designated either as son or daughter.

His old homestead was occupied 1855, by his gr. gr. s. Orrin<sup>6</sup> Palmer +2122. An Epicedium or a poetical attempt upon the life and death of Mr. Josiah Cleaveland: Boston, 1753; the preface an acrostic of 63 decasyllabic lines forms the words "JOHN CLEAVELAND, author of this little book, and pastor of a church in Ipswich." It begins:

In this plain Verse I do attempt to show
O court'ous Reader! naught but what is true,
His Character, as I have set't it forth
None will deny to be beyond his worth.

The verses describe the characteristics of each child, and that

His [Josiah's] native town or place observe we may
Was Chelmsford Town in Massachusetts Bay,
There he did first his vital breath draw in,
There he was born into a world of sin,
There he did live till he was four years old,
As frequently he hath his children told,
Then straight was brought to Canterbury Town,
Where none but salvages could then be found,

Except one family of English blood
As I have often heard and understood.

JOSIAH<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND was taxed 1716 on £13. At a gen. town meeting Canterbury, Dec. 3, 1718, JOSIAH CLEVELAND chosen fourth Selectman; Dec. 3, 1719, collector. *C. Its eastern half was sold out in farms to Rev. Ebenezer Williams, Ebenezer Waiting, Samuel Spalding, Jonathan Cady and JOSIAH CLEVELAND in 1717. In May, 1751, the following petition was presented to the Assembly from the inhabitants north of Canterbury and south of Pomfret, showing: "That your memorialists are settled upon a tract of land three or four miles wide and seven miles long, which until late years, was never circumscribed within the bounds of any town, now divided between the two towns. That the families of said memorialists having grown more numerous than formerly, find it exceedingly difficult and next to impossible to attend worship with their families at the usual places, having many miles to travel, which, especially in the winter, is attended with great difficulty. That having been blessed by God in their outward circumstances, and in some good degree capable of taking care of themselves, and though a considerable charge to invite and settle an orthodox minister, yet the care of our children and families so requiring, your memorialists shall, with the greatest cheerfulness comply with the charge, and, therefore, pray that the inhabitants dwelling between the antient lines of the said towns of Canterbury and Pomfret may be a separate parish or precinct of preaching, as soon as they obtain a gospel minister to preach.

+266 (?) WILLIAM <sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND, b. ab. 1750, per. Norwich,	} also thought to be of Josiah <sup>1</sup> +185.

CURTICE<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND evidently lived at Norwich. The only recorded marriage found of Curtice<sup>3</sup>, 1733-4, occurred when he was aged 32. This circumstance would seem to indicate that this was a second marriage. Therefore the above account presumes a previous marriage.

Looking over the Pierce relatives of Curtice<sup>3</sup> (see Pierce ancestry, ante ISAAC<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND +10), we are led to conjecture that Curtice<sup>3</sup> Cleveland was twice married, that his first wife was named Persis Gates, that she was daughter of Simon Gates, who was b. Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 5, 1676, brother of Jonathan Gates, who m., Charlestown, Mass., Nov. 27, 1712, Persis Shepherd, a daughter of John and Persis (Pierce). That the first wife of Curtice<sup>3</sup> was named for this aunt, Mrs. Persis (Shepherd) Gates, who was first cousin to Curtice<sup>3</sup>. Mrs. Persis (Pierce<sup>1</sup>) Shepherd was his aunt, and Mrs. Persis (Pierce<sup>2</sup>) Bridge his great aunt. Evidently Persis was a favorite name in the Pierce family. Thence PERSIS<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND probably received her name. See Wyman's Charlestown Gen., 403, 756, 860. Simon Gates may have accompanied his uncle, Thomas Gates, to Norwich in 1703. Not improbably SIMON<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND was named for Simon Gates.

The earliest records of SIMON<sup>1</sup> and PERSIS<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND are found in the Town records of Salisbury, Litchfield co., Conn. The juxtaposition of these entries of their marriages indicate that they were brother and sister. It is thought that they migrated from Norwich to Salisbury bef. 1756. Descendants of MIRIAM<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND +74 settled in Woodbury, Litchfield co., Conn.; Miriam<sup>2</sup> named sons Simon<sup>1</sup> Cramer and William<sup>1</sup> Cramer. Simon<sup>1</sup> named a son WILLIAM<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND. Persis<sup>1</sup> named sons Isaac<sup>2</sup> Coole, Gideon<sup>2</sup> Coole, Samuel<sup>2</sup> Coole, not improp. named for gr.-gr. fa., Samuel Pierce. KEZIAH<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND +75 named a child Persis<sup>2</sup> Jones. These namings are significant. To CURTICE<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND the names Gideon and Isaac were so favorite as to be each repeated once in naming his children.

Middlesex Register of Probates, XLVII: 376—Amount of real and personal estate of JONATHAN CLEVELAND, late of Acton, tailor, dec'd intestate, £40. 128. May 29, 1755, £1. 7. 6. added to estate. Joseph Cleaveland, his son, administrator, gives Oct. 19, 1754, bond for £500. John Craggan, jun., yeoman, was attorney for Joseph Cleaveland, and Joseph Robbins, yeoman, administered with him. In the account of Joseph Cleaveland, adm., Dec. 4, 1757, is charged "coffin for daughter Elizabeth."

The records are by no means complete or accurate. According to the record found by Thaldens S.<sup>2</sup> Cleveland among his father's papers, while settling up his estate, Mr. Cleveland claims Joseph Cleveland as the name of his great great grandfather. This record states that Joseph Cleveland came from Ireland to America into the Town of Pepson, Maine, there married his first wife and had three children, a son and two daughters, afterwards a second wife. The Doctor Cleveland of New Brunswick was a son of second wife. Anna, Betsey, Joseph, were the children of the first wife. Joseph Cleveland, Jun., came from Pepson into Acton and there married Dolly Cragin. But Mr. Cleveland cannot vouch for the correctness of the record.

That your memorialists having been deprived of very valuable Landed Estates, &c., without the Lines, and being also obliged to abandon their possessions in this City on Account of their Loyalty to their Sovereign and Attachment to the British Constitution, and seeing no prospect of their being reinstated, had determined to remove with their Families and settle in His Majesty's Province of N. That your Memorialists are much alarmed at an application * of 55 persons * for Tracts of Land in that Province * for 275,000 acres * of the most fertile Spots *

 +336 BENJAMIN NORTON<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND, b. Feb. 14, 1781.

BENJAMIN NORTON<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND, lived at Southold to 1757, when having learned his trade (prob. from his father Ichabod<sup>3</sup>) he started alone to "go west," and seek his fortune. Having penetrated into the country as far as Elizabethtown, N. J., concluded to remain and there he settled and passed the remainder of his days. He became a successful builder and contractor, and a number of houses built by him still remain. He was reared a ship carpenter and tool maker, also a farmer.

New Jersey Journal, May 7, 1889—Old Elizabethtown. Its Houses, &c., by E. L. Meyer.—The old brick house S. W. corner Pearl street and Old Broad st. now Washington ave. which was the residence of Judge John Chetwood was built 1770 by BENJAMIN CLEVELAND, as shown by a receipt given by him to Judge Chetwood, May 28, 1770. House sold to John B. Cheilan, 1811, and 1815 to Caleb Halsted, Jr. His name "Benj. Cleveland" appears on the Map of Elizabethtown, N. J., at the time of the Revolutionary war, 1775-1783, showing that part of the Free Borough and Town of Elizabeth that is now the site of the City of Elizabeth, by Ernest L. Meyer, C. E., Member of the New Jersey Historical Society, 1879—as owning a house and tract of land opposite the "Barracks," now the corner of West Jersey and Cherry streets, Elizabeth. The following letter was written by BENJAMIN NORTON<sup>1</sup>, Oct. 31, 1770, and sent by post to his brother JOSEPH<sup>1</sup>, at Southold. During the century that followed this missive was handed down from one generation to another as an heirloom in the family of his brother ICHABOD<sup>1</sup>, whose wedding is mentioned in the letter. On Jan. 13, 1880, the letter was returned by mail to Elizabeth, being sent by NATHANIEL HUBBARD<sup>7</sup> CLEVELAND +3056, a great grandson of ICHABOD<sup>1</sup>, to a great grandson of Benjamin Norton<sup>1</sup>. EDMUND JANES<sup>7</sup> CLEVELAND +3047, (one of the compilers of this Genealogy) then residing at Elizabeth. The letter thus retraced its journey after an absence of nearly 110 years. It will be noticed that it is signed without the a then often found in the first syllable of the name.

"Loveing Brother: These may serve to inform that we are all well in health at present, as I hope this may find you & yours.

I have nothing particular to inform you at present. Shall only mention that business is very dull & that it is hard times for all tradesmen as well as other people & that money is scarce & that provision is dear & that it is like to be worse instead of better times except the King allows to strike more money.

I have been lately informed of Ichabod's marriage, which I suppose will be a means of drawing him from taking care of Mother, but since things are ordered so remember that you are her son also. I should be glad to see you all, or at least to hear from you. I add no more but remain your

Elizthtown
 21ST OCT 1770"

Brother BENJ. NORTON CLEVELAND

The letter was published and its return to Elizabeth commented upon in the Elizabeth Daily Journal, Jan. 26, 1883. "There was not much stirring in the family except Jehabot's marriage which 'I suppose will be a means of drawing him from taking care of mother.' The sacred obligation to take care of mother—the mother who has been all in all to us—often sets lightly upon the shoulders of men who have families of their own. One might imagine that the letter was written to-day from its remarks upon the dullness of business. An amusing feature of the letter is the green-back tendency of the writer 'Money is scarce and provision dear, and it is like to be worse times unless the King allows to strike more money.'"

Evidently Benjamin Norton<sup>1</sup> was one of the original green-backers. He was diligent in his business, and secured the homestead already mentioned. We have a copy from the ledger of Isaac Collins, an inn keeper of Elizabethtown, of the account of Benjamin Cleveland, 1779, wherein he is credited by building one leanto and charged sundry payments in both cash and drams.

Concerning the two marriages of BENJAMIN NORTON<sup>1</sup>, we have made a thorough but unsuccessful search extending through nine years to learn the maiden, &c., names of the two wives of my gr. gr. fa. Benjamin Norton<sup>1</sup> Cleveland, the dates and places of b., m., d., and their parentage. Town, county, and state records of N. J., have been examined, also private records and correspondence and interviews had with the oldest living descendants, not one of whom can remember the names of these wives. A reward will be paid for the discovery of these names.

"State of New Jersey, Department of State,

Dear Sir: I have examined the Licenses of Marriages in this office from 1740 to 1743 and do not find the License to BENJAMIN CLEVELAND or BENJAMIN NORTON CLEVELAND. Dayton both of the County of Essex and are bound to his Excellency William Livingston Esq in the sum of £1,000, conditioned for the due administration of the estate of BENJAMIN N. CLEVELAND late of Elizabeth Town in the County of Essex decd. The Oath of Admr. was taken before Robert Ogden Jr. Surrogate at Turkey on the 11th day of Dec. 1781. The Inventory of the estate was taken Dec. 16, 1781, & appraised by Jeremiah Garthwait & George Mitchell and amounts to £207-2-1. The affidavit of George Mitchell one of the appraisers was taken before Alex. C. McWharter, Surrogate of Essex Co., Nov. 9, 1783, and filed in this office on the 18th day of November 1783. No settlement or account is on file or of record in my office. Very Respectfully,

Was Garthwait or Dayton the name of either wife?

SAMUEL<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND dwelt first at Boston, where he was a ship owner, mast maker, boat builder, mariner and joiner. Concerning his early life William<sup>6</sup> + 1107, wrote:

In Boston he was impressed on board a British man of war, which after making one cruise returned to Boston. The captain was dining with a family in some way connected with ours, when the lady of the house told him she had a favor to ask of him. He replied that if it was in his power he would grant it with pleasure. She told him it was to release Sam. Cleveland. He said he would rather part with any two men on board his ship, but as he had given her his word, Sam. should be discharged. The ship was lying in King Road (now President Road) and Sam was sent up in a boat with a coxswain and six men all of whom abused him on the way. As soon as he landed on the wharf he challenged any two of them to fight, when they all came upon him and he flogged them all very handsomely.

Samuel<sup>1</sup> and his bro. Josiah<sup>1</sup> evidently were of the New England settlers who went to Nova Scotia and joined Gov. Edward Cornwallis and founded Halifax 1749. (See account of Rev. Aaron<sup>1</sup> +120.) Very likely Samuel<sup>1</sup> conveyed the colonists from Boston in a vessel of his own, or of which he was capt. AMERICA.—Halifax in Nova Scotia, July 3. Some time ago governor Hobson sent a sloop to Shedore, about 12 leagues distance from here, in order to bring up the Indians with their quaws, according to treaty; but they barbarously murdered Mr. CLEVELAND owner of the sloop and five others and afterwards scalped them; Mr. Cadile (the interpreter) who declared himself a Frenchman, being the only person of the whole crew that they saved alive, who arrived here last night from Cape Breton. The Indians burnt the sloop and the articles of peace before Mr. Cadile's face and desired him to inform the governor. The motive that induced the Indians to perpetrate so cruel an action, was the loss of 6 of their people, who were murder'd and scalped by some persons belonging to this place some time since: and we are much afraid more innocent men will suffer on the same account."

History of Nova Scotia by Beamish Murdock, II, 222.—"May 16, 1753, at the request of Joseph Cope, son of J. B. Cope the Indian chief who called him Major, a small sloop was sent by the Government to convey them home and to remove the provisions given them from Isadore, Jedore a few leagues eastward of Halifax. In this vessel were Mr. Bannerman, Mr. Samuel Cleveland, Anthony Casteel, and 4 bargemen. They were civilly treated by the Indians, Major Cope telling them he would write to his brother the governor. When they had nearly finished the business they were set upon. Mr. Bannerman with four hands went ashore in his boat and was surprised and taken prisoner with his people. Immediately afterwards the Indians came on board the sloop after firing several shots at them. They then seized Mr. CLEVELAND and Casteel and carried them ashore. After a long consultation they decided to spare Casteel, who called himself a Frenchman. The others they killed with their hatchets and took off their scalps. Casteel was carried by the Indians to the French fort at Bay Bery Veste called Gaspeaux. He was afterward ransomed for 300 livers, paid by a French inhabitant, and after many adventures arrived in Halifax, July 2, 1753, with the sad tale of Indian treachery, the innocent having suffered death for wrongs inflicted by others. The vessel was destroyed by the Indians. It had belonged to Henry Ferguson and Cleveland. The Council gave £25 to Ferguson and the same sum to widow Sarah Cleveland for their interests in the vessel. They also voted £30 to wid. Cleveland and her children as a gratuity and £20 to Anthony Casteel who went in the vessel by Gov's orders." Suffolk Deeds, VI, 111, 571—"Deed SAMUEL CLEVELAND of Boston mariner May 23, 1742 s. Bought of Aaron Cleveland, Mar., 1742, a house and 30 acres in Millington, rem. to Millington, 1742; bought more land, 1746-48.

Probate records E. Haddam (at Colchester, Conn.), Vol. II:—Abigail Usher, widow of Hezekiah Usher, applies for letter of administration, Nov. 6, 1750, at same time exhibiting an inventory of the est. made by appraisers, sworn Sept. 28, 1750.

As the inventory includes house, farm, acres of corn, rye, wheat, it is presumed that Hezekiah Usher d. in the summer. In the distribution eight years afterward, the children are mentioned in above order, Hezekiah Usher, the oldest, having a double portion of the estate.

Family Bible says: "Hezekiah was b. in Boston, his wife Abigail was b. in Cambridge & they were m. 1730 and had 5 children." But N. E. His. Gen. Reg., XVIII: 411, says: "Hezekiah Usher of Medford and Newport, R. I., m. [1st] Jane Greenleaf, da. Stephen, and had: Hezekiah, June 2, 1734, John, May 25, 1736, Daniel, d. y. Jane m. Rev. AARON<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND, a character of considerable note. Authorities differ as to his birthplace. The honor has been bestowed upon Medford, Charlestown, and Cambridge. It is altogether probable that he was b. at Cambridge, whose records in the Clerk's office contain the entry of his birth. He was baptized in the church at Cambridge, Oct. 30, 1715. Aaron<sup>1</sup> entered Harvard Coll. 1731, at age of 16, grad. 1735. Concerning his college career, his gr. s. WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> +1107 wrote:

"He was a large, stocky, and powerful man, excelling in all exercises that required strength and activity. Was very superior in skating, swimming, wrestling; many of his feats my father has related to me, such as swimming from Cambridge to Boston and back for a wager, accompanied by a boat and a companion, who was obliged to be taken into the boat. I believe this was from old Cambridge bridge, now leading from Cambridge to Brighton. On one Commencement day a professed bully from Boston challenged him to fight. My grandfather repeatedly declined, as he was averse to have anything to do with such a fellow, and, moreover, knew nothing of boxing. The blackguard, after trying various expedients without effect, spat in his face. This was beyond bearing, and young Cleveland commenced a battle with the professor of fisticuffs, and repeatedly leaped over his head, striking him down with his heels as he passed. The professor was dreadfully beaten, and was obliged to be taken into Boston by his friends, being unable to help himself. Mr. Samuel Curwen [who was his classmate at college, and lived to 1802] and old Mr. Barret of this town (Salem) saw the battle, and related the facts to my father, STEPHEN<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND." Allen's Bio. Dic., 231—Aaron<sup>1</sup> "was a prodigy of physical strength and agility."

It is not known where he studied theology. He probably preached his first sermon at Medford, for N. E. His. Gen. Reg., VII: 267, "Extracts from the Diary of Thomas Seccom of Medford, 1738, May 28. Sermon by Mr. AARON CLEVELAND." Ordained minister of the Strict Congregational Church, Haddam Soc., July, 1739, the 3d regular pastor, preceded by Rev. Jeremiah Hobart, 1700-15, Rev. Phinehas Fiske, 1714, d. 1738. See His. Haddam and E. Haddam, by Rev. David D. Field.

From MS. written by his gr. da., Mrs. Dorcas Cleveland<sup>6</sup> (Hiller) Cleveland +112 (wife of RICHARD JEFFKY<sup>9</sup>): "Susannah Porter was a great beauty and much celebrated in her day. Her person was small and of perfect symmetry. Her face was distinguished as much for its great intelligence and animation as for fine features and complexion;—her high and polished forehead, her aquiline nose;—her bright and beautiful black eye;—her small and lovely mouth, had each its peculiar charm, and if all the witcheries of love were not employed by her, it was not because they were not within her control. She was the belle of her time, and some of the richest and most reputable men of the neighboring towns were suing for her hand, when she gave her heart to AARON CLEVELAND, then a gay young collegian, whom her charms had attracted, and who, with as fine a person and as handsome a face;—with a spirit as noble, and a humor more keen, had easily supplanted his older and richer rivals.

"He was a man of fine understanding and great wit, and what is better, of pure morals and benevolent disposition. I am sorry to add that he was not celebrated for his prudence, at least in his youthful days.—and no one will dispute this point when informed that he married for love, without any means of supporting his wife, as soon as he left college.

"After studying for the ministry, he was first settled in Haddam, 1739, and went there with his beautiful wife and the two little ones who were already added to his family. This change must have been a severe trial to his wife, who had been accustomed to ease and luxury. She was the darling of her family, and although her father was not opulent, he lived in high style for those days, and from his richly-furnished house, with servants and carriages at her disposal, she went, with only one domestic, to the little country town of Haddam, where the people of their parish had never seen anything better than wooden utensils for household use;—where a piece of silk had never before been seen, and where the manners and customs of the people were of corresponding simplicity. The minister and his wife traveled on horseback, for no wheeled carriage had ever penetrated so far into the wilderness. A house had been erected for them, which was the best in the village, and the parishioners conducted them to it, and helped them to arrange the furniture, which had been sent up the previous winter on sledges, and some of the men went home to their impatient wives with wonderful stories of the magnificent things they had seen. 'Why, madam has got a silk gown and petticoat,' they said; 'and they are so rich they eat off of pewter dishes.' 'But I don't know what madam will do,' said one man in a desponding accent, 'for I'm sure she can never work; why, her hands are just like lilies, and she is so pretty, and little, and slender, she's just fit to be set up on top of the cupboard along with the cups and saucers, to be looked at.'

It is not surprising that in such society and so circumstanced the good lady could not be very well contented, and it is no small evidence of her christian patience and benevolence, as well as that of her husband that they lived at Haddam for 7 years, then he asked a dismissal from his church, and urged as a plea that he could not maintain his family, already enlarged to the number of six children, and that his wife was too discontented for him to remain. His request was granted with regret. Rev. Dr. David Dudley Field of Haddam writes in a letter Oct. 5, 1830: "My supposition is that difficulties of support rose from the depreciated currency." That is, instead of being paid in specie, he was paid in bills of credit. "A large portion of the people very much lamented his dismissal, and an attempt was made to resettle him."

Annals of the American Episcopal Pulpit by Wm. D. Sprague, D.D., 1: 164—Rev. Aaron Cleveland by Charles D. Cleveland [+3219]—"difficulties arose partly from the zeal with which he preached from impressions received under ministrations of Whitefield." He was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Elderkin. Rev. AARON<sup>4</sup> ret. to Malden, where his wife's father lived, May 23, 1747, having accepted call to South Precinct (on Nelson's Hill a secession church now in Everett) then vacant since Rev. Joseph Stimpson's pastorate, 1744. To encourage him to come the Precinct voted Apr. 24, 1747, £1,200 to buy a parsonage for his use. He was installed June 27, or July 15, 1747, their second pastor. Aaron Cleveland by Benjamin Rand, Ph.D., Cambridge, Mass.—Events were now happening which were to have a most important bearing upon the future of Rev. Aaron<sup>4</sup> Cleveland. Cape Breton had been restored to France, Oct. 1748, by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle. It thus became necessary for the British to establish in Nova Scotia a new place of strength as a rival to that lost by surrender of Louisburg" so Halifax, N. S., was founded summer of 1740, by a large company of people from Eng. com. by Col. Edward Cornwallis, Governor, joined by settlers from New England, and the "Protestant Dissenting church," at once organized. Constant reports concerning the progress of the new colony appeared in New England newspapers. Boston Weekly News Letter, Apr. 20, 1750—publishes a letter dated Halifax, Apr. 12, 1750, stating "shall soon erect a large church." News Letter, July 5—another letter June 14, "yesterday the Gov. laid corner stone of church to be the handsomest in America; will have a good dwelling built for the minister. I have subscribed to the support of Mr. CLEVELAND for 2 months, as has the Gov. and gentlemen." Therefore the reputation of Rev. AARON<sup>4</sup> had extended to Halifax, and he was chosen to organize a church not subject to Episcopal jurisdiction. Rev. AARON<sup>4</sup> accepted the call, and in Dec., 1750, rem. to Halifax, where his bro. Samuel<sup>1</sup> and prob. his bro. Josiah<sup>1</sup> already lived, having in all probability been of the colonists from Boston who joined Gov. Cornwallis. News L., Jan. 1, 1751—has letter from Halifax Dec. 7, 1750. "Rev. Mr. CLEVELAND is arrived, was well received by the Gov. and other gentlemen. He preaches every Lord's day in the afternoon to good acceptance, and will continue so to do till a Meeting house can be built. At a meeting of those in the place who are for Mr. Cleaveland's settlement, voted Mr. Hugh Vans moderator and then voted Mr. CLEVELAND £100 per annum, house rent, &c., making £50 more, in all ab. £1,350 old tenor." News L., Jan. 8, 1751. Halifax, Dec. 22, 1750. "Mr. CLEVELAND'S arrival is most pleasing to Gov. Cornwallis, and his excellency is so good that he gives us ground and builds us a Meeting House at his cost." The Gov. well understood the character of Rev. Aaron<sup>4</sup>, and hence gave him a cordial reception. Office Sec. Commonwealth, Boston, Mass. Archives, Book 54—Letter to Hon. Josiah Willard, Sec. Prov. Ms. Bay. Halifax, Oct. 5, 1751. The religious cause of the Dissenters and their independency is what I am very hearty and warm in, and hitherto we have been much favored. The difficulty at present is the unhappy backwardness of many to support Mr. Cleaveland honorably who were forward in calling him to the work of the ministry among them. Benj. Green.

Harper's Magazine, Aug., 1885, p. 484—Rev. AARON CLEVELAND became a resident of Halifax the year subsequent to the founding of that city. Here he established what was known as "Mather's Church," so called after the great New England divine of that time. His pastorate continued five years; during that period he founded a church library. Many of the volumes were his gift. The library is still in existence, and a number of the books containing his autograph presentations may still be seen. A Scottish preacher succeeded Mr. Cleveland, and the society has since that date been known as "St. Matthews." It was the first organized Presbyterian Church in the British lower provinces. To-day it is the fashionable church of that denomination in Halifax. The Word is preached from the old-fashioned, box-like pulpit, to which the minister ascends by two long winding stairways. The pews are as in the ancient time, padded throughout with scarlet, and the British "red-coats" constitute a large portion of the audience in the high gallery that reaches around three sides of the building.

Rev. Robert Laing is the present pastor of St. Matthews.

The following incident was related by his gr. s. WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> :

"While he was at Halifax some of his parishioners became dissatisfied with him, and did him all the injury in their power. On one occasion when a packet had arrived at Halifax, and Mr. C. went to the wharf to get the news (it was evening), on returning up the wharf three armed men attacked him. He knocked one down, threw a second on to a sloop's deck, and the third ran off."

The massacre of his bro. Capt. Samuel<sup>4</sup>+116 by Indians occurred in the 3d year of Rev. Aaron's ministry. His pastorate terminated 1754. Halifax Gazette June 15, 1754 — "Yesterday Rev. Mr. Cleveland arrived from Conn. in order to settle his affairs but whether he will tarry among us is uncertain." A change had gradually taken place in his religious views, and becoming conscientiously an Episcopalian he professed the faith of the Church of England resolved to become a priest and felt it his duty to resign his charge. He took his family, 1754, to Norwich where his widowed mother then lived. He was requested to preach alternately in the Episcopal churches at Norwich and Groton. He consented to do so after he should receive Episcopal ordination. There was no Bishop in America, and after bringing his wife and 9 children to Boston and leaving them with her uncle Chief Justice Stephen Sewall he sailed, 1754, for England to take holy orders. In England he made friends and found relations, among the latter a Sir JOHN CLEVELAND+17796 [prob. identical with John Cleveland+17795] an officer of the government in the Navy Department, a very respectable good and rich man, was particularly attentive and kind to him. Rev. Aaron<sup>4</sup> was an inmate of his house until he embarked to return home and he received a promise from his new found relative to educate and provide for his two eldest sons if they were sent out to him. By enquiry at the Herald's college, London, relative to ancestors Rev. Aaron<sup>d</sup> discovered that the letter a in the first syllable of his surname (which he had heretofore used; thus Cleaveland) was an interpolation which had crept in since Moses<sup>d</sup> left England and he always afterward spelt the name CLEVELAND, and directed his descendants to do so. In London the Society would not appoint a missionary at Norwich but made him successor to Rev. Richard Locke, missionary to Sussex co., Delaware, chh. Rev. AARON<sup>d</sup> CLEVELAND was ordained by Bishop Sherlock of London, July 28, 1755, priest in the Church of England. He sailed for America, Aug., 1755. The vessel in danger of being wrecked upon Nantucket Shoals was poorly manned. While assisting the sailors Rev. Aaron<sup>d</sup> was precipitated headlong and nearly killed. After a 7 weeks passage he landed at Halifax, Oct. 3, 1755, in company with other clergymen. He went to Boston and Norwich, and recovering travelled to Lewes, Del. After several months of trial found the field unpromising. By his request the Society, Mar. 18, 1757, transferred him to the Parish at Newcastle, Delaware (then a part of Pennsylvania) to succeed Rev. Samuel Brooke. The following is a copy of the letter preserved in the church records of Newcastle :

Charter House, July 1st, 1757.

To the Church Wardens and Vestry of the Episcopal Church of Newcastle in Pennsylvania. Good gentlemen, —

The Society for the propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, have granted your request and appointed Mr Cleveland their missionary in your church; — but it is on this express condition, which is now a standing rule in all their missions, that you provide him with a good house and glebe, and not less than twenty pounds sterling per annum towards his more comfortable support.

Heartily recommending you and Mr Cleveland to God's blessing — I am Sirs

Your very faithful humble servant Philip Bearcroft.

His Collections by Helmes Ammidown, 1: 130 — "The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts was established 1701, incorporated by the British Parliament for the principal object of propagating the faith and forms of the English church; the English colonies, wherever located were made the missionary fields for this purpose. It was composed of men of the first standing and influence in that Kingdom, not only clerically but politically. The grand design was to encourage loyalty and subserviency to authority but particularly to the British government. The leading men of England had noticed the tendency to self-government in their American colonies, and thus the design was to counteract this influence. At first it was thought best to establish literary institutions to mould public sentiment; and later, the visit of George Berkley, Bishop of Cloyne, to this country in 1729 had for its object this purpose. The college at Williamsburg 'The William and Mary' established 1692 was one of the first moves."

REV. AARON<sup>d</sup> CLEVELAND went to Newcastle and was received and provided for to his heart's content, a house was procured and furnished by his parishioners and all things made ready for his family, even to the various stores needful to begin housekeeping immediately on their arrival. He probably preached and administered the Holy Communion to his charge. He started for Norwich to bring his family and stopped at Philadelphia visiting Dr. Benjamin Franklin whose friendship and esteem he enjoyed which in itself is no trifling evidence of his merit and ability. He had suffered irreparable injury to his magnificent physique by over exertion in the storm ship-board. That night he was seized with a fever of which he died at Dr. Franklin's house Second st. Aug. 11, 1757.

Rev. AARON<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND was buried in Christ Church, or in Christ chh. cemetery. Book of Burials Christ chh. — Buried Aug. 11, 1757, The Reverend . . . CLEVELAND. Mr. John Amonson, Clerk of Vestry, states that Rev. A. Cleveland is buried in Christ Church graveyard Fifth and Arch streets, no tombstone. The stone may have sunk in the ground; several have been found at a depth of 5 feet.

Pennsylvania Gazette (of which Benjamin Franklin was editor) contained, Aug. 18, 1757, the following obituary:

"On Thursday last (11th) died here Rev. MR. CLEVELAND, lately appointed to the Mission at Newcastle by the Society for propagating the Gospel. As he was a gentleman of humane and pious disposition, indefatigable in his ministry, easy and affable in his conversation, open and sincere in his friendship, and above every species of meanness and dissimulation, his death is greatly lamented by all who knew him as a loss to the Church of Christ in general, and in particular to that congregation who had proposed to themselves so much satisfaction from his late appointment among them, agreeably to their own earnest request."

For many years it was thought that the above obituary was written by Dr. Franklin, but Prof. Charles D.<sup>5</sup> Cleveland, in his manuscript ancestral register (a family record), states that Franklin sailed from Philadelphia and arrived in London, Eng., July 27, 1767, but Franklin's family were in the family mansion in Philadelphia.

Rev. Aaron<sup>4</sup> Cleveland was a very able and zealous preacher, while a Congregationalist an admirer of Whitfield, and one who cultivated and exemplified his spirit. Nor does he seem to have lost any of his zeal on becoming an Episcopalian. The church at Newcastle, in a letter Oct. 2, 1757, to the Society in London, return hearty thanks for sending so worthy a man to that mission.

"From whose good life," say they, "and sound doctrine we had promised ourselves great instruction and edification; but now, to our unspeakable loss, Mr. CLEVELAND is dead of a long illness which ended in dropsy, and therefore we pray for a successor."

Sprague's An. — "Tradition says that Dr. Franklin wrote a beautiful consolatory letter to his wife."

Rec. Venerable Soc., Mar. 16, 1750. "A letter from Mrs. SUSANNAH CLEVELAND, wid. &c., Aug. 12, 1758, requesting that Rev. Mr. CLEVELAND'S salary be paid up to the quarter before he d., and that the usual bounty [£50.] upon such melancholy occasion be granted. Agreed to."

His widow was left with ten children — the last born after her husband's departure for England. She was living with her relatives in Salem, Mass., destitute, feeble, and without means of support. Her uncle, Judge Sewall, who was warmly attached to her, assisted her with advice and means to open a little retail shop, and though often depressed and anxious, yet so prudently did she manage that she not only reared her numerous family respectably, but preserved her social position, associating always with the best circles, and receiving as her visitors the learned, the witty, and the celebrated of her time. Her sons left her at an early age to provide for themselves, and her daughters also were independent enough to earn their own living, while they resided with their mother and thus preserved the family circle unbroken, and their good sense, wit, beauty, and excellent qualities of heart rendered them the most admired and courted belles of the place.

Mrs. D. C.<sup>5</sup> (Hiller) Cleveland writes that she was overwhelmed by the heartrending loss of her daughter Dorcas<sup>5</sup> by death, and "unable to overcome her grief, grew from deep to deeper melancholy, and from activity and health to listless indolence and disease. She became, in fact, deranged, and being fixed in the conviction that she had become resident among disembodied spirits, she thought herself the single object of malice of all the powers of evil. In this persuasion she could not be induced to leave her bed, or uncover her eyes, or hold any conversation with any living being except by compulsion, during the long and dreary period of 8 years."

MOSES<sup>1</sup> CLEAVELAND (Aaron<sup>3</sup>, Aaron<sup>2</sup>, Moses<sup>1</sup>), bap. Cambridge, Mass., July 19, 1719, d., place and date unk., prior to 1761, supposed to be the Moses Cleaveland who m., prob. in Wethersfield, Conn., ab. 1744, Mary ———, supposed to be Mary Clarke, b. Wethersfield, June 9, 1724 [the wife of Moses<sup>1</sup> d. at Hopewell, Ontario co., N. Y., after 1824, a. over 100 years], a da. Thomas and Dorothy (Hurlbutt). (The mother of Moses<sup>5</sup> Cleaveland +365, m. 2d, Mr. Bliss.) They are thought to have been parents to following children:

+365 MOSES<sup>5</sup> CLEAVELAND, b. May 23, 1745, Wethersfield or Norwich, Conn.

369 BURRILL<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND (?) traditional, said to have been a noted Free Mason at that day.

370 RALPH<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND (?) traditional, said to have lived at Warsaw, N. Y.

371 OREN<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND (?) traditional.

372 (?) LUCY<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND, m. Norwich, 1790, Blanchard Darby—Norwich rec., very probably a daughter of Moses<sup>1</sup>.

of East Haddam, 15 acres of land, situated in Millington. Deed dated Dec. 16, 1746. New London co., Conn., Prob. rec. Will of AARON<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND, dated Jan. 31, 1755, and will of Mrs. Abigail (Waters) Cleveland, Apr. 14, 1756, both name bequests to Moses<sup>4</sup>.

We are not positive that this Moses<sup>4</sup> was identical with the father of Moses<sup>5</sup> Cleveland, who was b. ac. to Wethersfield rec.: — "Moses the son of Moses Cleaveland and of Mary his wife was born on the 23<sup>d</sup> Day of May, A. D. 1745. Y<sup>e</sup> above entry was made at y<sup>e</sup> desire of Tho<sup>r</sup> Clark, Sep. 3<sup>d</sup>, 1746." Nor that above Mary was — W. rec. — Mary Clark, b. June 9, 1724; but the entry of Moses' birth being made at desire of Thos. Clark, would indicate that the latter was grandfather of the child.

Mrs. LUCETTA<sup>7</sup> (CLEVELAND) GAYLORD +3276, a daughter of Gen. Erastus<sup>6</sup>, says: "I have heard my father, when he wished to establish the fact that he came of a long-lived race, assert that his grandmother Bliss, when she was 95 years, could dance a hornpipe, and touch every note."

Mrs. POLLY<sup>8</sup> (CLEVELAND) RUSSELL +1147, a daughter of Samuel, says: "The reason for not knowing of a certainty of my grandfather [on the Cleveland side] was, that he d. when my father was but a mere boy, and consequently my father was apprenticed to learn the 'carpenter's and joiner's' trade. These facts were told me by my mother. My grandmother's 2d husband was Bliss. I was named [Mary] for my grandmother Cleveland."

These statements would indicate that the father of Samuel<sup>7</sup> and father of Lt. Moses<sup>5</sup> was the same person. The children marked "traditional" are remembered by descendants of the other children. LUCY<sup>9</sup> CLEVELAND is found on Norwich t. rec. Gen. ERASTUS<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND +1128 used to visit SAMUEL<sup>7</sup> CLEVELAND +367 at Gorham, since Hopewell, N. Y.

Mrs. Ann<sup>1</sup> (Richardson) Blake was a very superior woman, whose qualities have been rehearsed by her descendants. John Blake resided first at Boston, afterward at Wrentham; farmer and tanner. He was highly esteemed. Much of his landed estate was in Wrentham, and came to him by his father's will.

*Suffolk co. John Blake was pressed on board British man-of-war about Feb., 1754, escaped soon and lived in the country, returned to town after the war. Like Hamilcar, father of Hannibal, he devoted his infant son John to the cause of freedom, praying that he might live to see the British Lion lying in the dust. He lost much property in business at Boston, 1742, and during the French and Indian wars, 1752, when he returned to Wrentham.

When John Palmer, a descendant of an early Scotland settler [prob. Seth Palmer], exercised too freely his gift of exhortation, he was arrested and kept 4 months in Hartford jail. Prob. Rec. Litchfield Will. 1. AARON CLEAVELAND, of Litchfield, being very sick and weak in body but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given unto God, do make and ordain this my last will, that is to say principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul in the hand of Almighty God and my body to the earth to be buried, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God. First, I give and bequeath to EUNICE, my dearly beloved wife,  $\frac{1}{3}$  part of my lands and buildings which I now live upon during her natural life; and after my just debts are paid,  $\frac{1}{3}$  part of my personal estate forever. Also I give to my well beloved son, DYER CLEVELAND, 1-5 acres land in Hampton, N. H. Also I give unto son AARON CLEVELAND my shoe making shop and all my tools and implements belonging to it, together with my tan house and yard and all the tools and implements and appurtenances thereunto belonging, and so much of my land, land and buildings as to make him equal with his two brothers, viz.: BENJAMIN and MATHEW.

Also I give unto son, BENJAMIN CLEVELAND  $\frac{1}{3}$  part of my buildings and farm I now live upon after their mother's decease, and he to have his part in lands or buildings, not to interfere on what I give to Aaron.

Also I give unto my son MATHEW  $\frac{1}{3}$  part of my buildings and farm I now live upon after their mother's decease, and he to have his part in lands or buildings not to interfere with what I give to AARON.

Also I give unto my well beloved daughter, OLIVE CLEVELAND (after my debts are paid and my wife has her thirds of the movable estate), the 1-5 part of the movable estate exclusive of what I give to my son AARON.

Also I give to daughter SYBLE CLEVELAND (after, &c.), the 1-5 part of the movable estate, &c.

Also I give unto my daughter ESTHER CLEVELAND (after, &c.), the 1-5 part of the movable estate.

Dea. BENJAMIN<sup>4</sup> CLEAVELAND, came from New England, Windham, soon after the expulsion of the Acadians, 1755, believed to have emigrated with the Loyalists, 1761-4, to that part of Horton now called Wolfville, Nova Scotia, where he dwelt the remainder of his life. He was a farmer and cabinet maker; his homestead the farm afterward owned and occupied by his son, Martin Luther<sup>5</sup> Cleveland. (See The Western Chronicle, Kentville, Kings co., N. S., Apr., May, 1890, for account of Emigration from Conn. and R. I. to N. S., 1760.) Dea. Benjamin<sup>4</sup> Cleveland was a true Christian, a most exemplary man, prominent in the Baptist church in which he for many years held the office of deacon. He was a natural poet and employed his talents in the cause of his Master. He was author of a hymn book. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. Many of his hymns have appeared in later Baptist compilations, notably the hymn,

"Oh could I find from day to day, a nearness to my God."

(A copy of the Hymnal is in the library of James Hammond Trumbull, LL.D. of Hartford).

SILVIX FROM

Whether the wife of Benjamin Cleveland was incapable of writing her signature at all, or whether her agitation in relinquishing her joint right, "in or to a sartin Brook which runs through the west end of the s<sup>d</sup> Cleveland Land," rendered her unable to do so, is not manifest. Indeed, it now matters not. Over a century and a quarter has passed since that Deed was delivered to Jonathan Downing, Sen., and centuries may come and go, till that "whole term of nine hundred and ninety years" expires. What then? "The Brook" will still run its course supplied by the never failing springs of the hills of Windham county — white-clad with the glistening snows of winter, or green-robed with the glorious verdure of each returning summer. Children will play upon its banks and bathe their bare feet in its limpid, sparkling waters, as did of yore the little ones of Benjamin and Rachel Cleveland. Will there be sorrow again like that which filled the hearts and darkened the home of this young couple, when, within a fortnight during that dreary month of November, in the year of grace 1749, three of their five children sickened and died, and were buried side by side in three little graves for violets to grow upon when the spring-tide came — "Joe" and "Bennie" and "Dollie" — leaving only little "Nabby" and baby "Zenas" — he whose crippled manhood in after years was evidently one continued and heroic struggle with adversity? The father may be pictured to us, sad and sedate, with his eyes fixedly gazing out of the window, while the sweeping gusts of early winter rattle the casements, and break and scatter the ice-mailed branches of the trees around the little yard of his "broken home." With Puritan fortitude he endeavors, though vainly, to keep back the tears that silently steal down his cheeks, while he speaks to the sobbing wife and mother — crushed with their great grief, and worn and weary with watching and vigils by the bedsides of her darlings, — the well remembered words of Holy Writ, "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away — blessed be the name of the Lord." There is no answer save a low moan and a fresh outburst of tears. Another Rachel indeed, mourning her first born children and refusing to be comforted.

But the spring time followed, and while the birds were caroling its return another daughter was born and christened for her mother, Rachel. Within two years more, still another daughter gladdened the household with the name of her great-grandmother, Persis. Two and a half years later, another son was born and called Rufus. Was he, or his elder brother Zenas, named for the father or grandfather of the mother that bore them? Next a daughter Mary, who died in midwinter, and was laid by the side of her little brothers and sister before attaining her seventh year; and lastly, Phebe, who grew to womanhood, married Ephraim Pearson, and waited and watched in vain for his return from sea, seven long years, with her family of four little ones, in their home in Manchester, Vt. Was the name of the mother of Rachel, wife of Benj. Cleveland, Mary and grandmother Phoebe?

Abigail or "Nabby" Cleveland was in her 16th year when little Mary, her sister, died, and was already engaged to young "Sam" Hovey of Windham. Her musical talent was the wonder and delight of the neighborhood, and her husband in after years used to say he had often heard her voice while singing of a clear evening out of doors a mile and a half away. Perhaps the hearing of the young lover was very acute at that particular period of his life. They were married in the autumn following the death of little Mary, and began the stormy voyage of life together in Windham, to peacefully close it among the green hills of Orange co., Vt.

BENJAMIN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND removed to Lyme, Grafton co., N H., in 1780.

The following letter, written by BENJAMIN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND to his son, Rufus<sup>2</sup> Cleveland (the original of which was in possession of his great-grandson, HORACE GILLETTE<sup>3</sup> CLEVELAND), is given here to show the unaffected piety and simple-heartedness of the writer, as well as to preserve the document itself from oblivion. It is written in a plain, steady hand, and signed with the a in the first syllable of the name, as customarily written by members of the Cleveland family in those days.

"LYME, October 14th, 1776.

"DEAR CHILDREN:

"Our love to you and yours induces us to let you know that through the goodness of God we are in as comfortable states of health as can be expected people of our age will be. But we are not insensible of the decays of nature, for we daily experience those shocks which show that our dissolution draws near. I have a bad cough, but am able to keep about. Your mother is better upon the account of her lameness.

"We have to acquaint you of the sorrowful news of the death of Zenas's two youngest children. Zenas and Rachel have both been sick, but have recovered. Ephraim Pearson and his wife was here about the beginning of September, and were well.

"Mr. Cook, the bearer, is going to Hartford, and he will bring my spectacles when he returns, if they are left at Capt. Chamberlain's, and I hope you will carry them there, and write to us by Mr. Cook.

"Zenas, and Hovey and Hamblin and their folks are all well, and remember their love to you and yours.

"This from your loving Parents,

"BENJAMIN AND RACHEL CLEVELAND."

He was in his seventy-third year when he penned the foregoing, and it is to be hoped that the good old gentleman got his spectacles, of which he doubtless stood in great need.

About 1792 Rev. Samuel Hovey rem. from Lyme, N. H., to E. Brookfield, Vt., where, greatly enfeebled by old age, Benjamin<sup>1</sup> died, 1797.

Efforts to obtain the exact date of the death of Benjamin<sup>1</sup> Cleveland and his wife Rachel have proved futile. It is stated, however, that "grandma Cleveland" died when Rebecca<sup>6</sup> Hovey was twenty years old, and "grandpa Cleveland" lived five years after her death. So it may be seen, according to this statement, that Rachel d. in Lyme, N. H., in 1792, and he d. in E. Brookfield, Vt., in 1797, and is buried in the old cemetery south of where descendants live, 1887. There is no stone in the old burying grounds of either town to mark their respective places of burial. The old burial place where the dust of the first settlers of Lyme, N. H., repose is thickly covered with underbrush and half-grown trees, with here and there a broken headstone.

The most earnest and persistent efforts have been made to ascertain the maiden name of wife Rachel ——, date and place of her birth, and the names of her parents. Of the six grandchildren living in 1879, not one was at all sure of any facts concerning her, save that her given name was Rachel. The probate records have been carefully examined in the hope that something might be found to determine the maiden name of said Rachel. As no will of Joseph<sup>3</sup> Cleveland (Samuel<sup>2</sup>) appears on those records, the conclusion is that he d. intestate. No grandchild or great-grandchild of Rachel is found bearing her full maiden name.

It has been intimated that she was of Welsh extraction, but this seems only a traditionary conjecture. Her name thought by different ones to have been Cobb, Hall, Hyde, Hurd, Lawrence, Pearson, Perkins, Smith, Stebbins, Craig, Norton, the two last declared by spiritual mediums.

The Halls of New England. By Rev. David B. Hall, A.M., 1887, p. 682—Chapter of S. maps: Rachel Hall m. Benjamin Cleveland of Canterbury, Conn., where he was born, May 1, 1714.

Evidently this is intended to apply to Benjamin<sup>1</sup>. In this Hall genealogr., a thoroughly compiled and ably edited work, no attempt is made to give the Hall ancestry of this "Rachel Hall." No authority is given for the item, and no such entry is found on any town, church, family, or other record. From this we can form no opinion that Benjamin Cleveland's wife was Rachel Hall.

In 1802, OREN' CLEVELAND +1472, visited cousins of Rufus +477. These cousins were named Cobb, and resided half-way between Winsted, Conn., and Amenia, N. Y. It may be that Cobb was the name of Rachel. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins' Hovey Hibbard, stated many years ago that her grandmother Cleveland's name was Rachel Stebbins. This statement was made to her daughter, Miss Eliza M. Hibbard, and was written down on a paper which still exists.

Mr. Horace Gillette' Cleveland was confident that Benjamin' married a sister of Alice Lawrence, the wife of Elijah' Cleveland +161.

Fresh companies coming up at the close of the fight were amazed at the audacity of these fire-hardened veterans. TIMOTHY CLEVELAND of Canterbury and the breach of his gunstock shot off when in full retreat and, exclaiming, "the damned British snail have no part et my gun,," ran back in face of the advancing foe, and bore it off in triumph. Regardless of balls whistling by him, Putnam stood at a deserted hollow-place urging the retreating troops to make one more stand, until the enemy's bayonets were almost upon him. 1755-1788 about — prominent Separates, including Moses, Timothy, Traen, and Eliphas Cleveland, returned to the First Society.

Capt. EPHRAIM<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND dwelt first at Canterbury and in Windham. He was taken prisoner in the French war by the Indians, held captive 3 years, and escaped. He was captain in the Revolutionary army. During the Revolution Ephraim<sup>1</sup> and Mark Watkins were captured by Indians who pulled out all their hair, tied them to stakes, and prepared to burn them. An old squaw, who had befriended them, interfered and by her entreaty the Indians let her have Ephraim<sup>1</sup> in the place of her son who was killed in the war. He and Watkins afterward often went hunting with the Indians, and later were trusted to gone alone a few times, and then escaped. From that time Ephraim<sup>3</sup> was bald, and wore an eel skin-cap.

THE REV. CLEVELAND removed from Conn. to Mass., thence to Ontario co., N. Y., soon after 1783, with his son Ephraim<sup>3</sup> and was one of the first settlers of Naples; he lived on Naples Flats.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty. The Petition of the Subscribers in behalf of themselves and others, Inhabitants of the Province of N. Y. in the Counties of Cumberland & Gloucester, on the West side of Connecticut River. Most humbly Sheweth. That your Majesty's Colony of N. Y. was anciently bounded to the eastward by Conn. River, the Grant from King Charles II to James, Duke of York, in 1663-4, comprehending in express terms; "All the lands from the West side of Conn. River to the East Side of Delaware Bay"; while your Majesty's Government of New Hampshire, the Limits whereof were first ascertained about the year 1734, is confined in its extent westward to other Limits. * That in June disorderly persons in Windsor, co. of Cumberland, assembled & by threats obstructed the proceedings of the Court of Common pleas, pretending that the Jurisdiction belonged to N. H. That your Majesty's Royal Order addressed would soon be rescinded. * That said riotous persons have cluded publick justice, by flight into N. H. * That your Petitioners are persuaded this measure is to be a punishment; to promote interests of individuals, who have made a traffic of N. H. titles, and to aggrandize the family of the late Gov. Wentworth. * Your Petitioners most humbly beseech your Majesty to grant relief. * Province of N. JOSIAH<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND (Deliverance<sup>2</sup>, Edward<sup>2</sup>, Moses<sup>1</sup>), b. prob. North Kingston, R. I., or vicinity, ab. 1706-9, d. perhaps Kenilworth, afterward Killingworth, Conn., prob. after 1752, m., place or date or name of wife not found, per. a da. of Simon Bryant, but very prob. had at least one ch.:

+531 OLIVER<sup>2</sup> CLEVELAND, b. ab. Oct., 1733, in Rhode Island.

Rev. JOHN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND, A.M., one of the most prominent characters of the family, was a distinguished divine, a public-spirited man, and a powerful writer and speaker. Canterbury Separate chh. rec. — 1740, Sep. 14. JOHN CLEVELAND S. JOSIAH owned cov. and adm. chh. Entered Yale college, 1741, and remained there till a few weeks before the close of his senior year, 1745. While at home during the preceding vacation, May, 1744, exhibiting that independence and courage in the cause of truth which ever after characterized him, he (with his bro. Ebenezer<sup>1</sup>, also Yale student), attended the Separatist church, Canterbury, or Strict Congregationalists seceding from the ecclesiastical establishment of the Colony, to hear their uncle Solomon Paine, a layman, follower of Rev. George Whitefield (Calvinistic Methodist) who officiated there, they and their parents being members.

[Genealogy Allen & Witter Families by Asa W. Allen, 12: "two nephews of Elisha Paine, lawyer, expelled for attending his preaching." He "had commenced a course of education preparatory to the Christian ministry on legal principles, but was early enlightened to the true principles of the gospel, and from that time became a zealous and able advocate of the truth as it is in Jesus," from ms. of his gr. son Asahel . . . 12.]

It appears that early in his college life he had been a frequent attendant at these "New Light" meetings. A discourse concerning the history of the church of Christ in Yale college, preached in the college chapel, Nov. 22, 1857, by George P. Fisher, D.D., a Professor of Divinity, 59.

John Cleveland's Diary, Jan. 13, May 11, 1743; Larned's Windham co., 1:308 (including both a period in college and at home on vacation), gives an insight into group of pious young men, among whom was conspicuous David Brainerd (expelled from Yale, 1741), his room-mates, Thaddeus B. Betts and Nathaniel Draper, Thos. Lewis grad. 1741, Joseph Hawley, Edward Dorr, Asher Rossiter, all 1741; Saml. Fish, Jos. Fowler, Isaac Jones, all 1741, Frograce Leavitt, Jcr. Leaming, James Cogswell, Jos. Clarke, John H. Lord, Simon Ely, Daniel Lyman, Elisha Lyman, Warham Williams, all 1745, Eliphalet Williams, Saml. Field, David Strong, Saml. Lockwood, Wm. Throop, Nathl. Lloyd, Saml. Traey; entry Apr. . . . spends forenoon at C. with LUCY CLEVELAND, da. of his uncle Henry. John<sup>d</sup> and Ebenezer<sup>d</sup> on their return to college were called to account by the faculty. They were required on the penalty of expulsion to confess publicly in the Hall that they had violated the laws of God, of the Colony, and of the college. (The Colonial govt. and college sustained the Congregational Establishment.) Their conversations with the Rector and tutor Chauncey Whittlesey were written down by John<sup>d</sup>, who presented following petition: "To the Rev<sup>d</sup>. and Hon<sup>d</sup>. Rector and Tutors of Yale college, It hath been a very great concern and trouble to me that my conduct in the late vacation has been such as not to maintain interest in your favor, and still retain the great privileges that I have enjoyed for three years past under your learned, wise, and faithful instruction and government. Nothing of an outward nature can equally affect me with that of being henceforward wholly secluded from the same. Hon<sup>d</sup>. Fathers suffer me to lie at your feet, and intreat your compassionate forgiveness to an offending child wherein I have transgressed. Venerable Sirs: I entreat you, for your paternal wisdom and clemency, to make in my case such kind allowance for the want of that penetration and solid judgment expected in riper heads—as tender parents are naturally disposed in respect of their weak children. But more especially I beg to be admitted in the humblest manner to suggest as a motive of your compassion to the ignorant,—that I did not know it was a transgression of either the Laws of God, this Colony, or the College, for me, as a member, and in covenant with a particular church as is generally owned to be a church of Jesus Christ, to meet together with a major part of said church for social worship. And therefore do beg and intreat that my ignorance may be suffered to apologize. For in respect to that fact, which to riper heads may appear to be a real transgression, I can assure you, Ven<sup>ble</sup> Sirs, that I have endeavored to keep and observe all the known laws and customs of College unblameably. And I hope I shall for the future be enabled so to do, if I may be restored to a standing again in my class. Thus begging your compassion, I subscribe, your humble servant and obedient pupil.

JOHN CLEVELAND.

New Haven, Nov. 27, 1744.

The Rector and Tutors regarded the above confession as good for nothing, because it cast no censure on the separatist meetings, and the young men were disciplined still further. The following passages will illustrate the style of these colloquies.

John—Sirs—I should be glad to know what the Scriptures say, as to the call of a person to preach.

Rector—The Scripture saith, "How can they preach, except they be sent?" and "no man taketh this honor to himself, but he that is called of God as was Aaron."

John—Sirs—I have something to offer. When I was at home, I was under the care of my parents, and they told me, if I did not meet where they met, I could not expect they would maintain me at College; and the meeting not appearing contrary to the word of God, I thought it my duty to obey my parents in this thing.

Rector—If you went in obedience to your parents, this extenuates the crime. However, we shall proceed according to what appears right to us notwithstanding.

John—Sir, I find it to be impossible to serve 2 masters and am in a dilemma; for if we don't make a full recantation we must be expelled college, and if we do our parents will not support us at college. So that whether we confess or do not confess, we are under necessity of leaving college.

Wherefore the Rector and Tutors of Yale college Nov. 10, 1744, presented the Admonition and Act of expulsion. [For the wording see Fisher's Discourse, 57, 58.]

Upon advice of Rev. Eleazer Wheelock, D.D. et al. in 1745, the two Cleavelands petitioned Gen. Assembly to be restored to college; their petition was dismissed without action. — Pres. Theodore Dwight Woolsey's His. Discourse, 108. On title page of a sermon pub. Boston, 1763, he designates himself JOHN CLEVELAND, V.D.M., for he had not yet received his degree, and being unable to use the customary A.M., he substituted the initials of Verbis Dei Minister. (His bro. Ebenezer<sup>1</sup> and s. John<sup>5</sup> also used V.D.M. until degree was received.) Subsequently convinced that they had wronged the CLEVELANDS the college granted them their degrees, which were sent them, 1764, by Rector Thomas Clap, Pres. Yale. In the catalogue John<sup>1</sup> is recorded with his class, 1745, and Ebenezer<sup>1</sup>, 1748. In Feb., 1745, John<sup>1</sup> was pursuing his studies at Branford, New Haven co., Conn.—Larn. Wind. co., I: 440.

Rev. JOHN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND having obtained a license commenced preaching immediately after leaving college, and for 2 years ministered to a Separatist society, Boston (in the Huguenot church, School st., where Daille<sup>1</sup> and Le Mercier had before preached to the expatriated Bowdoins and Amorys), who sympathized with Rev. James Davenport, then visiting N. E. Rev. John<sup>1</sup> was invited to become their pastor, but declined. He was called by a new church at Chebacco, Ipswich,— a secession from Rev. Theophilus Pickering's, resulting from Mr. P.'s refusal to invite Whitefield and Davenport into his pulpit, and he tried to prevent John<sup>1</sup> Cleaveland's ordination, but it was favored by the leading ministers, and he was ordained Feb. 25, 1747.

A sketch of ecclesiastical hist. of Ipswich, discourse, Dec., 1828, 21, and The Pastor's Jubilee in Ipswich, Oct. 31, 1850, or, both discourses, by Rev. David T. Kimball, narrate his ordination. Soon Mr. Pickering published a pamphlet, A bad omen to the churches in the instance of Mr. John Cleaveland's ordination over a Separation in Chebacco parish, which John<sup>1</sup> answered in A plain narrative by the new church. Mr. Pickering d. Oct. 7, 1747, his church pub. his rejoinder, to which John<sup>1</sup> replied in the Chebacco narrative, 1748. This drew forth An answer to the Chebacco narrative, a letter from the Second [First] Church in Ipswich to their Separated brethren, Boston, 1748. (The last sermon preached in the ancient meeting house of the First Parish, Ipswich, Feb. 2, 1896, by D. A. Kimball, pastor, 6, "JOHN CLEVELAND was pastor Second church, Ipswich, now the church in Essex.")

His first marriage occurred soon after his ordination. Mary Dodge had many wooers whom she refused. After the ceremony, when the guests were saluting the bride, one of these unsuccessful suitors offered his congratulations in this strain:

"Mary Dodge was thy name,
Dodge thou hast many a man,
But thy Dodging all is o'er,
Dodge thou may'st not any more."

Rev. JOHN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND was in French and Indian war, 1756–60. In 1758, chaplain Col. Jonathan Bagley's reg. in Gen.

James Abercrombie's exped. (15,000 men attacked Ticonderoga, July 8, 1758, with bayonet, costing 2,000 lives), and was in the battle when Lord George Howe was killed; was at Ft. Edward, Louisburg, &c. His daily Journal [pub. in Essex Ins. Col., XII: 85-103, 179-196, XIII: 53-63, edited by his gr. son Nehemiah<sup>6</sup>], and letters to his wife describe these scenes. During encampment at Ft. George the chaplains met twice a week for prayer. Bancroft's U. S., II, alludes to these meetings. N. E. His. Gen. Reg., V: 307 — Journals of Joseph Holt of Wilton, N. H., of march of Capt. Eben Jones' co. Canada exped. "went into Col. Bagley's regt., heard Mr. CLEVELAND preach Sundays, June 11, and Aug. 6, 1758. (There exists a sermon preached by Chaplain Cleaveland at camp on Lake George, Aug. 20, 1758, inscribed on a sheet, size 3 x 3½ inches, can be read only with magnifying glass.) Essex I. C., XVIII: 87. Journal of Dr. Caleb Rea, surgeon Bagley's reg., mentions arrival of Rev. John<sup>4</sup>, May 21, 1758, and preaching at different dates.

Rev. John<sup>4</sup> wrote, Dec. 25, 1759, letter of inquiry to JOHN CLEVELAND †17805, maltster, Ipswich, Eng., concerning ancestors of Moses<sup>1</sup> — see †1.

That John<sup>4</sup> was far in advance of his age appears, 1763, in following letter on the duty of Christianizing the Indians: "Very dear sir: Since I have understood that the preliminary articles of Peace are ratified, by which the vast country on the eastern side of the river Mississippi from the source of said river to the ocean is ceded by France to his Brittanic majesty, I have been ready to think we never had so loud a call and so wide a door opened to use endeavor to propagate the gosple and spread the savor of the knowledge of Christ among the Indian tribes which inhabit, or rather, range in the extended wilds of North America as now we have. A view to christianize the heathen was a pious motive with our Forefathers to come to America at first. The obstruction to their conversion God has now removed. * * Moreover, can it be supposed that God has wonderfully crowned the British arms with success, and given us all the vast country which is now ceded to us, merely for Great Britains' and British American Colonies' sake — seeing the promise is of the heathen to Christ for an inheritance." Essex Ins. Col., XVII: 140. — "Epicedum composed 1752, by Rev. John Cleaveland, by E. P. Crowell, Prof. Amherst College."

The years 1763-4 witnessed a great revival among his people. In 1763, his "Essay against Dr. Mayhew," who replied in pamphlet.

The title page of this scathing piece of invective reads: A Letter of Reprimand to Mr. John Cleveland of Ipswich, occasioned by A detamatory Libel, published under his name, intitled An Essay to defend some of the most important principles in the Protestant reformed system of Christianity, &c., against the injurious assertions cast on the same by Jonathan Mayhew, D.D., in his late Thanksgiving sermon on Psalm CXIV. 2, in which, &c. By Jonathan Mayhew, D.D., Pastor of the West Church in Boston. Thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbor and not suffer sin upon him. Levit. XIX. 17. If the brother trespass against thee rebuke him. Luke XVII. 3. Boston: Printed and sold by R. and S. Draper, in Newbury street; Edes and Gill, in Queen street, and T. and J. Fleet, in Cornhill, 1767. sm. 8°, pp. 46, each page head line, Mr. Cleveland inserted, on p. 46, Advertisement. It is hinted in the foregoing Letter that Mr. Cleveland was formerly dismissed from Yale College in a way not to his credit. The author has heard this in such a manner that he has not the least doubt of its truth! But if he should hereafter find himself in a mistake with reference hereto, he will give Mr. Cleveland reasonable and public satisfaction in that respect, even without being called upon therefor. THE END.

[We have a copy of this pamphlet, and also a number of time-worn publications by Rev. John<sup>1</sup> Cleveland. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV, for list of his writings.] Rev. John<sup>1</sup> promptly replied, notwithstanding. The 2 churches in Chebacco were reunited 1774, under Rev. John<sup>1</sup>, and have continued united. Entered Continental army May 19, 1775, was chaplain at Cambridge during Boston siege. In same camp were 2 of his brothers and his 4 sons.

Office Sec. Commonwealth, Boston. Pay Rolls, XVII. 210 Abstract of Muster Roll of field and staff officers of 17th regt. of foot in the service of the United Colonies, commanded by Coll. Moses Little. JOHN CLEVELAND, from Ipswich, chaplain, enlisted July 1, 1775, time of service, 1 m., 3 d.

In 1776, with army, short campaign in Conn. and N. Y. His gr. son, Hon. NEHEMIAH<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, wrote:

"We have in good preservation his journals kept daily during those hard times, and the sword he wore, and an autograph letter of Gen. George Washington inviting him to dinner, written soon after taking command of the army at Cambridge." His camp-stech, powder-horn, and study chair now in possession of descendants. — Child. gen., 88.

These occasional absences from his flock seem but to have endeared him to them the more. After a few years of religious dissension, the two congregations in Chebacco re-united under him, and went on in harmony. An earnest spirit and a sincerity which none could question characterized him in the pulpit. His familiarity with the Scriptures was proverbial. Rev. John<sup>1</sup> Cleveland had blue eyes and a florid complexion, 6 feet tall; his voice was heavy and of great compass. Rev. Nathaniel Emmons, D.D., said of him, that he was "a pattern of piety and an ornament to the Christian and clerical profession."

Larned's Windham co., II: 311— mentions Rev. JOHN<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND one of those who met in council, Sept. 26, 1784, at Canterbury, to reunite the Separate society and the Standing church.

His earnest ministry of 52 years at Chebacco ended with his life, after a short and painful illness. His funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Joseph Dana, D.D., of Ipswich, from II Kings, 11: 12. The parish defrayed his funeral expenses. Spirit. doc's Annals, I: 461, Rev. Daniel Dana writes: "Though his life was spent for the most part in comparative seclusion, his good influence was felt much beyond the immediate sphere of his labors." Sermon by Joseph Dana, D.D., to his own people, Apr. 25, 1799, fast day, contains an eloquent tribute. See also—

Rev. EBENEZER<sup>4</sup> CLEAVELAND entered Yale college 1741. He was adm. into Canterbury Separate church Apr. 7, 1742.

Larmet's Windham co., 1: 147. Ebenezer, Josiah, and Lydia Cleveland and others sign at Pomfret, Conn., Nov. 3, 1742, the manifesto to church: "You are of the number that have the form of godliness and deny the power thereof, that we can hold communion no longer with you, and withdraw." 1: 3. Apr. 5, 1743, EBENEZER<sup>4</sup> is adm. to all privileges 1st chh. Canterbury. While home on vacation, May, 1744, EBENEZER<sup>4</sup> with his bro. JOHN<sup>3</sup> attended the Separate church. For this, on return to Yale, they were suspended from college, Nov. 16, 1744 [see †233]. However, in 1764 the college granted them their degrees; in the catalogue, Ebenezer<sup>4</sup> is recorded with class of 1748. Sept. 26, 1746, Ebenezer and Abigail sign chh. cov. Larned's Wind. co., I: 450—EBENEZER<sup>4</sup> is taken back into church fellowship. 170 A fast was ap. June 14, 1740, because of drought, &c., at which time EBENEZER CLEVELAND handed in a statement, "That he had long labored under great trials by reason of certain erroneous opinions which he believed were held by certain members of the church," &c. This letter fell like a bombshell upon the assembled brethren. And when they went on with the work of the day, the pastor solemnly prayed, "Lord, convince Brother Ebenezer Cleveland of his sin, in that he hath brought this against the face of thy Word and Spirit." The brothers Ebenezer and John were both cast out from the church for presuming to question its infallibility, though expelled from Yale for fidelity to this church.

Rev. EBENEZER<sup>1</sup> CLEVELAND commenced preaching at Sandy Bay (now Rockport) in 1751. The rec. of Fifth church of Christ in Gloucester (now the First church of Rockport), show: In 1752 several contemplate a dismissal from First church to form a new church; Mar. 18, 1752, vote passed to build a meeting house. Rev. Ebenezer's name first mentioned on records Apr. 14, 1752, Henry Withash and Jonathan Pool then chosen assessors to make parish rate; Ebenezer Graves to collect and pay to Mr. CLEVELAND. Feb. 8, 1753, Capt. Sam'l Davis, Insign John Rowe, and Jonathan Pool chosen to draw petition to parish to set off the Cape [Ann] to be a parish at the next meeting, and to treat with Mr. Cleaveland. May 11, 1753, Committee ap. to treat with Mr. C. Sept. 18, 1753, Mr. C. to receive £45<sup>0</sup> old tenor for preaching the present year. Benj. Bradstreet of 3d chh., Rev. John Rogers, 4th chh., and delegates, and Fifth church was then constituted. Feb. 28, Rev. Ebenezer Cleaveland called, "provided he a Grees in full with the church's Principels." May 12, £60 yearly salary, with £53. 3s. 8d. and dwelling house, voted him. Oct. 31, 1755, parish voted to concur with church choosing Mr. C. their pastor and teacher, and made arrangements for his ordination. He was ordained Nov. or Dec., 1755, day not found. He was adm. to the church Nov. 9, 1755, his wife Abigail (from 1st chh. Cant.) Mar. 25, 1759. He attests as pastor the parish meeting, Dec. 23, 1755, always writing his name with V. D. M., initials of Verbis Dei Minister, not yet having received his college degree. (Also designated V. D. M. on title page of his discourse pub. 1773. See BIBLIOGRAPHY CHAP. IV.) His bro. Rev. John<sup>4</sup> and nephew Rev. JOHN<sup>5</sup> †702 also used V. D. M.

He was at Ticonderoga, July 8, 1758, and in the intrenched camp at Lake George mentioned in Parkman's Montcalm and Wolfe, 115, as walking about Gen. James Abererombie's defenses with his bro. John<sup>1</sup>, and was in the triumphant Canada exped., 1759. chh. rec., Dec. 19, 1762, Voted that Mr. C. preach at Squam. Dr. Whittaker is performing a like part in Pa.) to wait upon Gov. John Wentworth of N. H., to know what encouragement they will give to accommodate Indian school estab. by Mr. Wheelock, and EBENEZER<sup>1</sup> reports that he waited upon Gov. Wentworth who was friendly to the design, and promised to grant a township 6 mi. sq. to use of school if fixed in that Province. He proceeded to Plymouth, Romney, and Compton. 5,000 acres were proposed to be given if school estab. in either of these towns, and £75 and 20,000 ft. boards if fixed in Compton. Thence he traveled to Cohoes on Conn. river where inhabitants were in favor of having the school. These places were about 40 mi. nearer the Six Nations, 100 mi. from Mount Royal (Montreal) and 60 from Crown Point. In this new country are 200 towns chartered which soon will want ministers, and they have no college in that Province. He visited Berkshire Co. and Albany, N. Y., and attended a large Congress of Indians at Ft. Stanwix.

EBENEZER CLEVELAND and Allen Mather to solicit your assistance by recommending to them the design of sending missionaries and school masters among the Tribes, &c."

Rev. Ebenezer's report was acted upon London, Apr. 3, 1769, by the English subscribers headed by Lord Dartmouth, and the site was accordingly fixed in Cohos or Cowas district, Hanover, N. H. The Indian school afterward developed into Dartmouth college. His. Dartmouth coll., by Baxter Perry Smith.—His church was prosperous, many additions by letter and profession. C.* against secret enemies and Tories.

Rev. E. C. is often spoken of in orderly book of Capt. Cushing's co, Col. Ward's regt. Though he returned at close of campaign he went again, 1776-7. Chh. rec. show that Mr. C. was voted per an. 1778, June 8, £200. Dec. 11, £300. Dec. 26, £270, paper money. Essex Ins. Col. XXI: 152—pub. 5th Parish rec. comm. by Calvin W. Pool. During this period the parish suffered by war and prospects becoming unpromising, and Rev. Ebenezer notified them that he would leave. They were very unwilling to consent to his dismissal, and the 5th church voted, Mar. 2, 1780—

It a grievous dispensation to part with him, "finding we can't prevent it, consent to his dismissal," and he was dismissed June 25, 1780. Sermon at re-opening of Congregation at Meeting-house, Rockport, Jan. 1, 1813, by Rev. Wakefield Gale pastor, 5—"Rev. EBENEZER CLEVELAND continued his labors in his church without interruption 20 years, when he served 3 years as chaplain. 20 were received to church to time of Mr. Cleveland's leaving. During 23 years, when the church had no pastor, only 3 additions were made."

Sermon, after repairing meeting-house 1st parish, Gloucester, from the wanton spoils of Capt. Lynsey in Falcon sloop of war, Sep. 13, 1792, by Rev. Eli Forbes, pastor, 13—mentions 4 other churches of G., Rev. EBENEZER CLEVELAND, &c., pastorates now vacant. Rev. Ebenezer's successor, Rev. David Jewett (settled Oct. 30, 1805), left on the chh. records a handsome and commendatory notice of Mr. CLEVELAND. In 1780 he rem. to Coos, N. H., on some land that he had received, also as supt. of the Dartmouth college lands [Sevall's Woburn, 604]. Sept. 4, 1780, he performs m. ceremony at Aphorp, N. H., and Feb. 8, 1781, he officiates at his da.'s wedding at Coos. Other marriages attended at Bath, Landaff, 1785, and Morristown. Returned to Rockport 1785. Remained preaching at Hanover, N. H., to ab. 1788, at Randolph, Vt. Then went to Maine an evangelist one year. Was settled in the ministry at Amesbury, 1792-7, then returned to his old parish, Rockport, now Gloucester, and preached until 1805. His monument at Rockport bears this inscription:—

Erected to the Memory of the Rev. Ebenezer Cleveland, A.M., who departed this life July 4, 1805, in the 74th year of his age. He was born in Canterbury, Conn., Jan. 5, 1731, and continued to the pastoral charge of this church and congregation, Dec., 1755, and remained their faithful and much-beloved pastor, till the events of the American war opened the way for his removal to a distance, but soon after he returned and spent the remainder of his days in this place. He was a sincere friend to his country, a firm supporter of the doctrine of free grace, and even declared in his last moments that they were the ground of his hope of immortal glory.

Farewell, thou man of God, we saw thy grief
Nor youth, nor hours produced relief,

By painful crosses staid, by sorrow prov'd
By good men honor'd, and by Jesus lov'd
Thy many years one hallow'd current ran
A faithful pastor, and a jolly man

O! may Almighty God still raise and farther unite the people of America as one man to a sense of their necessities, and never give them up as long as the sun, moon, and stars shall endure; and never submit to be slaves, but be willing to sacrifice life, and all things to the defence and preservation of them; which is the earnest desire of your humble servant.

SIMON<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND, the entry of whose marriage and that of PERSIS<sup>4</sup> +263 appear on the old records of Salisbury, is thought to have belonged to either of 3 above lines. A grandson of Simon<sup>4</sup> writes that he has heard his "father speak of aunt Persis and uncle Philip Cooley," which indicates that Simon<sup>4</sup> and Persis<sup>4</sup> were brother and sister. By reason of the circumstance that SIMON<sup>4</sup> and OLIVER<sup>5</sup> +531 each named an elder son Josiah, they are supposed to have been sons to JOSIAH<sup>3</sup> +185. Or Simon<sup>4</sup> who named a son Ephraim may have been grandson to EPHRAIM<sup>3</sup> +41, the record of whom does not state that he died single. We conjecture that Simon<sup>1</sup> and Persis<sup>1</sup> were ch. of Curtice by a presumed first marriage because of the naming by Persis<sup>1</sup> of 2 of her ch. respectively, Isaac and Gideon, these names so favorite in the family of Curtice<sup>3</sup> that he repeated each once in the naming of his ch.

Simon<sup>1</sup> and Persis<sup>1</sup> evidently were thrown on their own resources soon after becoming of age, probably by the death of their father. It is likely that they together emigrated from Norwich, or some place in Conn., Mass., or R. I. to Salisbury, for Persis<sup>1</sup> would not have gone into a new settlement unattended. Simon<sup>1</sup> is said to have dwelt after July, 1773, at Canaan on the Hudson, N. Y., and was pressed into Continental army, and not heard from after.

Office Sec. State, Boston, Mass., Rev. Rolls, p. 31, Vol. for 3d Reg., Mass. line, Col. John Groaton's 7th Company Watrous. CLEVELAND SIMON served Apr. 15 to Dec. 20, 1777, 7 mo., 5 days, enlisted for [during] W[ar] S. "Those marked thus S are for deserters."

Mrs. Elizabeth (White) Cleveland m. 2d, Curtis. Ch.: Elizabeth Curtis m. Robb, dwelt Hudson, N. Y., bookbinder.

*White ancestry:--Farber's His. Col. Conn., 480--*Salisbury was surveyed, 1732, sold, 1737, by gov. and co. of Conn., at Hartford; chartered, 1745. In 1720, 3 families, Dutchers, Whites, and Van Dozers, came into that part of the town called Weatog. White was an Englishman, but connected in marriage with the Dutch. In 1740 there were 4 families of Whites in Weatog. Ephraim Cleveland and descendants prepared by Stafford Canning? Cleveland [†7251<sup>1</sup> p. 2—White family was of Dutch blood. Emanuel White and Isaac White dwelt at Cayuta, N. Y., were Revolution soldiers.

BENJAMIN<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND was a Revolution soldier.

Statement on file Pension Dep. Washington, D. C. — BENJAMIN CLEVELAND, he having died in September, 1803, before a law was passed granting pensions for service in the war of the Revolution, there is no statement on file of his military services, except the one made by his widow, Sarah, in her application for a pension, dated in January, 1837, at which date she was residing in Cincinnati, aged 81 years.

In her application she stated that her husband was born (no date given) in Rhode Island, and that he enlisted at Tiverton, R. I. (where he was living with his father), in 1775, for the term of one year in the troops of Mass., but the names of the officers of the company and regiment she could not recollect. He was with the soldiers under command of Gen. Warren, and in the battle at Bunker Hill (June 17, 1775), on which occasion he received a wound on his head (or his hand), and had his leg broken, which injuries caused his confinement some time in the hospital. For this service she alleged he received from Mass<sup>ts</sup>. 200 acres in Maine. Spring of 1776 he again enlisted at Tiverton for 3 years or during the war, under Capt. Lilly in the Mass<sup>ts</sup>. reg. of artillery, commanded by Col. Crane, and was for a time waiter to Capt. Lilly, and then bombardier. He joined the northern army under Gen. Gates at Ticonderoga, N. Y., and was in the battles that preceded the surrender of Burgoyne. After that event he was marched from Saratoga to the south. When Capt. Lilly retired he was succeeded by Capt. Winslow. Cleveland was at storming Stony Point (July 16, 1777), and Cowpens, S. C., battle (Jan. 17, 1781). Office Sec. State Mass. Index to Crane's Artillery. — "Cleveland Benj reed. § 2-2 bounty Col. John Crane's Artillery reg. [1777-1780] time of service 48 mos enlisted D [uring] W [ar] res. Boston. Capt. Lillie's co." Genealogies Early Settlers of Watertown, Mass. by Henry Bond, I: 102 — Benjamin Cleveland was of the U. S. service.

Either his father was re-elected or Benjamin<sup>5</sup> was elected pound keeper, Freetown, Mass., Mar. 1785, served 9 years.

Historical and Statistical Gazetteer, of N. Y. State, by J. H. French, 1853, p. 220 — "Chenango Co., East German. The first settlement was made in 1735 by Benjamin Cleveland, from Oneida co. Abraham Livermore kept the first inn, settled at Livermore's corners in 1746. From their isolated position in the wilderness, remote from any settlement, the Cleveland and Livermore families suffered great privations during the first years of their settlement. In June, 1760, Mr. Cleveland set out for "Fort Stanwix" for provisions, his family being entirely destitute. He intended to return in 3 or 4 days, but was detained for some time. On the 4th day of his absence his wife and children, who had eaten nothing for 3 days except a few roots found in the woods, set out for their nearest neighbors in Cincinnati, on Otselic River, 4½ mil. distant. When about a mile from home they encountered a bear, and were frightened back. The next morning the mother was too weak to walk, and the two older children set out for Mr. Raymond's, on the Otselic. Upon learning the suffering condition of the family Mrs. Raymond made them a pudding of bran, the only food she had in the house. This and the bottle of milk kept the family from starvation until relief came. At another time when the family were reduced to the last extremity, two un milked cows came to their house one night and went away in the morning furnishing them with milk for several days. It was never known where the cows came from or where they went to. Other families suffered.

In 1796 his da. Polly was the first child b. in that town. Benjamin<sup>5</sup> went from Chenango or Cortland co., N. Y., to Boston, claiming property left by a relative in Eng., returning via Albany, d. there. Tailor.

Lt. ICHABOD<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND, a soldier of the Revolution.

Official Register of the Officers and Men of New Jersey in the Revolutionary War. By William S. Stryker, Adj.-Gen. 1872, p. 481 — CLEVELAND ICHABOD, drummer, Essex co., 542 — CLEVELAND ICHABOD, private, Bergen co.

He enlisted at the age of 16, served till end of the war. He was with the Continental troops at the execution of Maj. John Andre, at Tappan, Oct. 2, 1780. He afterward used to relate that Andre in his struggles nearly kicked off one of his boots.

Elizabeth, N. J., Daily Herald, Aug. 30, 1870 — EXECUTION OF ANDRE. A statement is published on the authority of a son of Col. Shreve, who was in command of the 2d Reg., saying that the father was an eye witness of the execution. There was a wagon standing under the gallows with a coffin in it, and Andre stepped up into it. General Parsons, of our army, was officer of the day; he rode near and read the sentence of the court-martial against him, and, looking at his watch, said: "Major Andre, you have fifteen minutes to live; if you have anything to say you can say it." Andre replied: "I have nothing to say, but this is for you to bear witness that I meet my fate like a brave man." He then took two white handkerchiefs out of his pocket, pulled off his scarlet coat and handed it to his servant, telling him to put it in his trunk. The man obeyed, going to the house where the trunk was, the tears running down his cheeks as he went. The wagon moved to let Andre swing clear. I have seen several men hung, but he floated about more than any one I ever saw. When dead he was taken down, put in the coffin, and driven, under an escort, to the landing place at the river, where a boat belonging to the enemy was waiting, by permission, and took the corpse of Major Andre to New York city, and arrived with it at the British camp before midnight. His body was not buried under or near the gallows, as some historians have asserted.

ICHABOD* CLEVELAND drew a pension of $8 per mo. from 1831, and the pay was continued to his widow until her death. He learned the trade of gig and wagon making with Mr. Mann of Elizabetht. After entering the army he did not return to Elizabetht. He lived at Newark and Caldwell to 1786, Bottle Hill to 1794, Hackensack afterwards.

Lt. ICHABOD CLEVELAND was commissioned by Gov. Joseph Bloomfield of N. J., Oct. 9, 1802, 2d Lt. of Artillery Co. of 2d Batt. 1st Reg. Bergen Militia; and Oct. 24, 1808, Lt. of Artillery Co. 2d Batt. 1st Reg. Bergen Brigade. He was tall, corpulent, and of fine presence. He was prominent, influential, and greatly esteemed.

RICHARD THOMPSON† CLEVELAND—3010 states he heard his grandmother Katurah (Baldwin) Cleveland narrate that in 1776 she lived at Elizabethtown with Mr. Brown's family. One morning at daylight the English army passed in retreat. Soldiers in red coats entered her room; she arose and stood shivering while they drove bayonets through the bedding in search of plunder. They robbed the house of all provisions and clothing. Shortly after the American troops in pursuit passed the door.

BENJAMIN NORTON<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND, by the early death of his father, was left to care for himself at a very tender age. He learned the trade of boot and shoe making, and for many years carried on the business at his store and residence on Old Broad street (now Washington Avenue), his place being a landmark of the day. He was successful in business, and provided for himself a comfortable home. From youth all his lifetime he was a member of the Water street, formerly the Morrell street, and later the Elizabeth Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. He was an ardent Methodist, and every one revered him as a most exemplary Christian. He and his wife, Elizabeth, were first buried in the graveyard of the Water st. church, and afterward re-interred in the lot of his son Joseph<sup>6</sup> in Evergreen Cemetery, near Elizabeth, N. J.

Although a strong adherent of the Church of England and of communion at St. John's E. Town, during the Revolutionary war he rendered valuable aid to the American troops whenever the British invaded the town by acting as skirmisher. The marriage certificate, an unusual document of its kind, is now in possession of Col. Thomas Wentworth<sup>7</sup> Higginson +3174. It reads thus:

Rambles about Portsmouth. By Charles Warren Brewster, 1897, p. 115. The New Lights were held in poor repute by Gov. Wentworth, who issued a special notice granting all ministers permission to perform the marriage ceremony "except one [Rev. Samuel] Drown," who was at first a Calvin Baptist Minister, afterward an Independent Congregationalist, stigmatized "New Lights."

Hon. Stephen Higginson, bred to mercantile pursuits, was a successful shipmaster 1765 to 1775. When in Great Britain, 1774-5, he was called to the bar of the House of Commons and questioned as to the state of feeling in Massachusetts. He was a member of Continental Congress, 1782-3; a firm supporter of Washington and Adams. He was Navy agent for Mass., 1797-1801; was one of Gov. James Bowdoin's most active and resolute advisers in suppression of Shay's rebellion, and lt.-col. of reg. from Boston; merchant of Boston and Salem 30 years; in war of 1812 he suffered disaster, and lost a large part of his ample fortune. It is said of him that he sustained with credit the reputation of an ancient and honorable family, and their descendants continue to this day to maintain the good name they inherited. In many instances they have attained marked distinction in literature, and in professional or commercial pursuits.

Stephen Higginson was the generally reputed author of "The writings of Laco," as published in the MASSACHUSETTS CENTINEL, Feb. and Mar., 1789. +1105 JOHN JEFFRY<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, b. Sept. 2, 1782.

CAPT. STEPHEN<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND was the first captain in the United Colonies infant Navy (now United States Navy) believed to be the first commission issued by the United Colonies government in what was strictly naval service. His grandson, HORACE WILLIAM SHALER<sup>7</sup> CLEVELAND +3195, kindly furnishes the following sketch from manuscript written by WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> +1102. A friend of the family offered to provide for Stephen<sup>5</sup> when a youth, but soon after placed him with a hatter, but he thought that there was something better in store for himself and ran off from Salem (whence his mother and family had removed in 1756) to Boston, and shipped as cabin boy on a packet to Halifax. Returning to Boston, on his arrival he addressed a letter to his uncle, Judge Sewall (for whom he was named), and signed his name at full length, STEPHEN SEWALL CLEVELAND. The judge stated to him the inconvenience of writing his name in full, and this so displeased him that thereafter through life he omitted Sewall from his name.

In 1756, during the "old French and Indian war," when Stephen<sup>5</sup> Cleveland was but 16 years old, he was seized by a press-gang in the streets of Boston and impressed (or impressed from a Boston vessel in England, as William<sup>6</sup> was told) on board an English 60-gun frigate, at first commanded by a brave and gentlemanly captain, beloved by his crew, who afterward became Sir William Trelawney, Governor of Jamaica, and who, on being promoted to a larger ship, was succeeded by a contemptible dandy captain, to the annoyance of the officers and crew. Stephen<sup>5</sup> and his American companions were immediately offered the bounty to sign the ship's papers, but declined. They were treated well and young Cleveland was promoted first to the position of captain of the foretop, and was soon made an acting midshipman. The ship was for a time of a squadron under Commodore Richard Howe stationed off Brest, watching a French fleet. During his 8 years' service Stephen<sup>6</sup> acquired a thorough knowledge of navigation and naval architecture. The ship was paid off after the peace of 1763. After his discharge he went to London, and resided in "St. George's Field," long since built over, though then with few houses. Here he had the small pox, and while sick with it the neighboring women used to come in to see the American, and were surprised to find him as white as themselves, as among this class of people the Americans were supposed to be Indians.

On recovering he returned home to his mother and sisters. Coming down the next morning he combed his wig before the fire, which so disturbed his sisters that he was obliged to give it up, for wigs for boys had then gone out of fashion in New England, though when he and his brother, William<sup>5</sup>, were 9 or 10 years old they spent their vacation in Boston with their great uncle Sewall, who had their heads shaved and furnished each with a wig according to the fashion. Stephen<sup>5</sup> then entered the merchant service, and continued to follow the sea in the several offices of seaman, mate, and master. He became an accomplished seaman, and had a thorough knowledge in building, sparring, and rigging ships, which was turned to account in a most efficient manner in the service of his country in her most trying days — the Revolution.

"It must be remembered that the Colonies began that contest with the leading naval power of Europe without a single ship of war, with their own commerce ruined, and with the ports of Boston and New York in the hands of the enemy, a fate soon after shared by Newport, Philadelphia, Savannah, and Charleston. Salem saw her opportunity and proved herself equal to its demands. She turned her vessels into men of war, equipped and manned them, and sent them out to prey on British commerce. During the war, more than 150 vessels, carrying upwards of 2,000 guns, were sent out of Salem, and about 45 prizes were captured and sent in by them. They intercepted the transport and supply ships sent from England and Nova Scotia to the troops in Boston and New York. They brought in munitions of war from France and the French Islands; they cruised in the English and Irish channels and the Bay of Biscay; they raised the rate of insurance on British ships to 100 per cent., and compelled England to employ her navy in convoying merchantmen." From an Historical Sketch of Salem.

It was during these exciting times that Stephen Cleveland's naval requirements proved of essential service.

He modeled and superintended the construction of several vessels, among others the celebrated privateer Pilgrim, 20 guns, which ship was built and equipped under his direction. She was a very fast sailer and captured many prizes, 52 of which were brought safely into port. She was finally run ashore on Cape Cod to escape capture by the Chatham of 60 guns.

Aug. 8, 1776 — (only 36 days after the declaration of independence) — he received a Commission from President John Hancock, as Capt. of the Brig Despatch, with a letter of instructions from Benj<sup>l</sup>. Franklin, Benj<sup>l</sup>. Harrison, and Robert Morris, — a Committee of Congress. This was certainly one of the earliest, if not the very first, naval commission issued by the Continental Government, and we here give verbatim copies of both these interesting documents :

"The delegates of the United Colonies of New Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, — the Counties of New Castle, Kent, and Sussex on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia to STEPHEN CLEVELAND, Esq.

We — reposing especial trust and confidence in your patriotism, valor, conduct, and fidelity — do by these presents, constitute and appoint you to be Captain of the armed brig called the Despatch in the service of the Thirteen United Colonies of North America, fitted out for the defence of American Liberty; — for repelling every hostile invasion thereof. You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the duty of Captain by doing and performing all manner of things thereunto belonging. And we do strictly charge and require all officers, mariners, and seamen under your command to be obedient to your orders as Captain. And you are to observe and follow such orders and directions from time to time, as you shall receive from this or a future Congress of the United Colonies, or Committee of Congress for that purpose appointed, or Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Navy of the United Colonies, or any other your superior officer according to the rules and discipline of war, the usage of the seas, and the instructions herewith given you, in pursuance of the trust reposed in you: This Commission to continue in force until revoked by this or a future Congress. By order of Congress.

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Philadelphia, Aug. 7, 1776.

Attest, Charles Thompson, Secretary."

"Committee of Congress, Philadelphia, July 30th, 1776.

CAPT. STEPHEN CLEVELAND, Sir: We have been regularly informed by John Bradford, Esq., of his purchasing, loading, and fitting the brig Despatch in consequence of our orders, and we approve of his having appointed you to the command of that brig in the continental service, as he gives you an extreme good character of which we hope and expect to find you very deserving. The Honorable Continental Congress of which we are members, authorized us as a committee to purchase the brig, and to order her on such a voyage as would best answer certain purposes to the States of America. You will receive this by the hands of John Phillips Merkle, Esq., and are to be governed by the following instructions during the present voyage, or until you receive orders from Congress. Mr. Bradford will require bills of lading of the cargo from you, for the entire cargo on board the Dispatch, consigned to the above J. P. Merkle, Esq. (who is to go a passenger), at her discharging port in Europe, with bills of lading you are to sign, receive Mr. Merkle on board, assist him in providing sea stores, and then proceed with the utmost diligence for the coast of France, avoiding most carefully all vessels at sea, and put into the first convenient port you can make in that kingdom — Nantes or Bordeaux may perhaps be the safest. You must then deliver Mr. Merkle any part of the cargo he may find it convenient to sell, or the whole of it if he chooses it. We enclose Mr. Bradford a packet directed to Messrs. Samuel and J. H. Desopment, merchants, in Bordeaux. Mr. Bradford will deliver that packet to you, and we require your utmost care of it. Should you have the misfortune to be taken, you must throw it overboard slung with a weight, that will sink it, for on no account must this fall into the hands of our enemies. On the contrary if you get safe into Bordeaux, deliver it yourself to Messrs. Delop. If you go into any other port, forward it to them by post, or special conveyance as you may think good is safest and best. You must also advise these gentlemen what steps you take, as Mr. Merkle intends to order you for and desire them to write you a few lines telling you how to direct letters to Silas Deane, Esq., so that they will certainly fall into your hands. We expect Mr. Merkle will direct you to proceed from France to Amsterdam, and you must obey his orders, delivering to him the rest of the cargo at any port he may desire. He is not to pay any freight, but will supply you with all things necessary for the brig, and money to pay charges. For all you receive in money, stores, &c. you will warrant him proper receipts, and when you have discharged entirely the present cargo, you are to receive from him all such goods, wares, merchandise, arms, and ammunition as he may think proper to ship, granting him bills of lading for what he puts on board. We also give you leave to arm the brig in the most complete manner with as many 3-pounder cannon, swivills, blunderbusses, muskets, cutlasses, &c. as may be proper for such a vessel. You may also ship as many good seamen as you can conveniently accommodate, obtaining them on the best terms in your power. Lay in as a storable stock of provisions, a sufficient quantity of ammunition, &c., the cost and charges of all of which Mr. Merkle will defray, taking your receipts. Whilst this business is transacting, you will write immediately after your arrival at the port where it is to be done to Messrs. Saml. & J. H. Delop of Bordeaux and also to Silas Deane, Esq., if you obtain from them in time his address tell them to direct letters to you, and when you expect to sail. And we expect you will receive back from them letters and packets for us. If you do the utmost care must be taken of them. Don't let them be seen by any person whatever. Stow them with a weight ready for sinking, and if taken, be sure to let them go overboard in time; but we hope you will have better fortune and bring them safe. When your vessel is completely fitted, the cargo on board, and you have received your despatches from Mr. Merkle, you are then to put out to sea, and make the best of your way to America. We think it best not to fix on any particular port for you to aim for, but leave you at liberty to push into the first safe harbor you can make, in any of the United States of America, and on your arrival apply to the Continental agent there be one at or near that place, if not, to the persons in authority there, desiring their advice and assistance to forward with the utmost expedition to us, all the letters, packets, &c., you bring. You will also write us the state and condition of your vessel, and we shall return orders for your further proceedings. We send herewith a commission, a book of regulations respecting captures, &c., and a list of Continental agents, for your government if you should take any prizes. But you are to remember prizes are not your object. We wish you to make an expeditious and safe voyage, and for this reason we desire you will make all possible despatch, both at sea and in port. We expect you will be careful of the brig, her stores, and materials, allow your people plenty of good provisions, but suffer no waste, and be as frugal as is consistent with true economy in your expenses and charges. These things being observed will recommend you to the governing powers in America, and in time your utmost ambition may be gratified, provided merit leads the way to promotion. If any American masters or mates of ships, or seamen, want passages, you may accommodate them free of any charge of expense. Probably Mr. Merkle may find it proper to make your vessel a French or Dutch bottom, and clear you out for the West Indies. In such case you will do what is best for you, and please him during this voyage. We are, Sir, your humble servants,

B. FRANKLIN,
BENJAMIN HARRISON,
ROBERT MORRIS."

Vexatious delay seems to have attended the voyage from the outset. Capt. Stephen<sup>9</sup> before his departure wrote John Bradford of Boston, Continental agent, complaining at being detained after he was ready for sea, at great cost and loss. He carried a cargo of sperm oil, fish, and potash loaded by Mr. Bradford, and the oil which composed a large portion was leaking from the barrels. Mr. Bradford replied from Boston, Aug. 25, 1776, that the great secret of their long detention was the non-arrival of Samuel Adams with the passenger, Mr. Merkle, who went out with him as government agent. The Despatch sailed from Salem, Ms., Sept. 22, 1776, and proceeded to Townsend, Maine, and sailed thence in 38 days to Bordeaux, France, arriving Nov. 10, 1776, being the first National vessel to exhibit the new flag in that harbor. The sympathies of the French being warmly enlisted in our favor, her arrival was an event of great public interest, and Capt. Cleveland was cordially welcomed and much feasted. From Capt. Stephen's letters it appears that Mr. Merkle was unable to furnish the cargo, and the vessel was detained 9 months waiting a return cargo. Capt. Stephen<sup>o</sup> wrote the agents of the American government in Paris, to Silas Deane (then in France), and to Dr. Franklin stating the facts, and complaining of the delay, and they aided him. By direction of his government he armed the Despatch with 8 four-pound cannon, 8 swivels, small arms, &c., and manned her with 40 men. Her cargo consisted of cannon, muskets, soldiers' clothing, and other munitions of war which were extremely valuable to his country. He left Bordeaux about July 31, 1777, arrived safely at Townsend, and learned that a British sloop of war had left the place on the morning of his arrival, and would probably be back that night, therefore he proceeded toward Boston bay, whence a sloop of war chased him into Salem, throwing a shot over him as he passed Baker's Island, at the mouth of Salem Harbor, and nearly capturing him. He afterwards took the vessel safely to Boston. H. W. S.<sup>r</sup> Cleveland has still in his possession all the shipping papers of the Despatch with the autographs of the crew, also copies (in his handwriting) of his interesting letters to and the letters from Silas Deane, Benjamin Franklin, Arthur Lee (American Commissioners in Paris), and John Bradford (Govt. Agent in Boston), while he was in Bordeaux. This correspondence shows plainly from the outset how he was hampered and the object of his voyage nearly defeated by the dilatoriness of the agent who was sent out in charge of the cargo. The duty performed by Stephen<sup>s</sup> was one of immense value to the country, and the funds to buy these warlike articles were obtained by the Americans from the ocean and the forest, as at that time the bankers of Europe would of course give us no credit.

Allot's Bio. Dic., p. 22. "Before he sailed he had been promised the command of one of the 3 frigates then being constructed. But in consequence of his long delay in France others got the appointment, and his ambitious spirit would not suffer him to accept an inferior post."

He threw up his commission and did not go to sea again during the war, but was employed as agent for several priva-teers. The despondency resulting from the death of his wife was so great that he never recovered from its effects, and his property became reduced. He dwelt always at Salem, where he became a merchant. He lived many years on Federal st., and died at No. 288 Mill st., a plain two-story wooden house still standing.

Mrs. DORCAS C. HILLER<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND wrote that he was "called in honor of his venerable and respected great maternal uncle, Stephen Sewall. The father of my husband, and the brother of my mother, it becomes me to be doubly respectful in speaking of his character, yet truth is the essence of all that is valuable in such a statement as this, nor must love or respect induce me to flatter even the dead.

With a person and face formed to attract attention, he possessed in an eminent degree those fascinating powers of conversation which are a general passport into all society.

At home and abroad, in humble life and in courtly companies, he was equally capable of pleasing by his unaffected yet polished manners, his entertaining conversation, and his strongly marked benevolence of heart. Less obtrusive and with better judgment than his younger brothers he surpassed them in ardency of feeling, yet he fell below them in that never failing good humor and cheerfulness which rendered life a garden to its latest period. With a sensibility too quick for repression and a pride too high for happiness,—disappointment at length obscured the bloom and brilliancy of his days and caused him to sink by degrees from the notice and remembrance of men whom he once delighted and inspired, and to end his life in obscurity and sorrow."

STEPHEN CLEVELAND and W. MARGARET are buried in the Charter st. Cemetery, Salem.

REV. AARON<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND was one of the most prominent characters of the Cleveland family. It was early perceived that he was a boy of more than ordinary mental endowments, his father intended him for college and he began to fit himself. (We have in our possession A Late Grammar. For the particular instruction of all young gentlemen, either at schools, colleges, or the universities, or privately educated. By Giles Jacob, Gent., 1754. On the fly leaf is the autograph, 3/6 AARON CLEVELAND, His Book, 1769, Jan. 19, bought at Newhaven. This leaf and the sheep cover contain 5 of his signatures, some written Cleaveland.) His father died and the estate of a missionary left him but little. Aaron<sup>5</sup> was apprenticed to a hatter of Haddam. While learning his trade he devoted all his leisure to study, and at age of 19 he wrote the poem, The Philosopher and Boy, first pub. with a biographical sketch of him in Charles W. Everest's Poets of Connecticut, 1843. As the production of an apprentice whose days were devoted to hard mechanical work, it is a remarkable poem, evincing a love of nature and lively descriptive powers. Judging from his account of himself as a botanic enthusiast, he was not without pretensions to scientific attainment. About Aug., 1764, he was drafted into the English army and served 6 months. Soon after becoming 21 he was a journeyman employed by Jeremiah Clement at Norwich. About 1768 he set up for himself at Bean Hill, Norwich Port. Concerning his residence on Bean Hill,

Caulkins' Norwich, 51 — AARON CLEVELAND, a man of wonderful versatility of talent, was another noted dweller upon the hill. He carried on the hat business, but at the same time wrote poems, essays, lectures, and sermons upon all the prominent subjects of the day, social, political, religious. His speeches in public and his private harangues, his exhortations at meetings, and his stirring articles in the newspapers were always thrown in to swell the current in favor of religious truth and human freedom."

He spent the central and most active part of his life at Norwich. He was a ready writer, and contributed to The Norwich Packet and the Conn., Mass., N. H., and R. I. Weekly Advertiser for 1773 many articles that had the ringing sound of genuine patriotism, one of which was a sermon upon the text, "Touch not mine anointed" — Ps. 105 : 15. His argument was designed to prove that "not kings, but the people are the anointed of God, and the kings are forbidden to touch them," thus reversing the interpretation that had been given to the passage by others. It was further maintained that a free people are touched when their laws and civil rights are infringed or violated. He was the first writer in Conn. to question the lawfulness of slavery and to argue against it. Several communications on this subject in the Packet doubtless came from his pen. At this time and for years he coincided his views with the Universalists, and became a leader in that denomination, though he attended the Orthodox Congregational Church. His pastor uttered some words apologetic of slavery, whereupon Aaron<sup>5</sup> wrote his 680 line Poem against Slavery in reply to the sentiments advanced from the pulpit. The poem, a production of which his descendants may justly be proud, was published, Norwich, 1775. In 1779, he was elected a member from Norwich to the House of Representatives, and introduced a bill into the Legislature for the abolition of slavery, having been elected for this very purpose, as the popular sentiment was then in favor of immediate emancipation. He was made Chairman of Committee to consider the disagreements between the Senate and the House on the petition of Great Prince, Little Prince, &c., slaves who had deserted to the enemy and desired to be made free on condition of serving the American interest again. This shows his views of slavery as known and understood, for the house in appointing him was in favor of the prayer of the petitioners, but the Senate non-concurred. He declined a re-election, having found the duties of the position to conflict too much with business.

In 1778 — Caulkins' Norwich, 300 — Benjamin Huntington, Dr. Theophilus Rogers, Dr. Elisha Tracy, AARON CLEVELAND, Jonathan Huntington, and Nathaniel Niles, some of the choice spirits of Norwich, were a committee upon a memorial to Assembly praying for a just system of taxation and representation. The following letter, which has recently gone the rounds of the press, affords a pleasant glimpse of his characteristics here reproduced with the original spelling and capitals:

NORWICH, CT., May 1, 1780.

DEAR BROTHER — I rec'd your kind favor by Capt. Lord, who advised me to send back the rum and sugar and by no means receive it, as you wilfully omitted sending the third ingredient, without which punch could not be made — but as a Prize has since arrived at New London with a plenty of lemons I shall e'en conclude to keep what you sent me. Indeed my friend Lord advised me to do so for the above reason. I should, however, be glad to know in your next whether the sugar is to go with the rum or the tea, as a dispute arises betwixt my wife and myself about the matter. We readily agreed that the spirits was for my use and the tea for hers — the sugar I am willing to divide but she says 'twill spoil the shape of the loaf, and by my troth there is no withstanding such a weighty argument. But not to trifle I expect to convoy Aunt Porter to Boston the latter end of this month and if mother has a mind to come up here I wish she would be at Mr. Higginson's as I don't expect to go myself, otherwise I could fetch her from Salem. I shall send by some good hand — Aunt Porter and my wife, desire abundantly to be remembered to you and wife and a little to the old bachelor Bill. [his brother]. They are all desper't glad of their handkerchiefs and return a 'nation deal of thanks. In the greatest hurry.

Yours afftly,

AARON CLEVELAND.

To Capt. STEPHEN CLEVELAND,
In Salem, Mass.

He was engaged altogether 25 years or more in business, continuing at Guilford, Conn. There his partners or business successors were at different periods (as we are informed by Hon. Charles J. Hoadly, State Librarian of Connecticut), Thomas Tilestone (d. 1837, a. 90, deacon S. Cong. chh., Hartford), Oliver Phelps, Joseph Rogers, and Jeremy Hoadley (d. 1847, a. 71), the youngest of them, who came to Hartford and was in business 1806, grandfather to Mr. Charles Jeremy Hoadly. In 1793 Aaron<sup>6</sup> and s., George<sup>6</sup>, removed to Norwich Landing to manufacture hats more largely, but within a week a disastrous fire consumed their factory property.

The well known poem of Aaron<sup>5</sup> is so relevant to genealogical research that it is here given verbatim from the original manuscript:

A BURLESQUE ON THE PRIDE OF FAMILY BLOOD, written after hearing a conversation on the subject: "Genus et proavos et quod non fecimus ipsi Vix ea nostra voco."

I am a DS-ETH of flow in my veins,
 And a COON-CH, in turn, my brains;
 For a CLEVELAND, PORTER, SEWALL, WATERS,
 I had my "Eth" distributed in quarters.
 My parents' parents' names I know,
 But I do not rather look on so.
 Compound and compound from the blood,
 I am now my own ancestral blood.
 But what my sires of old time were,
 I neither wish to know nor care.
 Some might be wise, and others fools;
 Some might be tyrants, others tools;
 Some might be rich, and others led;
 Some might be white, and others black;
 No matter what in days of yore,
 Since they are known and sung no more,
 The name of CLEVELAND I must wear,
 Which his me poor fumbling first might bear.
 PORTER, I'm told, from Scotland came,
 A funny bard of ancient time;
 SEWALL, an English derivation,
 Perhaps some outcast from the nation;
 WATERS, an Irishman, I ween,
 Straight roundabout from Aberdeen —
 Such is my heterogeneous "blood,"
 A mottled mixture, bad and good;
 Each blood aspires to rule alone,
 And each in turn ascends the throne,
 And rules till others tear him down.
 Each change must twist about my brains,
 And move my tongue in different strains;
 My mental powers are captive led,
 And whim or wisdom rules the head.
 My character, no one can know,
 For none I have while things are so,
 I'm something, nothing, wise or fool,
 As suits the blood which haps to rule.

When CLEVELAND reigns, I'm thought a wit,
 In making words the funny bit;
 In social glee and humorous song,
 I harm the fools that round me throng;
 But soon, perhaps, this blood is down,
 When PORTER, next may wear the crown,
 Now and is calm, discreet, and wise,
 Whatever I do, white'er advise,

What common sense and wisdom teach,
 Direct my action — form my speech;
 The wise and good now with me stay,
 While laughing fools keep far away;
 But soon, alas! — this happy reign
 Must, for some other, change again,
 SEWALL, perhaps, may next bear rule,
 I'm then a philosophic fool!
 With Jefferson I correspond,
 And soar with him the stars beyond,
 While every fibre of the brain
 To sense profound I nicely strain,
 And then arise beyond the ken
 Of common sense and common men.
 Wise fools may soar themselves above,
 And dream in rapturous spheres they move
 But airy castles must recoil,
 And all their imagery despoil.
 Thus great was I till SEWALL'S crown
 About my head came tumbling down.
 But who comes next? alas! 't is WATERS
 Rushing fearless to head-quarters.
 He knows no manners, nor decorum,
 But elbows headlong to the forum,
 Unequith and odd, abrupt and bold,
 Untaught, unreachable, uncontrolled,
 Devoid of wisdom, sense or wit,
 Not one thing right he ever hit,
 Unless by accident — not skill,
 He blundered right, against his will —
 Such am I now, no transmigration
 Can sink me to a lower station.
 Come, PORTER, come, depose this clown
 And once for all assume the crown.
 If aught in SEWALL'S blood you find
 Will make your own still more refined,
 If found in CLEVELAND'S blood a trait
 To aid you in the affairs of state,
 Select such parts, but spurn the rest,
 Never to rule my brains or breast;
 Of WATERS' blood expel the whole,
 Let not one drop pollute my soul.
 Then rule my head, then rule my heart,
 From folly, weakness, wit apart;
 With all such qualities I'll dispense,
 And only give me common sense.

His poetry is written in old-fashioned octosyllabics, but he considered verse-making a frivolous practice. Notwithstanding this, our American poets, Rt. Rev. Arthur Cleveland<sup>7</sup> Cox +3258 and Edmund Clarence<sup>7</sup> Stedman +8722, are among his descendants.

In 1702 the views of Aaron<sup>5</sup> upon religious subjects underwent an entire change, and he embraced with zeal the orthodox system. One evening he was boiling hat bodies, and the kettle made a loud report, putting out the fire; next morning no water remained. The brick work was removed, but no crack was found in the kettle, which was afterward sold as sound. This he considered a command to give up business. He had for some time desired to enter the ministry. He studied theology with Walter King of Norwich, and in 1794 the church chose him Deacon. In 1797 he was licensed to preach. He went as missionary to the new settlements in Vermont. He preached for a season, in 1799, at Canaan, st. N. H., was invited to settle, but the Norwich Association refused assent, telling him he was too large a man to be wasted among the pine forests of N. H. In 1800 he was settled in Braintree, Vt. For a year or two he labored as a missionary at Royalton, Vt. From Nov., 1803, to Oct., 1804, he was pastor of the Congregational Church, Wethersfield, Society of Newington, between the long pastorates of Revs. Joshua Belden and Joab Brace, and preached 4th July sermon, 1804. [See Hartford Courant, July 18, 1804.] He lived at W. Hartford and then Hartford, Conn., chiefly during rest of life.

Conn. Register, New London, Printed by Samuel Green—unsettled ministers and licentiates from the several associations: Rev. Aaron Cleveland, Wethersfield, 1807. Hartford, 1813; Suffield, Hartford co., Conn., 1814.

A narrative on the subject of Missions for 1807, of the Missionary Society of Conn., p. 3—Last spring and summer Rev. AARON CLEVELAND performed a mission of 17 weeks in the same field, preached 62 sermons in 25 towns, in 10 of which churches have been formed. He administered the Lord's Supper, baptized, attended funerals, visited, &c.

His chief characteristics were ardent piety, great earnestness, sincere love of truth, much exuberance of animal spirits, and a most ready wit. He was a favorite in every circle. In politics he was of the school of Washington, Jay, and Hamilton, and zealously supported the Federal cause, perhaps not without the prejudice which ranked all Jeffersonians with French fatalists. A characteristic anecdote is frequently told of him. Riding on horseback, between Middletown and Durham, one Sunday morning, deeply meditating his sermon, he stopped at the brook which bounds the two towns to water his horse. A young man reined up opposite him to give his own horse a drink. "Good morning, Mr. Priest," said the stranger roughly. "Good morning, Mr. Democrat," replied Mr. Cleveland, courteously. "How did you know I was a Democrat?" "Pray why did you take me for a minister?" "By your dress." "And I knew you were a Democrat by your ad-dress." (This event is illustrated in Recollections of a Lifetime, by Samuel Griswold Goodrich ("Peter Parley"), 1850, p. 190.)

He performed missionary services in Hartford co. and vicinity, preaching in all the towns. In March, 1815, he delivered, at Colchester, 2 sermons on Peace, which were published, and soon re-published in England. [See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV.] He left behind him a stainless and beloved name. He died suddenly while visiting a son-in-law in New Haven, and lies buried in the beautiful cemetery there. His monumental inscription:

"This monument is erected in memory of the Rev. AARON CLEVELAND, late of Norwich, in this state, who died at New Haven, Sep. 21, 1815, aged 71. If piety to God, made manifest by good works in all the various relations of life, merits from Christians love and respect, then Christians should have loved him when living, should love to dwell on his praise now he is gone."

"Doreas was the flower and pride of the family. It is not alone from her relations I have heard the eulogies of this incomparable woman of noble character and fascinating powers. The first scholars and most sensible men of the town, made my grandmother's house a constant place of rendezvous, in order to enjoy the charms of her beauty and conversation. Her sound sense, ready wit, exquisite humor and descriptive talent, added to her unaffected piety, sweetness of temper, and indescribable grace and beauty rendered her the joy and boast of all her acquaintance. But alas!—those charms were not destined to delight for any long period the circle they illuminated. At the age of twenty she sunk under a lingering disease and sought in the arms of death a happier state of being." Doreas<sup>3</sup> had a remarkable vision of the burial of her bro. George<sup>3</sup>; see + 360.

He was thought to be the flower of the boys, was handsome and finely endowed, and was remarkable for the sweetness of his temper, which in a family naturally disposed to nervous excitement was valuable for its rarity as well as its intrinsic worth.

Connected with the death of this youth, one of the marvelous stories of the family is related, for we have been a family of dreamers and seers. After he sailed his sister Dorcas suffered from disease which finally ended her life. She then dwelt adjoining the burying ground. On a fine summer evening a party of young friends were assembled around this fading beauty, when suddenly she started up and hastening to the window exclaimed "Why look at that funeral!" Her companions followed — but seeing nothing, enquired "Where — where is it?" She pointed to the burying ground saying "There — don't you see it, — how strange they should have no pall upon the coffin, — nor that they shouldn't even have painted it. — It is a white pine coffin without any covering and borne by four sailors." "But where do you see it?" again asked her companions with one voice, "for we do not see it."

"Don't see it!" — exclaimed the alarmed invalid — "open your eyes and look straight forward and you can't help seeing. They are now just passing by that black woman who is milking the cow."

But they all declared they could see nothing but the woman and her cow, and the poor sick girl thinking they were trying to tease her grew vexed, whereupon they assured her in all seriousness that they had seen nothing of the funeral she described. Dorcas still pointed them out, — saw them put the coffin in the grave and retire, — and then sat down and burst into tears and declared it was her brother George's funeral she had seen, — and it is asserted by the whole sisterhood that she wrote a memorandum of the vision, and that soon after the vessel returned and it was ascertained from the Captain that George had died at Havana of yellow fever and was buried precisely in the manner described by his sister, — being carried to his grave by four seamen, on the very day she had seen it.

" To the Hon. J. C. Calhoun, Esq., Secretary at War, at Washington.

Sir: Agreeably to your statement of May 11, 1820, respecting pensioners I beg leave to make to your Honor a statement of some of the military services performed by myself during the revolution. On April 19, 1775, it is well known the battle at Lexington took place, and the sound of war spread with the rapidity of lightning through our country. I was at that time a young man of 21, Sergeant in the Light Infantry company in Wrentham, 27 miles from Boston, the seat of war. This Company was com. by Capt. Oliver Pond. On April 10, I marched with this Co. to Roxbury, and enlisted under Capt. Pond as a Sergeant for the term of eight months. We were put under com. of Col. Joseph Reed, of Uxbridge, Massachusetts; which Regiment was afterwards known as the 13th Regt. U. S. In. I continued in this Regt. 8 months, according to my term of enlistment. January 1, 1776, I re-enlisted into the same co. and Regt. as a Sergt. for the term of 1 year. April 1, 1779, I marched from Roxbury to New York, under the com. of Gen. Washington. In August following, I was in the action on Long Island, under Lord Stirling; at which time our Co. suffered severely, both in killed and wounded. Lord Stirling and the right wing of his army were made prisoners. The left wing, in which I was placed, by the skillful manœuvre of Gen. Washington, made good their retreat in the twilight of the morning to York Island. Sept. 6, following, I was detached, and put under com. of Capt. Gleason, of the 6th Regt. The next day I was in an action under Capt. Gleason on Harlem Heights on N. Y. Island, n. King's Bridge, in which our brave Capt. fell, and the Co. suffered very great loss. Sept. 8 I again encountered the enemy in an action at East Chester, under com. of Capt. Walbridge of 13th Regt.; at which time our company suffered the loss of 7 killed, 3 wounded. On the 10th

I was engaged with the enemy at the White Plains, under Col. M'Dougale, of N. Y. The action continued 12 hours, when we were overpowered by superior numbers, and were obliged to retreat with considerable loss. October 3, Gen. Washington was pleased to appoint me an ensign. I did not, however, receive my commission until January 1, 1777, which commission on I have forwarded to the War Department. Our term of enlistment being for a year, would expire on the first day of 1777. Gen. Washington therefore, about the middle of Dec., 1776 (knowing that his men's time was nearly out), solicited volunteers for 6 weeks. I then volunteered, and called for officers to follow me, when at this very depressed state of American affairs, 24 brave soldiers, in defence of their country's rights, stepped forward, altho' almost naked, and their feet bare and bleeding in the snow; exclaimed that they would follow me in vindication of their country's rights wherever I should see fit to lead them. We were then at Peekskill, N. Y., on the margin of Hudson's river. After three days' march I found my men's feet lacerated by the ice and snow, and bleeding in a shocking manner, in-somuch that I found it impossible to continue the march in that situation. I then took from my pocket the last Dollar, purchased two raw hides and gave them to my men, of which they made moccasins, and so were enabled to pursue their march. We then continued our march to the forks of the Delaware, from which we went to Corliss Ferry, on the Delaware. We next marched upon Trenton, where we attacked and captured a large body of Hessians, 900 prisoners was the fruit of this brilliant affair. This happened about the 26th of Dec., 1776. Immediately after this, a reorganization of the army took place. I was put into Capt. Nathan Goodales' co, 3th Massachusetts Regt., com. by Col. Rufus Putnam. In March, 1777, we joined the Northern Army, com. by Gen. Gates, and I was with that Gen. in his retreat from Skensborough to Fort Edward, and the Half Moon. When we had retreated as far as Fort Edward I was sent out by Gen. Gates on a scout to Fort George, 14 miles through a wilderness. On my return to camp, the Indians having received information of my route, had an ambuscade two mile before we arrived at Camp, and there fired upon us, and killed 1 Sergeant and 6 privates. I instantly charged the Savages, and they retired. We then took up our dead and wounded and carried them to the camp. Sept. 2 Gen. Gates sent for me to his quarters, and informed me that a Hessian guard was posted abt. 2 miles from his left wing; to ascertain the situation and numbers of which he said would be only sport for me to do. On the night of Sept. 3 I took a party of men and went out and took their two sentinels, and then their guard, consisting of a Lieut. and 18 men, without the loss of a man. On the first of October following, I was notified by Gen. Gates to repair to his quarters, which I immediately did. Upon my arrival he told me that the same conduct that took a Hessian guard would undoubtedly conquer a British guard. There is (and he) a British guard posted about one mile in front of my line. The situation of the guard, together with the ground, I was informed of yesterday by an Indian. The ensuing night, therefore, I took with me a party consisting of 30 men, and went and brought off the British guard without any essential loss on our side, 3 men only being slightly wounded with the bayonet. Oct. 5 I was detached and put under Capt. Shaves, and annexed to Col. Morgan's Regt. of Riflemen, and posted on the left of the army. On the morning of the 7th, a guard was sent out from our Regt. of Riflemen about 100 rods. About 11 o'clock this guard was attacked by a small body of British troops. I immediately received orders from Col. Morgan, with 30 men, to support the guard, with orders to maintain the ground if possible; if not, to retreat to him in good order. Having arrived at the scene of action I found the enemy to be vastly superior in numbers. We fought them a few moments, lost two men, and then retired to the Regt. in good order. The action soon became general through our line. We fought from 11 o'clock A. M. until the twilight of the evening, without the least cessation. Being among the light troops, I had frequently that day to contend with the British Grenadiers at the point of the bayonet; but they had constantly to recede before the charge of our brave troops. We encamped on the field of battle. In the night the British army retreated, leaving their dead and wounded on the ground. Never perhaps did embattled armies contend with greater obstinacy and perseverance. Our loss that day was 2 Commissioned officers and 17 privates killed out of our Company, and 19 wounded. Oct. 17 I was with my own Regt., com. by Col. Putnam, and had no command in the line, but was the bearer of the standard of the Regt. On this day our Regt., with the rest of the army, were engaged with the enemy about 3 hours. Our loss was considerable. Not long after, our intrepid Commander again drew up his troops, in order once more to give battle to the enemy; but Gen. Burgoyne, dreading the event of another conflict, was glad to sign the articles of capitulation. From Oct. 27, 1777, to May 15, 1778, nothing more than the common fatigues and hardships of armies happened to me, being only engaged in a few skirmishes, too trifling to mention in a statement of this kind. On May 15, being then encamped at Crumpond, in New York State, I received a line from Gen. Washington, requesting me to repair to his quarters immediately. I speedily and cheerfully obeyed the summons; and having arrived at the General's quarters, he addressed me to the following effect: "Friend Blake, I have a pleasant tour of duty allotted to you. Col. Delancey, with a detachment of Refugees, is encamped near King's Bridge, about 15 miles from my quarters. Take, therefore, a party of men and capture the Col. and bring him together with his men, to my camp." Having obeyed the order, and taking with me 37 chosen men, proceeded with a forced march to Delancey's station. We were challenged by his sentinels about 12 hours before daylight; which having taken without opposition, we instantly repaired to the house where the Col. and his troops were quartered. Having arrived at the house, I ordered my men to force the door with the butt of their muskets; and on entering the house I received a bayonet wound in my side, the mark of which I carry to this day. The Refugee guard cried out, "Who in the name of God are you?" I replied, "Black Jack, guard of the 5th Massachusetts Regt." Lay down your arms instantly, or you will all fall beneath the bayonet of my soldiers.' I took without further opposition 6 officers and 20 private; also Col. DeLaney's servant. The Col. himself being absent, escaped capture. I also took from a neighboring stable, 8 horses and their equipments, belonging to Col. De Worm's corps of Hessian Cavalry. I now set out with my prisoners on my return to camp, and after proceeding at a rapid march about 6 miles, was overtaken by a large body of Col. De Worm's cavalry, consisting of 200 horse, who made repeated attempts to force my guard, but all was in vain. Having formed my men into close column, we kept up a scattering but incessant fire, which made the numerous and violent charges of the enemy ineffectual. I succeeded in arriving at camp in safety, with all my prisoners; but found myself much exhausted with the fatigues of the night, and the loss of blood. I had 7 men wounded, which we mounted on horseback, and so brought them in safety to the camp. This service called forth the public thanks of Gen. Washington in my behalf.

In July, 1780, I was with Gen. Wayne at the storming of the fort at Stony Point, and had the honor of commanding one of his advance guards. It may perhaps be unnecessary to inform your honor that our arms were crowned with the most signal success; and that the whole garrison, consisting of 500 men, became prisoners to the Americans, with a small loss on either side.

Thus, sir, have I given you, in as concise a manner as possible, a history of the most important services which I rendered my Country during her struggle with Great Britain.

Oct. 11, 1780, I received an honorable discharge from Col. Harrison, Gen. Washington's Secretary. Gen. Washington manifested much reluctance in consenting to my resignation, as I had been with him several years, and had ever been found a faithful and successful officer. My resignation did violence to my own feelings and inclinations. It was with much regret that I left the service of my beloved Country. But filial duty and considerations triumphed over every other consideration. My parents were sickly, were far advanced in life, and were also in destitute circumstances, became very anxious for me to retire from the service, in order to afford them some assistance in their necessitous situation; it being absolutely impossible for me to grant them any pecuniary aid while I remained in the army, my pay and emoluments (owing to the depreciation of our paper currency) being scarcely sufficient for my own maintenance. I accordingly complied with what I considered my duty, and so left the army.

From the commencement of the war to the date of my resignation, in 1780, I performed every tour of duty assigned me, being always in health, and ever ready to meet my fate.

When I entered the service I had $150 which I had accumulated by my industry. When I left it, I was not worth a dollar. In April, '82, I was married. In '87 I removed from Boston to Penobscot River (Maine). I went back 6 miles from the river into the wilderness, and the same distance from any inhabitant, purchased 100 acres of wild land upon credit where I now live, and where I have suffered so many hardships and privations, and by incessant labor accumulated a small estate, which will be set forth to your honor in a schedule which will be herewith transmitted. I am now 67 years old, and my health, owing to my age, and the hardships and fatigues of my life, is very much impaired, so that labor is no longer practicable. I have 4 sons, who have all become of age, and have left me.

I received a pension certificate from your Honor, dated Apr. 10, 1810, as an officer on the pension list, for services performed in the revolutionary war between the U. S. and Great Britain, the No. of which is 6102; and I cannot but hope and believe that your Honor will continue to me the small pittance, to cheer and make glad my few remaining days.

I am, dear sir, your Hon.'s friend and hum. Serv't. Very respectfully, [Signed] JNO. BLAKE."

He was a soldier in all his bearing, trained 1777-8, with the officers by Baron Von Steuben, Maj. Gen. of Drills. He went from Wrentham, Ms., Apr., 1786, to Penobscot River country Dist. of Me., and spent the season surveying the unexplored region opposite Bangor with a view of bringing in a colony. In 1787 he entered this region with his wife and 2 children, built a log cabin S. of Potash Hill 6 mi. E. of the river), near the Congregational church in Holden (then Orrington), afterward Brewer. It was named by him New Wrentham Settlement. Here he led a busy, laborious life, caring for the white settlement and for the Penobscot Indians, whose Act. he was on the part of Ms. for 30 years. He represented, 1800-1821, the Eastern Dist., Hancock Co. General Court of Ms. He held military commissions from all the Governors of Ms. who promoted him successively from Lieut. in 1786 to Maj. Gen. in 1816. In 1799 he was appointed by Pres. Adams, Capt. 15th Inf. U. S. A., under Lt. Gen. Washington. The war of 1812 was very trying to Gen. Blake, who could not give himself orders, and of course, as his papers show, received no campaign orders, not even to use precautions against surprise. While Gen. Jackson was fighting at New Orleans, Blake, then Brigadier General, was working on his farm. The Penobscots were all bound in 1812 ties to him by the justice and liberality of Ms. Suddenly the British Admiral, Aug. 27, 1814, sails from Halifax with 8 men-of-war and 4,000 Waterloo veterans, bound to valley of the Penobscot to annex it to British N. A. Brig.-Gen. Blake was present at the battle of Hampden, Sep. 3, 1814, where the very British battalions who conquered Napoleon turned the scale against us. A Court of Inquiry approved of Brig.-Gen. Blake's conduct and he was promoted by

Gov. Caleb Strong, 1816, to Maj. Gen., 10th Div., Mass. In 1814 Gen. Blake broke his arm by a fall on ice, and in 1831 fractured his femur, but partially recovered. After holding every office in the gift of his people, he was chosen, 1829, Pres. of Brewer Temperance Soc. From that day intoxicating drinks were banished from the sideboard of his mansion. No pension was allowed Gen. Blake till 1832, though in the Revolution he had spent his last dollar for several hundred laid by to purchase land, in buying green hides to make neccessaries to protect the bleeding feet of his men, not one cent of which was ever refunded him.

The close of the General's life was peaceful and happy, surrounded by children and grandchildren. His remains repose on the mound-like eminence overlooking New Wrentham, now Holden.

Rev. NATHAN<sup>b</sup> CLEVELAND, a Baptist clergyman, was ordained at Yarmouth, N. S., June 29, 1808.—Bell's His. of the Baptists, 262—

"This Evangelical minister was a very early associate of the Fathers. As he grew to manhood he became the subject of redeeming mercy, and felt constrained by love to Christ and to the souls of men to proclaim salvation in the name of Jesus to those who were living 'without God and without hope in the world.'

"After itinerating for some time through different sections of the Province, he settled as pastor of the church in Onslow. In that connection he continued to labor, and there was an encouraging increase under his ministry. About this time he removed to Hopewell, N. B., where he continued his ministry with the people for 16 years, with commendable zeal and with considerable success. Then, feeling the infirmities of age pressing heavily upon him, he retired from active labour in the ministry and became a resident of Alma." Up to the year 1817, within the present limits of the Eastern Baptist Association, he was the only ordained minister.

Rev. J. M. Cramp, D.D., wrote his obituary for The Christian Messenger.

ABIGAIL<sup>o</sup> was of a most amiable disposition and a thrifty housewife. Her love of music was intense, and her voice was remarkable for its sweetness, power, and compass. She was very kind to her aged parents, watched over and nursed them most tenderly and untiringly in their declining years. Rev. Samuel Hovey, near the close of the Revolution was drafted into the army, and his son Daniel, though but 17 years of age, was accepted as a substitute.

It appears that when Samuel Hovey removed from Windham, Conn., to Grafton co., N. H., he purchased and settled upon what is known as "Grant's Island" in the Connecticut river, between Lyme, in Grafton county, N. H., and Thetford, in Orange county, Vt. It contains about 30 acres of arable land, free from stones, and the soil very fertile. Here he had early erected a comfortable dwelling house, barn, etc., and here the family dwelt and prospered until after the youngest child was born. From old records of the Congregational or Presbyterian Society, Lyme —

"Lime, Dec. 3, 1784, then Abigail Hovey, the wife of Samuel Hovey, by the consent of the Brethren was dismissed from this chh. to join any chh. of Christ which she might choose for her better edification.

Attest:

WM. CONANT, Pas."

"Lime, April 1, 1785, then Samuel Hovey, a member of this chh. was recommended to the chh. of Christ in Brookfield."

From the same records it appears that "Samuel Hovey and Abigail Hovey were admitted to the chh. at Lime, June 2, 1782," and on "Nov. 11, 1784, six more ruling elders chosen," among which number is "Samuel Hovey"; showing him to have been an active member in the ecclesiastical organization at "Lime." His connection with the Baptists was after his removal to Brookfield, Vt. He cultivated successfully a farm, and never took any compensation for his ministerial labors.

In the burying-ground on "East Hill," Brookfield, Vt., may be found the stones which mark the graves of this worthy pioneer and his wife, bearing the following inscriptions :

"Elder Samuel Hovey, Preacher of the Gospel, died May 12, 1834, aged 93 years and 2 mo.

"Mrs. Abigail Hovey, wife of Elder Samuel Hovey, died June 2, 1832, aged 75 years and 10 mo."

Around them are the graves of many of their kindred and descendants, including children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and the living may well learn a lesson from the lives and characters of Samuel Hovey and Abigail Cleveland.

"To rescue from oblivion, even for a brief period, the memory of those we love, is a solace and a pleasure. This sentiment prompts me to pen a brief sketch of my grandmother, Abigail Cleveland, wife of Rev. Samuel Hovey.

"In 1771, the family removed to Norwich, Vt., and one year thereafter her aged mother died.

"In 1774, they removed to Brookfield, Vt., bringing with them her aged and infirm father, for whom she filially cared till his death in 1777. Few daughters have been privileged to care for a parent as she for her father, his state of mind and body requiring almost constant attention, which was given lovingly and cheerfully. Her husband was much from home, laboring with the churches in adjoining towns, holding meetings in schoolhouses, dwelling houses and barns, for church edifices were in that new country few and far between. Her large family, which sometimes numbered sixteen persons, with the labor of clearing away forests and cultivating a large farm, manufacturing woolen and linen cloth for the family, was directed by her and her children. They planted a very large orchard, which remains to this day, built the first cider mill, and literally made the desert blossom. Many are the times she, her neighbors, and her children, have, on Sunday mornings, dressed themselves in their clean homespun clothing, and, taking their shoes in their hands, walked barefoot for miles to some neighboring town to join in public worship under the preaching of the husband, father and neighbor. No such thing as a carriage, or scarcely a decent carriage-road, was then and there known. 'Elder Hovey' never made charges for preaching, and sometimes when a nice little present was given him, he would ride his old horse towards home till he came to a home poorer than his own, then the present was sure to be left. In process of years the original log house gave place to a 'framed' one, a better barn was built, a school house soon followed, and thrifty New England homes multiplied on every side.

"Having reared all their children in habits of industry, morality and Christian principles, their old age is quiet and peaceful, as they sit in their snug little cottage, enjoying the fruit of their labor.

"Mrs. Hovey was eminently a woman of peace, possessing 'the soft answer that turneth away wrath,' always excusing when others accused; one of those who never have an enemy.

"Elder Hovey continued to preach to extreme old age, and I have his picture distinctly before my mind's eye, standing behind a table in our school house, his white hair falling over his shoulders, his ruddy face and full blue eyes; preaching to an assembly perhaps half of whom were his children and grandchildren.

The church edifice and cemetery occupy a part of what was the farm he bought on coming to Brookfield. In that most pleasant of rural burial places they sleep side by side; here sleep four of their children, and almost a multitude of their grandchildren and other relatives.

RUTH H. SPRAGUE."

And also, on the 8th of March, 1791, he sold and conveyed to Joseph Collins, physician, of Berlin, Vt., 160 acres of land "for the consideration of One hundred and fifty pounds, L. M."

He was lame from boyhood, from a fever sore, and became a shoemaker. All traces of him lost from 1791, when he left Brookfield, Vt., until found in Bethel ab. 1811, where he leased land from William Peck. Shortly afterward he rem. to Litchfield, Pa., and joined Zenas<sup>c</sup>.

They were both buried on the place of his son Zenas<sup>c</sup>, a few rods from the house, but no stone marks their resting-place now. RACHEL<sup>b</sup> was a large and stately woman, of indomitable pluck and courage, and a most industrious worker. At the burning of Royalton, Vt., by the Indians, in 1784, she and her children barely escaped with their lives, and concealed themselves in the forest hard by. She was separated for more than three weeks from her husband, and each supposed the other killed by the savages. The next child born to them (Theodotia) was marked by the terrible fright to which the mother had been subjected. They did not return to Royalton, but settled in Brookfield, some twelve or fifteen miles further to the northward, and about two miles from the place where Samuel Hovey located some six or seven years later.

In the old cemetery not far from the East Brookfield post-office are two gravestones, with the following inscriptions upon them :

"Mr. Oliver Hamblin, died Oct. 28, 1823, in the 74th year of his age."

"Rachel, widow of Oliver Hamblin, died Sept. 27, 1837, in her 85th year."

Oliver Hamblin was one of the charter members of the town of Brookfield, charter dated Aug. 5, 1781.

"My grandfather Hamblin moved from Connecticut to Vermont. He, with two other men and their families, were the first settlers in the eastern part of Brookfield, on "the Branch," as it was called. Soon after, the Indians became very troublesome, and the men always worked together, as they did not consider it safe to work alone. Grandmother was very timid. She took off her gold beads and her ear ornaments and put them into a pewter porringer and buried them in the cellar for fear the Indians would tear the rings from her ears. She lived in great fear of being taken by them. Indeed, she learned subsequently they had a narrow escape on one occasion. A man by the name of Johnson being captured by the Indians was held in custody for several months, and the chief of the tribe gave Johnson charge of some braves while on a scouting expedition. They saw grandfather and the other men at work while concealed on a hill above them, and begged of Johnson permission to go and kill the men, but he managed to restrain them. Soon after the Indians burnt Royalton, and grandfather and the others with their families started for Lebanon, N. H., some fifty miles distant. While making the hurried journey, they saw cattle with their tongues cut out and otherwise barbarously injured; feather beds emptied and burnt to a crisp; and two men murdered, whom they buried under an old log. But the party arrived safely at last in Lebanon, and staid there two years before it was deemed safe to return. A few years after grandfather's return he sold out the place and moved to a hill farm, where he and grandmother remained till their death. They were both hardworking, industrious people, and accumulated a good property.

"My grandmother was a good-looking woman, rather stout, and was greatly beloved by all who knew her. I well remember the linen thread she used to spin; it was as white as snow, and exquisitely fine. She used to make her muslin caps with it. She made me a present of some; and I still have one pair of linen pillow slips made from linen she spun and wove, all her own handiwork, and I shall always keep them. She was an excellent butter and cheese maker, and took care of the milk from ten cows the summer she was eighty, but after that she commenced to fail. She nearly lost her mind before her death at the age of 90. She was one of those cheerful, happy women — it was all sunshine with her. My mother resembled her very much in appearance, both having dark hair and blue eyes.

Very truly, etc.,

ABIGAIL H. HUSE."

PERSIS<sup>6</sup> was of small stature, fair complexion, raven black hair and black eyes. She was very ambitious, with no dower except her beauty, and her marriage into one of the aristocratic families of Conn. was bitterly opposed by some of her husband's relatives. She was a devoted wife and mother, though somewhat fretful as she grew in years; aided her husband to acquire a handsome property, and reared a large family to habits of energetic industry. Edward Payne was a farmer.

They are buried in the old cemetery some distance from the village, in the eastern part of the township. The inscriptions upon the marble are as follows:

"Edward Payne, died Jan. 19, 1845, aged 65 years. Erected by Oren Payne."

"Persis, wife of Edward Payne, died March 30, 1834, aged 82 years."

RUFUS<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND was of medium height, florid complexion, light curly hair, and blue eyes. He served as a soldier during the Revolutionary war, and paid his marriage fee in $100 of Continental currency.

Record of Connecticut Men in the War of the Revolution. Compiled under direction of the Adjutant-General, 87—8th regiment, 1775, Col. Jedediah Huntington; 5th company, Capt. Charles Ellsworth, East Windsor; Ensign, Barzillai Markham, Enfield; Corporal, RUFUS CLEVELAND, time enlisted, July 9, when discharged, Oct. 17. The regiment was stationed on the Sound until Sept. 14, and at Roxbury, Mass., to expiration of term, December, 1775.

Being employed by Capt. James Chamberlain upon his farm, he conveniently courted, and in due time married, his first wife, Miss Mollie, eldest daughter of his employer; and when his father-in-law rem. from Ellington, spring of 1782-3, to Warehouse Point, in E. Windsor, he accompanied them, remaining there until spring of 1787, when he rem. to Barkhamsted and purchased a farm on Wallen's Hill. Here his wife died in the autumn of 1807, of a fever contracted from nursing a neighbor's wife, and who also died of the same fever, which at that time prevailed as an epidemic in the neighborhood. Her kindness to the sick, and readiness to watch with and care for them at all times, made her greatly beloved, and her departure from earth was mourned as if a ministering angel had been taken away indeed. In the old burying-ground on the "Hill" may be seen the graves of this worthy couple, and the inscriptions upon the headstones placed there are as follows:

"In memory of Rufus Cleveland, who died Feb. 23, 1838, aged 82 years."

"In memory of Mrs. Mary Cleveland, wife of Rufus Cleveland, and daughter of Capt. James Chamberlain, who died Novem. 13, 1807, in the 40th year of her age.

Rufus Cleveland and wife Mary were members of the Congregational Church, and he and all his sons were, without exception, Whigs.

His second wife was buried in the cemetery at Winsted. The inscription on her tombstone is simply—

"Alice, wife of Rufus Cleveland, died Oct. 14, 1833."

He became dissatisfied with the Congregationalism of that period, and, with Gen. Jenks, William C. Warner, and others of like mind, organized a church parish for worship according to the forms of the mother Church of England, and was a devout and consistent churchman until his death. He was noted as a peacemaker, and was often selected an umpire or arbitrator to settle differences, and belligerent parties would end their quarrels by agreeing to leave the matter in dispute to Capt. Chamberlain.

Ephraim Pearson was a trader in Manchester. In the fall of 1787 he, with others, took a drove of swine to Boston, but, failing to dispose of them to their satisfaction, Mr. Pearson chartered a vessel to take his live stock to Halifax. Adverse gales drove the vessel out of her course, and she was captured by a Spanish privateer, and he taken to Algiers and sold into slavery. Nine years elapsed before he escaped and arrived in Savannah, Ga. His wife, after waiting his return seven years, mourned him as dead, and married again. Learning this fact from his brother, and exacting a sacred pledge that his whereabouts should never be revealed to her during his lifetime, he remarried in Savannah, opened a butcher's shop, and prospered for several years, when he died suddenly after a short illness. The pledge given was faithfully observed, and she knew nothing of the matter until after his decease. Timothy O'Brien was a farmer. No stone with the proper inscription marks her grave in Sherburne cemetery, though there is said to be one to the memory of her last husband.

OLIVER<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND of Hampton, N. Y., reported to have come from Killingworth, Middlesex co., Conn., to Fair Haven, 1777 [but Josiah<sup>6</sup> was b. in Fair Haven, 1761 or 1764—COMP.], and rem. to Hampton, then Greenfield. Various accounts state that he was nephew of ENOCH<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND + 189, and cousin to SOLOMON<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND + 535. Hence it is evident that he must have been son to JOSIAH<sup>4</sup> CLEVELAND, and that he named his first-born son in his honor.

Adams' Fair Haven 316—OLIVER CLEVELAND had a son Soloman. Hemenways' Vt. III: 672, being Adams' F. II—The charter of Fair Haven was granted at Manchester, Vt. Oct. 27, 1770, in consid. of £6930, signed at Arlington, Bennington co., Vt., by Gov. Thomas Chittenden, Apr. 26, 1782, OLIVER CLEVELAND, one of the original grantees and proprietors. 67;—OLIVER CLEVELAND, an active pioneer in the settlement and organization had made improvements before act of incorporation, and appears to be the only one of the original settlers who is represented in the charter. He had come from Killingworth, Conn., and sat down with other members of his father's family on what is now New York, or Hampton side of the river, then called "Greenfield," which it was at that time expected would be in Vermont, the State line or boundary between the two states not being as yet settled. While residing near the river, the road running close by the bank, instead of over the flat as now, he had commenced clearing the land which about this time became his home farm in Fair Haven. It extended from Poultney river to Poultney west line, and is said in a survey of 1746 to contain 205 acres, laid, all but 64 acres of it, on his own proprietary right. At his death the farm became divided among his sons, Joshua, Albert & James. James' part, ab. 80 acres, he sold in Nov., 1807. AL-

SOLOMON<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND resided at Pomfret. His old house, now standing, was built by *Capt. PUTNAM, June 25, 1892.

C. E. CHANDLER,—DEAR SIR: I hereby certify that I well remember your great-grandfather, Solomon Cleveland, who resided in Thompson (now Putnam) at the time of his death. He was a soldier in the war of the American Revolution.

I married his granddaughter, Frances Lee, and, after his death, his widow, Hannah Sharpe Cleveland, lived in my family and frequently related stories about her husband's experiences in the Revolutionary war.

His company were on the northern frontier and were once three days without rations. They finally came upon a cornfield, in which there was left a single pumpkin. This they stewed in an old crock, and, after providing those with sticks who had no jackknives, they were marched in single file past the pumpkin stew, taking each a mouthful. There proved to be enough to go around three times.

Attest: GILBERT CHANDLER [+5276].

Putnam, Conn., Standard, ab. Aug., 1892.—The remains of Solomon and Hannah Cleveland were taken from the old abandoned Pigeon Hill Cemetery at Putnam and removed to the new Putnam Cemetery, June 29, 1892.

Larned's Windham Co., II: 200, 578.—Mrs. HANNAH (SHARPE) CLEVELAND, the heroine of the Revolutionary "Pink Satin," a woman of rare intelligence and wonderful gift of language. Goods became abundant, 1780-1, brought into Norwich, Conn., by privateer or smuggler. A fair young fiancée [Hannah Sharpe] in Pomfret, who had been much troubled in reference to her wedding dress, was gladdened by the sight of a traveling merchant with the loveliest pattern of pink satin. But the cost was so enormous! The young girl knew what heavy burdens her father had borne, how much he had paid out for taxes, bounties, soldiers' clothing; how good money advanced by him had been repaid by worthless scrip, how strongly he and other patriots denounced these plunderers, but how could she resist this exquisite piece of goods which more than realized her highest aspiration. Woman's tact won the day and dress. She did not dare to ask the favor, but stealing into the room where the rough old father sat brooding in his armchair, she knelt before him, and, with pleading glance, held up the satin. Revolutionary fathers, though rough, were not adamant. The graceful tableau melted his heart; without a word placed in her hand forty silver dollars, and the ten yards of satin made the tastefullest of wedding dresses, also furnished a frontispiece for the wedding waistcoat of the bridegroom.

From an old newspaper :—

FUNERAL OF CAPT. CLEVELAND.

The remains of Capt. Josiah Cleaveland, the Revolutionary hero, whose death at the house of his friend, S. C. Hunt of Charlestown, we noticed on Saturday, were interred with military honors at Mount Auburn yesterday afternoon. The military escort consisted of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, Lieut.-Col. Thompson, the Columbian Guards of Charlestown, Capt. Joy, and the Washington Light Infantry of Boston, Capt. Lawrence. Brigadier-Generals Tyler of this city and Dana of Charlestown, with their respective staffs, were present in uniform. Also his honor, Lieut.-Gov. Childs, several members of the council, Hon. Wm. Parmenter, William Lawrence, Esq., and other respected citizens

At half-past 5 the body, with the civil portion of the funeral procession, arrived at the Episcopal church, Bow street, and the coffin was placed before the altar. It was of mahogany; and bore a simple silver plate, with the brief inscription—

“Capt. Josiah Cleaveland. Died June 30th, 1843. Aged 90 years.”

The Rev. Mr. Green read the Episcopal burial service, and an appropriate selection from the Scriptures, and this portion of the exercises was closed by singing the 124th hymn :—

“Hear what the voice from heaven declares
To those in Christ who die;
Relieved from all their earthly cares,
They'll reign with him on high.”

The reverend pastor now delivered a brief address, in the nature of a memoir of the deceased, and stated that he was born in Canterbury, Conn., in 1753. He joined the Connecticut volunteers under Gen. Putnam, and arrived with them at Bunker Hill the day before the battle. On the night of the 16th he had charge of a look-out and was stationed near the very spot where now stands the Episcopal church, to observe the motions of the British on the Boston side, and to give notice if they attempted a landing in Charlestown. Though not regularly commissioned on the 17th, he had a small command among the volunteers, and was so posted as to see the effects of the first discharge of the patriots on the most advanced line of the British; of the entire line, he said, only eight were able to stand after the first deadly fire of the Americans. At Dorchester Heights, when the British evacuated, he had a regular commission as ensign. He afterwards participated in all the principal battles of the Revolution, and rose to the rank of captain, having received his commission from Washington. After the war he returned to his farm. Subsequently he emigrated to Owego, N. Y. He was present at the laying of the corner stone of the monument, in 1825, and as soon as he made his appearance in the ranks of the Revolutionary soldiers, Lafayette instantly recognized him, and exclaiming—“My God, there is Capt. Cleaveland,”—he rushed towards him, and embraced him with the affectionate ardor of a French republican soldier. So deep and delightful an impression had the events of that day made on his mind, that he could not repress the desire to be also present at the ceremonies prepared in honor of the completion of the monument, and hence, at the advanced age of 90, he undertook the patriotic pilgrimage to the battle ground of his youth.

Among his papers were found the muster-roll of the company which he commanded in the Revolution, and also a list of the members of the Episcopal church, in which he was a communicant, in Owego—thus showing that what he most cherished in his last earthly thoughts were the achievement of his country's freedom, and the holy religion which had been his consolation and support throughout his eventful life.

After the services in the church, the body was replaced in the hearse, and the funeral cortege, under command of Col. Thompson, proceeded to the Charlestown branch railroad depot, where a special train was in waiting to convey it to Fresh Pond. From thence the procession moved to Mount Auburn, where Amos Lawrence, Esq., had generously provided a last resting-place for the mortal remains of the venerable patriot. The usual volleys were fired over the grave, and thus the solemn obsequies closed. All the arrangements were carried with effect in a manner highly honorable to the military engaged in the duty.

On the very day of Capt. Cleaveland's death, a number of gentlemen had completed arrangements, as a token of the veneration for his services, to present him with a splendid walking-stick, a relic of the old Constitution, with the following inscription :

PRESENTED TO
CAPT. JOSIAH CLEAVELAND,
AT BOSTON, JUNE 30TH, 1843, AS A TOKEN OF GRATITUDE AND HIGH ESTEEM FOR HIS VALOR AND PATRIOTISM.
LONG MAY IT PROP HIS TIME-HONORED LIMBS.

It was Capt. Josiah Cleaveland's wish to be buried near Bunker Hill and Amos Lawrence, Esq., had him placed in his family lot, Mt. Auburn cemetery; and many years after one who had married into the Lawrence family, wishing to bury his child there and finding no place, had—without consultation with the family—the remains removed to a public lot. Being told of this at the time, at the instance of a great grand-daughter (Mrs. Francis D. Wadhams of Wilkesbarre, Pa.), a lot was purchased in the same cemetery, the remains buried in it and a stone erected over them inscribed as follows :

"To the memory of
CAPTAIN JOSIAH CLEAVELAND, of Owego, N. Y.

"This tablet is erected by those among whom he departed this life, and who felt respect for his private virtues and gratitude for his public services.

"He was born at Canterbury, Conn., Dec. 3, 1753. He died at Charlestown, Mass., June 30, 1843.

"He was an officer of the army of Freedom. He served his country bravely and faithfully through the whole war of the Revolution. He fought her battles at Bunker Hill, Harlem Heights, White Plains, Trenton, Princeton, Monmouth, and Yorktown. He sustained an unblemished reputation, and lived in the practice of every Christian virtue. He loved, feared, and served God. In the 90th year of his age, he journeyed nearly five hundred miles from home to be present at the completion of the monument on Bunker Hill. He lived to witness that memorable spectacle. He was satisfied. He laid down quietly and yielded up his breath near the scene of his first conflict with the enemies of his country.

"He came among strangers: He died among friends."

A fund was left with the cemetery association by Mrs. Wadhams, to be used in taking care of the burial lot and tomb from year to year. Dr. PARKER<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND commenced practice of medicine at Danvers, Mass., 1767, was surgeon in Continental army at Cambridge.

"Obituary of Dr. PARKER CLEVELAND. The intellectual and moral excellences of Dr. Cleaveland, whose death was mentioned in a late Recorder, call, in the view of those who knew his worth, for some other commemoration than the brief notice of the weekly obituary. He was not favored with the advantages of a collegiate course, but having received as good a medical education as the country then afforded, he began practice in the parish of Byfield at the early age of 19. At the breaking out of the Revolutionary war, he sought employment in the service of his country, was appointed chief surgeon of a regular regiment, and discharged the duties of that office during the first year of the war. Dr. Cleaveland repeatedly represented the town of Rowley in the General Court; and was one of three, including the venerable ex-President Adams, who were members of the State Conventions, of which one formed, and the other revised and amended, the Constitution. For forty years he was an active magistrate. In these, and other public trusts, he displayed equal ability and faithfulness. At once active and patient, ardent and discriminating, had he been early trained to public speaking he might have made himself felt and valued in any deliberate assembly.

"He was an intelligent and skillful physician. Throughout his life he read every medical work of importance that came in his way; and though he adopted no opinions upon trust, or without the most considerate examination, yet far was he from shutting his mind upon the advancing light and improvements of the age. He was carefully observant of every symptom, and rarely erred in his judgment or prognostic.

"He was a firm believer in the doctrines of revealed truth. It was, indeed, to the grand and beautiful system of the gospel that he directed the chief force of his acute and vigorous understanding. The ablest and most abstruse discussions of the great masters in theology were the subjects of his close and successful investigation. Notwithstanding his professional and public duties and many distracting cares, he found time to read much—very much—both in practical and polemic divinity. He called no man master. His religious opinions were adopted only after the most patient and scrutinizing examination and comparison, and they were held with that meek firmness which is the natural result of convictions thus grounded. In his sentiments he was orthodox, strictly so.

"But let it not be supposed that his religion was a system of cold speculation. It were difficult to do him greater injustice. He possessed not merely a well-furnished and argumentative head, but a heart replete with the best affections and graces of the Christian character. He was faithful and affectionate; benevolent, humble, and devout. Emphatically might he be called a man of prayer. Often, at the bed of sickness, has he administered to the sinking body and cheered with holy hopes the desponding spirit. At different periods of peculiar religious attention his pious and useful influence has been eminently conspicuous.

"Firmly confiding in the justice and the mercy of every providential dispensation, he endured with Christian resignation the trials of life. Called repeatedly to part with those who were dear to him, doomed, in the decline of life, to struggle with adverse circumstances, his firmness, his cheerfulness, never forsook him. In the love of his Redeemer he could find relief from every earthly solicitude; this was the theme of his delightful contemplation.

"Although for many months before his death his health had been evidently failing, he was confined to the house but for a few weeks previously to that event. He seemed fully apprehensive that his dissolution was approaching, yet did not his principles, his faith, or his hope desert him. He knew in whom he trusted, and could therefore look back with satisfaction, and forward with unflinching trust. In the death of such a man, it is superfluous to say that his family, his friends, his neighbors, and the Church have sustained an irreparable loss."

This British ship chased a Gloucester vessel which ran into the harbor where the water was too shoal for her pursuer. The British sent their boats after her; Ebenezer<sup>5</sup> jumped aboard one. Records of the Revolutionary Army show that Moses<sup>5</sup> entered the service spring of 1777, as Lt. 2d Conn. Reg., Col. Charles Webb, commission dated Jan. 1, 1777. He grad. Yale Sept., 1777, but probably none of the class were present at the exercises, for all were permitted to leave previously for the army, being commissioned officers. The 2d Conn. was engaged in Pa. His service was continuous for at least four years. He was a member of the Cincinnati Society [adm. July 7, 1784]. [See Record of Conn. Harvey Rice, appeared in the Magazine of Western History, 145, St. Clair st., Cleveland, O., 1, 170-6, Jan., 1885, from which following is quoted :

" In attempting to solve the problem of life, General Moses Cleveland had a purpose and lived for a purpose. In his career, though controlled by circumstances, he manifested an unusual degree of wisdom and foresight. Among other achievements he founded a city — the beautiful city that inherits his name and cherishes his memory with a pride that approaches reverence.

He adopted the legal profession, and commenced the practice of law in his native town with marked success. The abilities of the young lawyer soon attracted public attention. Congress recognized his merits by appointing him, in 1779, capt. of a co.

of sappers and miners in the army of the United States. He accepted the commission, and remained in the service for several years, when he resigned and resumed the practice of law. He was also a prominent Mason, and held the position of Grand Marshal of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut.

Early in 1796, after having risen rapidly through the subordinate military grades, he was advanced to the generalship of the Fifth Brigade of the State militia.

In regard to the subsequent career of General Cleveland, it should be remembered that Connecticut, when a colony, acquired by grant of King Charles II of England, in 1662, a vast tract of territory lying between the same parallels with the colony, and extending west from "sea to sea," or from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. When Connecticut was admitted into the Union as a state, she claimed this territory as her rightful domain. In adjusting this claim, Congress allowed her to retain only that part of the territory now known as the "Western Reserve." This she accepted in full discharge of her claim.

The Western Reserve embraces the northeastern part of Ohio, and contains 3,800,000 acres. In 1792 the state donated 500,000 acres of this land, since known as the "Fire-lands," to citizens who had suffered by fire in the Revolution; and, in 1795, authorized a sale of the remaining part of the reserve and appointed a committee to effect the sale. This remainder was sold within a few months for $1,200,000, which the state appropriated as a permanent fund for the support of her common schools. The purchasers of the land were wealthy citizens known as the "Connecticut Land Co."

The individuals comprising the company, with a view to convenience in the transaction of business, conveyed their respective interests to three trustees, John Cadwell, John Morgan, and Jonathan Brace. In accordance with articles of agreement entered into by the land company, the general management of its affairs was confided to a board of seven directors, Oliver Phelps, Henry Champion, Moses Cleaveland, Samuel W. Johnson, Ephraim Kirby, Samuel Mather, Jr., and Roger Newbury. The following commission was issued by the board of directors to Moses Cleaveland:

To Moses Cleaveland, Esq., of the County of Windham and State of Connecticut, one of the directors of the Connecticut Land Company, Greeting:

We the Board of Directors of said Company, having appointed you to go on to said land as superintendent over the agents and men sent to survey and make locations on said land, and to make and enter into friendly negotiations with the natives who are on said land, or contiguous thereto, and may have any pretended claim to the same, and secure such friendly intercourse amongst them as will establish peace, quiet, and safety to the survey and settlement of said lands not ceded by the natives under the authority of the United States.

You are hereby, for the foregoing purposes, fully authorized and empowered to act and transact all the above business in as full and ample a manner as we ourselves could do; to make contracts on the foregoing matters in our behalf and stead, and make such drafts on our treasury as may be necessary to accomplish the foregoing object of your appointment. And all agents and men by us employed and sent to survey and settle said lands, to be obedient to your orders and directions; and you are to be accountable for all moneys by you received, conforming your conduct to such orders and directions as we may from time to time give you, and to do and act in all matters according to your best skill and judgment, which may tend to the best interest, prosperity, and success of said Connecticut Land Company, having more particularly for your guide the Articles of Association entered into and signed by the individuals of said company. Dated at Hartford this 12th day of May, 1796.

OLIVER PHELPS,	} Directors.
HENRY CHAMPION,
ROGER NEWBURY,
SAMUEL MATHER, JR.,

Thus commissioned, General Cleaveland led the first surveying and exploring party into the wilds of the Western Reserve, or "New Connecticut," as it was then called. The entire party consisted of General Cleaveland, agent of the Land Company; Augustus Porter, principal surveyor; Seth Pease, astronomer and surveyor; Moses Warren, Amos Spafford, John M. Holley, and Richard M. Stoddard, assistant surveyors; Joshua Stow, commissary; Theodore Shepard, physician; Joseph Tinker, boatman, and Seth Hart, chaplain, accompanied by 37 employes and a few immigrants. There were but 2 women in the party. They were married women who came with their husbands. The whole party numbered just fifty. They brought with them 13 horses and several head of horned cattle.

The individuals composing the expedition concentrated at Schenectady, N. Y., early in June, 1796. A few took charge of the horses and cattle and proceeded by land through the interior wilds of the state to Buffalo, while the others procured boats and ascended the Mohawk River, and when they reached Fort Stanwix, now Rome, transferred their boats from the Mohawk over the portage to Wood Creek, passed down the creek to Oneida Lake, thence across the lake and its outlets, and down the Oswego River to Lake Ontario. From this point they coasted along the south shore of Ontario to the mouth of the Niagara River, thence up that river to Queenstown, and after crossing the "seven mile" portage reached Chippewa, and from thence pursued their way along the Niagara River and shore of Lake Erie to Buffalo, where they were met by the detachment having charge of the horses and cattle. Here Gen. Cleaveland found a delegation of Seneca and Mohawk Indians, headed by Red Jacket and Colonel Brant, who had been awaiting his arrival, with a determination to oppose the further progress of the expedition to the Western Reserve, claiming that it was territory which rightfully belonged to them. The Indians consented to hold a "talk" with the general, who succeeded in quieting the claim by making them a donation of goods, valued at twelve hundred dollars. The expedition then continued westward along the southeastern shore of Lake Erie, and landed, on the fourth of July, 1796, at the mouth of Conneaut Creek, in the Western Reserve, and on landing gave "three deafening cheers" and christened the place "Port Independence."

It was a pleasant day. The party felt patriotic, and resolved to celebrate not only the day but the event. They flung the American flag to the breeze. Tables were extemporized and made to groan under the weight of a superabundance of baked pork and beans and other luxuries, all of which were partaken of with a keen relish. Salutes were fired by platoons of musketry, speeches were made and several pails of grog were drunk in response to the following toasts or sentiments: 1. "The President of the United States." 2. "The State of New Connecticut." 3. "The Connecticut Land Company." 4. "May the Port of Independence and the fifty sons and daughters who have entered it this day be successful and prosperous." 5. "May these fifty sons and daughters multiply in 16 years 16 times 50." 6. "May every person have his bowsprit trimmed and ready to enter every port that opens."

The celebration was prolonged until the stars appeared. It was the first of the kind that ever occurred in the Western Reserve. At its close the hilarious "fifty" retired to their boats and tents in as good order as could be expected. The next day was devoted to the erection of a log structure or two, designed for the immediate accommodation of the party and their supplies. The Indians in the vicinity now became inquisitive, and demanded to know why it was the white men encroached upon their domains. A council was called and the central seat assigned to General Cleaveland, as the great white chief. Proceedings were commenced by gravely smoking the "pipe of peace." Cato, the son of the old Indian Chief, Piqua, then addressed the Great White Chief, who, in his reply, conciliated the Indians by giving them a few glass beads and a keg of whiskey. The surveys were then allowed to proceed. The general assigned to each detachment of surveyors their special work, and told them where to commence it.

In the course of two weeks after this General Cleaveland left Conneaut in company with a select few of his staff, and coasted in an open boat along the southeastern shore of Lake Erie until he came to the mouth of a river, which he took to be the Cuyahoga. He ascended the stream for some distance, amid many embarrassments arising from sandbars and fallen trees, when he discovered his mistake, and found that it was a shallow river of minor importance and not noted on his map. This perplexity and delay so chagrined him and his staff that he named the river "Chagrin," a designation by which it is still known, and, continuing his voyage, entered the mouth of the veritable Cuyahoga on the twenty-second of July, in the same ever memorable year of 1796, and landed on its eastern bank near its entrance into the lake. He at once with his staff ascended the steep bank, and beheld for the first time an elevated plain of surprising beauty that extended far away to the east, west, and south of him, and that was clad with a luxuriant growth of graceful forest trees. The scene charmed his eye, and the spot where he stood, skirted as it was by the Cuyahoga River on the west and by Lake Erie on the north, suggested to him that, with these natural advantages, the locality was destined, at no distant day, to become the site of a great commercial city.

In accordance with this impression, he directed the locality to be surveyed into city lots. It included an area of a mile square. Two surveys were made of the land under the superintendence of Augustus Porter — one by Seth Pease and the other by Amos Spafford. Each presented a separate map of his work. The one is known as "Pease's map," and the other as "Spafford's map." These original maps differ somewhat in detail, yet both are accepted as authoritative. The surveys were completed early in October, 1796. The surveyors gave to the new-born city the name of "Cleaveland," in honor of their chief. The general, with characteristic modesty, accepted the compliment.

[Hittlescy's Cleveland, 191.—"The townships were to be numbered as ranges, counting from the Pa. line as a meridian, westward to the number of 24, making 120 mi. From the base line they were numbered northward as towns, to the shore of Lake Erie. Thus, Cleveland, before it had a name, was designated as No. 7 in the 12th range, being 12 townships w. of the Pa. line, and 7 townships n. of the 41st parallel of latitude." P. 256.—"Increase of population: 1796, 4; 1797, 15; 1800, 7; 1810, 57; 1820, 150; 1825, 500; 1830, 1,075; 1832, 1,500; 1833, 1,900; 1834, 3,323; 1835, 5,080; 1840, 7,648; 1845, 12,035; 1850, 20,984; 1851, 21,140; 1852, 25,670; 1860, 43,838; 1866, 67,500." U. S. Census: 1880, 160,146; 1889, 250,000.]

The city at its birth contained three log cabins that had been erected by the surveyors for their own accommodation on the hillside next to the river, and next a spring that furnished an ample supply of pure water. The resident population that settled in Cleveland in 1796 was but four; in 1797 the population increased to fifteen; in 1800 it was reduced to seven by removals elsewhere, on account of the insalubrity of the locality. In 1830, at the taking of the first United States Census, it was found that the population had advanced to 1,075. At this time the Ohio Canal, with its terminus at Cleveland, had been constructed. This improvement so enlarged the facilities of commerce as to inspire confidence, and give assurance of the city's future prosperity. It was in 1830 that a newspaper called the Cleveland Advertiser was established. In preparing to issue the first number the editor discovered that the "heading" was too long to fit the "form," and so, in order to adjust it he dropped out the letter "a," in the first syllable of the word Cleaveland, and made it read "Cleveland." The public at once accepted this change in orthography.

It is indeed somewhat marvelous that the city of Cleveland from a sickly infancy, and within less than a century, has now grown to such gigantic proportions as to possess a population of nearly half a million. Its present rate of growth in population renders it impossible for any one, however much of a prophet he may be, to predict what will be the aggregate of its population a hundred years hence. It is said that when Gen. Cleaveland founded the city, he predicted that the time would come when it would contain a population as large as that of Windham, Conn., which at that time was about 1,500. If the general could now see "what has come to pass," it would be interesting, if not amusing, to witness his expression of surprise.

Whatever else may be said of Gen. Cleaveland, it is evident that he not only led an honorable life, but achieved a great work. He was a man of few words and of prompt action. His morality was an outgrowth of puritanism and as rigid as it was pure. He was manly and dignified in his bearing, and so sedate in his looks that strangers often took him for a clergyman. In complexion he was somewhat swarthy, so much so that the Indians claimed him as akin to their own race. In personal appearance he was of medium height, erect, thick set, and portly, had black hair, a quick, penetrating eye, muscular limbs, and a military air in his step, indicating that he was born to command. In the social circle he was pleasant and agreeable in his style of manners, and was always received as a welcome guest. He was a friend to everybody, and everybody seemed to be his friend. In his opinions he was decisive and could readily give a logical reason for them. He was also a man of true courage amid threatening dangers, and as shrewd in his tactics and management as he was courageous. He died in the midst of his usefulness and crowned with honors. His was not only a career of unusual interest, but a mission that transformed a wilderness into a civilized land. In a word, his life-work commands our admiration, and deserves commemoration. The city that bears his name, and whose founder he was, could hardly do a more appropriate or graceful thing than to erect a statue to his memory as an expression of her appreciation of his character and public services, and thus by honoring him honor herself."

The plate of Gen. Moses<sup>5</sup> is taken from a miniature portrait, still existing, painted on ivory in oil colors. New London Gazette, Nov. 26, 1806 — *Obit. notice; Address of Hon. MOSES<sup>5</sup> CLEVELAND did not again visit the Reserve. He left a large fortune. After his decease his family removed to Colchester. The last resting place of the illustrious dead in the Old Cemetery at Canterbury is marked by a plain white marble slab bearing the simple inscription: "Moses Cleveland Esq. died Nov. 16 1806 aged 52". An appropriate monument should be erected over his grave. The cemetery is not given much care or attention. His relict Esther is buried near him.

At the first Annual Convention of the Early Settlers Association of Cuyahoga co. at Cleveland May 21, 1880, it was

"Resolved, That we favor the proposition of Mr. Samuel E. Adams that a Monument be erected in Cleveland to the memory of MOSES CLEVELAND and that this Association take measures to favor that object."

It was also suggested that the Assn. meet hereafter on the birthday of the Gen. Hon. Harvey Rice presided. The result of this movement, a bronze statue of Gen. Moses<sup>5</sup> Cleveland was unveiled on the Public Square, Cleveland, O., July 23, 1888, and thus described by the Cleveland press of the day:

The statue, of which the accompanying picture is a faithful likeness, is of bronze, nine feet high, and weighs 1,450 pounds. Placed on a pedestal seven feet high, it appears life size to the beholder. It was modeled by Mr. J. G. C. Hamilton, the sculptor of the Smith Granite Company, from a miniature painting made before General Cleveland's death in 1806. The face is, therefore, a life likeness. The plaster cast was made in this city at the works of Heidenreich & Stephan, No. 416 Erie street, and was completed July 15, 1887. The bronze statue was cast from it by Bureau Brothers, of Philadelphia. The figure has a surveyor's "Jacob" staff in the right hand, and in the left the old-time compass and level. The pedestal is of Westerly granite and weighs eight tons. The base is six feet in diameter and one and one-half feet thick, and the second base four feet and four inches in diameter and one and one-half feet thick. The die, or columnar part that bears the inscription, is three feet four inches in diameter and two and three-fourths feet high. The plint, or capital stone, is three feet and two inches in diameter and one and one-third feet thick. The circular bronze plate upon which the statue itself rests is three feet in diameter. The inscription, deeply cut in the polished granite, reads:

GEN.
MOSES CLEVELAND,
FOUNDER OF THE CITY,
1792.

THE STATUE OF GENERAL MOSES CLEVELAND, IN THE SQUARE, FORMALLY UNVEILED.

PRESIDENT RICE'S PRESENTATION ADDRESS AND THE ACCEPTANCE OF MAYOR BABCOCK.

The Early Settlers' Association. The Inaugural Speech of Samuel E. Adams—The Neurology.

The honored memory of the man who laid out the site of Cleveland, has been made permanent, and another feature has been added to the beauties of Cleveland. The bronze statue of General Moses Cleveland was unveiled yesterday, July 23, 1888, with appropriate ceremonies. Crowds turned out to do honor to the memory of the founder of the Forest City, and, at 2 o'clock, the Public Square was a mass of jostling, sweltering humanity. The exercises at the unveiling of the statue were under the direction of the Early Settlers' Association, by whom the monument was presented to the city. The project of erecting a statue to the memory of General Cleveland was suggested at the meeting of the Early Settlers' Association in 1880 by S. E. Adams, Esq., who was the orator of the day yesterday, and the suggestion soon took material form. Hon. Harvey Rice was the prime mover in the work, and the handsome bronze statue and granite pedestal are the outcome. The statue is an honor to the city, a tribute to its founder, and a lasting memorial to the pioneers of Cleveland and the Western Reserve.

The seventh annual meeting of the Early Settlers' Association was held Monday, July 23, at Music Hall, and it was the greatest event in all its history. Silver-haired men and pleasant-faced women who were obliged to lean on strong arms or canes for support began to arrive early, and many were the hearty handshakes and greetings. All were happy, for the fruition of many hopes was about to be realized. Many were present at the unveiling who had seen Cleveland grow from less than 2,000 to its present proportion of more than 250,000 souls. It was in commemoration of the arrival of General Cleveland and the founding of the city that the early settlers unveiled the statue. Prior to the opening, several gentlemen, the youngest of whom was seventy years of age, indulged in reminiscences of the early days.

Mr. John Doane, of East Cleveland, was the oldest gentleman present. He is 92 years of age.

It was greatly regretted that, on account of the extreme age of Hon. Harvey Rice, the president, he was unable to be present. Hon. John Hutchins, the first vice-president, presided. The orchestra rendered an elegant selection, and then the address of the president, Hon. Harvey Rice, was read by Hon. A. J. Williams. He paid a tribute to Mr. Rice, saying that he was an honor and a pride to the community. He then read as follows:—

THE ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Association: The birthday of the city of Cleveland has become not only historical, but memorable as the anniversary of our association. This year is especially significant, and may be regarded as the year of our jubilee, because it is the year in which we have achieved a favorite enterprise—the erection of a beautiful bronze statue in honor of General Moses Cleveland, the founder of our city.

It is indeed a matter of mutual congratulation that the enterprise has been accomplished by the efforts and under the auspices of our association. It is doubtful, however, if this could have been done without the material aid which we have received from our appreciative fellow-citizens. For this timely generosity and approval on their part we desire to express our grateful acknowledgments.

The association, in addition to the erection of the statue, has achieved much more work than was "dreamed of in its philosophy." The more it has done, the more it finds to do. It is a work that is as agreeable as it is useful in character. It consists mainly in renewing early acquaintances in a social way, and in gathering from the wayside of pioneer life the few remaining leaflets which seem touched with the golden hues of autumn, and which are therefore emblematic of the mingled hopes and fears and experiences of the primitive fathers and mothers of the Western Reserve. It is these leaflets that constitute the "annals" of our association as published from year to year in pamphlet form. In the aggregate they embrace 830 pages of pioneer literature, and seem to have a recognized value, if we may judge from the fact that they have already found their way into many public as well as private libraries.

The pioneers of the Reserve were a race of heroic, enduring, patient men and women, and yet intelligent, upon whose "like we shall never look again." For the most part they were immigrants from New England, and lineal descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers. They believed in themselves, and proved themselves worthy of their ancestry by giving ample evidence that they had inherited the spirit of Plymouth Rock with a liberal share of its grit. It was this that enabled them to conquer what was literally a "howling wilderness."

In achieving this conquest the women were as brave and meritorious as the men, and should be equally recognized in the history of the times. But, somehow or other, it has happened, ever since the days of Adam and Eve, that women have been comparatively veiled or ignored in history, while the men have been made central luminaries. Yet, brilliant as the men may appear, many of them, like the sun, have dark spots in their character. But in this enlightened age the women have become so enlightened as to assume their just rights, and assist not only in making history, but in writing it.

It is true, however, that man has his proper sphere, and woman hers by divine assignment. In some respects man may be superior to woman; yet, after all, the hand that rock—the cradle rules the world. This must be admitted, though it is not the standard of a true manhood. It is in this way that woman gives strength and character to civil government and virtually rules the world.

As individual members of this association it matters not whether we descend from a Puritanic ancestry or from some other ancestry, so long as our hearts are in unison, and we are loyal in the support of the popular government under which we live. The truth is, we Americans are an admixture of all nationalities. It is this transfusion of blood that characterizes the citizens of the United States and develops in them a higher degree of mental and physical power and inventive genius than is possessed by any other people on the face of the earth.

Our association began its career with but nineteen memberships. This is our ninth annual meeting. Our numbers, in the meantime, have increased with wonderful rapidity. We closed the last year with an enrollment of seven hundred and thirty memberships. This year will probably swell the number to eight hundred or thereabout. Yet in our progress more or less shadows have fallen upon the sunlight of our pathway. During the past nine years of our existence as a fraternity, one hundred and forty-five of our number have taken their final departure to the silent realm where sorrow never comes, and where the weary are at rest. We find consolation, however, in the thought that they were all worthy members of our fraternity, who led exemplary lives, and who have left to us a rich legacy of endeared remembrances.

"Still all are shadows, man of flower,
Passing with time;
All—even the mountain's unsealed tower
That awes the earth with mystic power,
Lone and sublime."

Yet the great living world of mankind, ever pulsating with activities, takes but little note of those who depart this life, whether known or unknown to fame. No man is so great or important in the world but another equally great may be readily found to fill his place. Even the greatest men of the world, in taking their leave, create but a ripple on the ocean wave of unmeasured time—a ripple that soon disappears and is forgotten.

He is the truly great man who does most to promote the welfare of his fellow men. In fact every man may, if he will, shape his own destiny. It is his life work that survives him, and imprints itself on character, not only on his own but on that of others. It should, therefore, be his highest aim to live in accordance with the dictates of the divinity that "stirs within him,"—divinity that pervades and controls the universe.

Professor Reehab Tandy sang the song ever dear to the early settler, "Auld Lang Syne." The saddest part of the programme, the reading of the necrological report, was delegated to the chaplain, Rev. Thomas Corlett, and it showed that the following pioneers have passed to their fathers since the last annual meeting:—

THE ANNUAL NECROLOGICAL REPORT.

We have this day reached the ninth anniversary of our Early Settlers' Association. With a beginning of nineteen persons, when first organized, it has now a living membership of six hundred and eight souls, to which if we add the names of those members of the Association who have been removed from us by death during the past nine years, would swell the number to seven hundred and fifty-three, besides new members. Thus while we are steadily increasing in numbers, our ranks are also being thinned by death, so that we are constantly being reminded that change and decay are the inseparable incidents of our fallen condition. And so now, as in former years, we are again called upon to record the names of those members of our Association, who, during the past year, have been removed from us by death. The following are their names, place of birth, when born and when they came to the Western Reserve, and when they died:—

Honorary members who have died the past year:—Mrs. Eliza B. Garfield, mother of the late President Garfield. Mrs. Garfield was born in the state of Connecticut, in 1801, came to the Reserve 1832, died 1887.

Speeches were delivered by Judge Darius Caldwell and Hon. Joseph Turney.

The officers of the past year were re-elected by acclamation as follows: Hon. Harvey Rice, president; Hon. John Hutchins and Mrs. J. A. Harris, vice-presidents; Thomas Jones, Jr., secretary; Solon Burgess, treasurer; Rev. Thomas Corlett, chaplain; H. M. Addison, marshal. Executive committee—Hon. A. J. Williams, R. T. Lyon, Darius Adams, John H. Sargent, W. S. Kerruish, Wilson S. Dodge, and Solon Burgess.

A recess was then taken for lunch, preparatory to the unveiling of the statue in the afternoon. Long tables were spread in the dining apartment of the Music Hall, and the lunch was an appetizing and tempting one. Over two hundred people sat down to the spread and it was thoroughly enjoyed, the old people seeming to live over again the pioneer days. Arrangements were then completed for the unveiling of the bronze statue of General Moses Cleaveland, which occupies a commanding position in the Public Square. Several of those present were too feeble to march to the Square and they reluctantly remained in the hall. The procession, which numbered about five hundred, was headed by the Cleveland Grays and their excellent band. The line of march was through Vincent street to Bond, to Superior, to the Square.

There were many in the procession who had marched forth to battle. When the statue was reached an immense crowd was found to be in attendance and the old settlers ranged themselves around the diminutive flag-bedecked platform which had been erected. The Grays stood about the enclosure with grounded arms. The exercises were opened by the Grays' Band rendering a medley of national airs.

Hon. A. J. Williams said he regretted that the ceremony was marred by the absence of the worthy president of the Early Settlers' Association. He was glad to announce, however, that the two honored vice-presidents were in attendance.

The monument was shrouded in an American flag. Mr. Williams gave the signal, and Mr. Thomas Jones, Jr., the Secretary of the Old Settlers' Association, pulled the cord, and the starry covering fell to the earth in graceful folds revealing the beautiful statue in all its loveliness. A mighty shout went up from the immense audience, and there was not a gray-haired man or woman in the gathering whose heart did not fill with pride over the success of their laudable undertaking.

Hon. A. J. Williams then read Hon. Harvey Rice's presentation of the statue to the city as follows:

THE ADDRESS AT THE MONUMENT.

Fellow Citizens: The origin of a large city, whether ancient or modern, is always a subject of more or less interest. The origin of our beautiful city is somewhat remarkable, and for this reason, if for no other, should have a visible record. The statue in bronze which we have just unveiled, and which you now see standing before you in silent dignity, was erected under the auspices of the Early Settlers' Association, in honor of General Moses Cleaveland, who founded our city and christened it with his name in the year 1706.

General Cleaveland was a man of rare intelligence and unblemished character. He was born in the town of Canterbury, State of Connecticut, on the 29th of January, 1754, graduated at Yale College in 1777, adopted the legal profession, and commenced practice in his native town. He soon won an enviable reputation, and was several times elected a member of the State Legislature. His ability as a statesman enlarged his sphere of usefulness, and gave him prominence. In 1779 he was appointed by resolution of Congress captain of a company of sappers and miners in the army of the United States. After rendering a brief service in this capacity he resigned and returned to the practice of law. In 1794 he married a wife, as every sensible young man should do who means to achieve success in the world. It was not until after his marriage that General Cleaveland acquired a position which gave him permanent renown. The year 1706 was a fortunate year for him. It not only elected him to a generalship in the State Militia, but made him chief of the staff of surveyors sent out by the Connecticut Land Company to survey the wilds of the Western Reserve into townships and hundred-acre lots, preparatory to putting them in market.

The Reserve was at that time a dense, dark wilderness, untrodden by the footsteps of civilization. It consisted of nearly four millions of acres. General Cleaveland, with his staff of surveyors and party, fifty persons in all, landed at the mouth of Conneaut Creek, in Ashtabala county, on the 4th of July, 1706, and glorified the day by partaking of a luxurious dinner of baked pork and beans, and imbibing a moderate digestive of five painfals of grog. The Indians did not like the intrusion of white men, and threatened to exterminate them. But the General met the chiefs in council, gave them a keg of New England rum, and their squaws a quart of glass beads, and in this way secured a satisfactory reconciliation.

In a few days after this the General with a few of his staff took the "second sober thought," sailed up the coast in an open boat, and on the 22d of July entered the mouth of the Cuyahoga. In attempting to land he ran his boat aground amid the bulrushes on the eastern margin of the river. He now realized, though not an infant, that he was a "second Moses" cradled among the bulrushes. He soon extricated himself, however, and ascended the steep bank of the river, and on looking about him found that he stood upon an elevated plain bounded on the west by a ribbon-like river, and on the north by a sea of molten silver. He probably stood about where we now stand, when he exclaimed: "Here is the spot designed by nature to become a great commercial city." He then ordered the locality—to the extent of a mile square—to be surveyed into city lots. Hence the 22d of July, 1706, is accepted as the birthday of our beautiful city—the day which the Early Settlers' Association commemorates by an annual reunion.

The city commenced its career in 1796 with a resident population of four souls. The lapse of ninety-two years has now increased that number to 260,000.

What would the founder of this great commercial city—this hitherto statue of the man—say of the grandeur and living activities that now surround him if he could speak? I believe he would be lost in wonder and amazement, and stand mute, as he now does, in eloquent silence. It was he who led the van of civilization into the wilds of the Western Reserve. He was followed by a phalanx of heroic pioneers—the best blood of New England, an intelligent and exemplary class of men and women, who not only conquered the wilderness, but left to their descendants and the world a rich inheritance. It is here in Monumental Square, the central park of the city, that the monument, erected in his honor, should stand, not only as a landmark in the history of the Western Reserve, but as an educator equipped for teaching the living present and the unborn future—pupils that will appreciate his lessons and revere his name forever along the line of the limitless ages.

I now, in behalf of the Early Settlers' Association, have the pleasure of presenting this beautiful monument to the city of Cleveland, and request His Honor, Mayor Babcock, as its chief magistrate, to accept it for and in behalf of the city, and as the property of the city for all time to come.

Mayor B. D. Babcock responded as follows:

THE RESPONSE OF THE MAYOR.

Mr. President and members of the Early Settlers' Association: It is most appropriate that you who have passed so many years of eventful and honorable career—you who have witnessed the growth of our city from an unpretentious village to its present vast and grand proportions—you who are now resting in the calm shades of the evening of life—that you should have conceived the idea and executed the purpose of erecting this statue in honor of him who was the founder of our city. Our broad streets with their massive and imposing business blocks, our grand and world-renowned avenues extending for miles in the directions of the surrounding country and beautifully adorned with lawns and palatial residences, our miles of dockage and hundreds of water crafts, signifying the immensity of our commerce, the countless towering stacks emitting their black smoke and marking the location of as many great and thriving industries, our half hundred public schools, where daily assemble 16,000 of the rising generation for instruction, all speak in highest eulogy of the wisdom of him whose name our city bears. We most heartily applaud and congratulate you upon the accomplishment of your laudable undertaking.

As Mayor of the city of Cleveland, in behalf of the people, I accept from you this beautiful and appropriate monument. Here in the midst of these beautiful surroundings, upon these grounds dedicated forever to the public use, may it ever stand upon its firm foundation to perpetuate the name and memory of Moses Cleaveland.

When the old settlers and their friends had returned to Music Hall the afternoon meeting was called to order by Hon. John Hutchins. An inspiring air was rendered by the orchestra, and then S. E. Adams, Esq., delivered the inaugural address, an interesting historical review and a very fine effort, and the audience gave him the closest attention. When he had closed there was an outburst of applause. Prof. Tandy then sang with much feeling the song "Our City's Birthday," which had been composed for the occasion by the Hon. Harvey Rice. The words will be found below:—

'Twas here, when nature reigned supreme,
That General Cleaveland trod the wild;
And saw an infant in his dream,
And with his name baptized the child.
An infant then, now grown a queen,
Whose charms are mirrored in the wave
Of Erie's lake—the battle scene
Where victory crowned her hero brave.
On Erie's shore, from age to age,
Our city still shall lift her spires;
And gem with stars her history's page,
And kindle still her altar's fires.
And long may he—now gone from earth—
Survive in bronze to view the land;
And still proclaim our city's birth,
With staff and compass in his hand.
He was a man of heart and thought,
And ever faithful as sincere;
Who with high aims life's battle fought,
And crowned with honor his career.

Professor Tandy adapted a melody from Beethoven to the song.

Speeches were made by Mr. S. A. Lane of Akron and Gen. J. J. Elwell.

The exercises came to an end by Prof. Tandy singing the "Star Spangled Banner," and the doxology by the audience. It was the wish of Mr. Rice that the exercises should end in this way. This ended the proudest day in the history of the Early Settlers' Association.

On Feb. 6, 1896, Gov. Asa S. Bushnell and staff of Ohio, and Mayor Robert E. McKisson of Cleveland, O., for the purpose of presenting an official invitation to Conn., to take part in the centennial of Cleveland, July 19 to Sept. 10, 1896, visited Hartford, Conn., and were received by Gov. Owen Vincent Coffin of Conn. and Mayor Leverett Brainard of Hartford. In the Conn. House of Representatives, at the Capitol, before a large audience, Gov. Bushnell gave a sketch of the famous journey of Gen. Moses Cleaveland and party in founding Cleveland, and extended the invite, which was accepted with appropriate remarks by Gov. Coffin, Mayor Brainard, and others. On Founders' Day at Cleveland, July 22, 1896, the oration was by United States Senator Joseph Roswell Hawley of Conn. Gov. Coffin and other governors and statesmen participated in the military and civic parade, a large and representative procession; grand pageant in the evening. Camp Moses Cleaveland, the name of the camp of the National Guard of Ohio and the U. S. A. Regulars.

Sharon, Litchfield co., Conn., VIII—Probate court holden at Salisbury, Feb. 2, 1775. EPHRAIM CLEVELAND, a minor age 19 years, son to SIMON CLEVELAND, chose voluntarily Elnathan Keyes of Salisbury as his guardian; present Joshua Porter holding the same.

Family History of Ephraim Cleveland and his Descendants, prepared by Stafford C.<sup>7</sup> Cleveland, 1871, pp. 11, contains following: "Ephraim Cleveland was a 'bound boy' and served his apprenticeship with a farmer till he was 21. After marriage moved first to Freehold, Conn., and thence to the Valley of Sugar

Creek, Pa., on land claimed by the State of Conn. Stopped first n. Sheshequin, rem. later to a point on same creek, 3 miles w. of site of Troy. There he bought of Mr. Holcomb, a pioneer, his small beginning in the woods, and remained there several years. The location was beautiful, although in the midst of a dense wilderness. Sold the place, 1810, for $600, and rem. to the Chemung Valley. He bought land of Mr. Pumpelly, agt. for the Johnson Tract on the hill side E. and 2 miles from place inhabited by Catharine Montour, an ill-chosen spot. Lived there 4 years and sold for $100. With their family of 7 children they emigrated spring of 1814 to Cincinnati, going by way of Olean, Cattaraugus co., N. Y., and the Alleghany and Ohio rivers. The excellent mother d. suddenly of pleurisy. [Er<sup>o</sup> could not find her grave at Cincinnati, 1819.] It was the singular freak of the father to return at once to Catharine. He m. a 2d wife and soon fell sick of malarial fever, and d. after a lingering illness of several months, leaving the family quite destitute. There was no alternative for the children but to scatter about among families for such service as they could render. Their parents had been affectionate, but had been able to leave them nothing but their own unstained character and reputation for integrity and personal worth. At an early period in Pa. they had become members of the Baptist church. [Lived in Patterson, N. Y.]

For many years he occupied a leading position in business and politics. He was an earnest Henry Clay Whig, and latterly an equally earnest Republican. He had been a witness of our country's progress and prosperity from the Revolution; had seen Washington, Putnam, Lafayette. In his last moments he was surrounded and tenderly cared for by his sons, F. Spalding, Esq., Rev. V. Spalding, and his da. Mrs. Whitman. He was a kind father, a true friend, hospitable to the stranger, kind to the poor and needy, generous and upright and just toward all men. The funeral took place at Lewiston, largely attended.

Capt. ZIMRI<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND lived at Nantucket until he reached the great age of 80 years, and then made his home with his son, Henry Jones<sup>2</sup> Cleveland in Boston, where he thereafter dwelt. He was a sea captain. During the war of 1812, Zimri<sup>6</sup> and his father, Seth<sup>6</sup>, rendered valuable service to the inhabitants of Nantucket by running a boat to the main land for supplies. The waters were blockaded by English cruisers, and their work was performed in dark or rainy nights. Whenever belated until daylight they would sail to the nearest land, hide their cargo in the bushes, and sink the boat until dark.

Zimri<sup>6</sup> died at the house of Henry J.<sup>2</sup>, No. 7, Greenwich Highlands, Boston. He had always cherished the greatest love for his native island, and his remains were taken there and buried.

JOSEPH<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND entered upon the activities of life at an early age, and although his only capital at commencing was his energy and his perseverance, he soon established himself, and for many years afterward was well known as one of the best and most successful business men of Elizabethtown, afterwards Elizabeth, N. J. Soon after marriage he built a homestead on Old Broad st. (now 37 Washington ave.), in which he passed the greater part of his life. His store, adjoining, and bakery were well patronized, and his unremitting labors were duly rewarded with profits with which he was prudent, and judiciously invested and eventually amassed a handsome competency. He was prominent, useful, and respected in the community. For many years he was an active member of the Morrell st. (later the Water st., and since the Elizabeth ave.) Methodist Episcopal church, and served in the offices of trustee, steward, &c., and frequently was placed on important committees. He was foremost in the erection of a new church edifice. About 1831 he was a member of the Volunteer Fire Department, then numbering the most prominent citizens. See "Firemen of the ancient time" in Central N. J. Herald, May 28, 1881. He was a member of the Board of Aldermen, and during his last years was a director of the National Fire and Marine Insurance co. of Elizabeth. He retired from active business Apr. 1, 1866, bought and removed into the brick dwelling 311 (now 343) Washington st., Newark, N. J. He returned to Elizabeth, Mar. 25, 1873, and occupied the handsome residence, just completed by him, 450 Jefferson ave. (next the dwelling of his son, Edmund James Cleveland, built by the latter from the same plans), fronting Jefferson Park. On Jan. 11, 1873, he accidentally slipped on the ice at Newark, breaking his right arm. From the effects of this injury he never fully recovered, and soon after removing to his new home it began to trouble him. He grew worse, a consultation of doctors was held, and it was found necessary to amputate the arm July 21. He d. at 3.11 P.M. the next day. Obituaries appeared in the Elizabeth Journal, Herald, Newark Daily Advertiser, &c. From Elizabeth Monitor, July 25, 1873 [Editorial]. In common with many old residents of Elizabeth it was our good fortune a long time since to make the acquaintance of Joseph Cleveland. He was noted for his amiability and excellent habits. Nearly a third of a century ago he was engaged in a prosperous business and gave it strict attention. He believed emphatically that what was worth doing should be well done. Such a man was bound to succeed for he deserved to prosper and wisely adapted his means to achieve success. From the earliest years of our acquaintance he feared God and was not ashamed or afraid to speak of the religion which filled his soul with gladness. In those days our most active business men who called themselves Christians found time to speak to each other of their temptations, trials, joys, and sorrows. The holy dead delighted to honor his Master in word and deed. He let his light shine before men in such a manner that none could mistake his character. He so conducted his business that all were convinced that he was governed by the golden rule. His word was as much regarded as his bond, for in all his dealings he was actuated by noble principles. It is gratifying to know that he persevered in good works until the Master bade him come up higher. Ibid.—The funeral took place July 25, at 3 o'clock P.M., from 450 Jefferson ave. A large concourse of people assembled (many of them our oldest citizens, and a number from Newark), completely filling all the available space in the roomy house and on the grounds in front. The body was encased in a casket covered with black cloth and with silver mountings. Above the deceased was suspended the appropriate words: "Thy will be done," while a large number of flowers wrought into beautiful designs filled the house with fragrance. Rev. James N. Fitzgerald of St. Paul's M. E. church discoursed from the text: "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." Rev. Nicholas Vansant offered a most feeling prayer. The deceased was viewed by the hundreds present, and all could not but admire the fine physique of the dead, who appeared to be only sleeping. The funeral procession, consisting of a long retinue of vehicles, wended its way to his lot in Evergreen cemetery, the last resting-place of the noble dead.

Joseph Cleveland

A very handsome marble monument has been erected to his memory.

In Dec., 1812, he went to live as an apprenticed cordwainer for 3 years with Dea. Nathaniel Hubbard, who was doing a large business in tanning and currying, and in the manufacture of boots and shoes at Mattituck, L. I. He faithfully fulfilled his obligations, won the confidence and esteem of the family in which he lived, and afterward married the daughters. He was a skillful workman. In Aug., 1816, he went to Catskill, N. Y., where he wrought in fine work for a year, employed by Gideon Reynolds. He subsequently enlarged his field of observation, and his practice as a skillful workman, in Madison, Hudson City, Goshen, and Newburgh, Orange co., N. Y.

About the year 1823 a village began to spring up around the Suffolk County Court House. This village has more recently become known as Riverhead. Mr. Cleveland made this the place of his residence in Sept., 1824. Judge Miller, in his Centennial History of the Town of Riverhead, Suffolk co., speaks of Mr. Cleveland as being, in 1825, one of the active business men of the village.

From his earliest years his Christian principles were sound, his moral character was high, and his integrity in business and other relations strict and trustworthy; but it was not until July, 1838, that he made a public confession of his Christian faith and became a full member of the First Church of Southold. Five years later he was elected to the office of deacon, and he fulfilled the duties of the office for 36 years. Soon after he became a deacon he was chosen to be one of the trustees of the church. For years he has been a director of the Suffolk County Mutual Insurance Company; and from the origin of Southold Savings Bank, in 1858, his name has been prominent on its board of trustees. He repeatedly filled various offices of public trust to which he was called by the votes of his fellow townsmen; and his character and usefulness were often manifest as a guardian of children whose orphanage has caused them to need some wise and faithful man to fill the father's place. He was especially active in the promotion of temperance throughout the county, and of religion on a far wider field. Perhaps there is no other man living who attended so many of the meetings of the Suffolk County Temperance Association throughout its whole existence from 1850 for many years.

Moses C. Cleveland was well known in all parts of Long Island, and in many places far beyond it, by his integrity of character, his generous hospitality, his great activity in the temperance reform from the beginning of the movement, more than fifty years ago, by his office as a deacon in the First Church of Southold during forty years of continuous service, and by his prominence and efficiency as a trustee of the same church for some thirty years. He was also a trustee of the Southold Savings Bank for twenty-seven years, from the time of its organization until his death, and during many years he was a director of the Suffolk County Fire Insurance Co.

He was habitually attentive, as an officer of the church, to his own personal visitation of the families of the congregation, and was also remarkably constant in attending the public worship, as well as the more social devotions, of the church. It was his habit to arrange his business so as to be always present at the meetings for prayer, where his voice was rarely heard in exhortation, but often in penitence, confession, and thanksgiving.

His health was almost invariably good until the last few months of his life. Illness very seldom kept him within doors, even for a day, and he was able to walk from room to room in his house until the evening before his death. That evening he retired early, slept sweetly during most of the night, and gradually ceased to breathe without pain. His last audible words were: "Precious Saviour! My Jesus!"

His funeral brought together in the church a large congregation, in which the number of aged men was especially noticeable. His pastor preached from the words of the Apostle Paul (Gal. i. 24): "They glorified God in me." The Rev. James T. Hamlin of Mattituck took part in the devotional services. The congregation looked for the last time, in the midst of many tears, on the face of the dead, which seemed to present the fullness and flush of vigorous life. The burial was made in the family lot in the church cemetery, not far from the church edifice, and near the graves of his father and mother, Moses and Parnell (Conklin) Cleveland.

Deacon Cleveland's absence will be greatly felt, especially in the church and congregation of which he was so many years a faithful officer, and in the family of which he was the honorable and efficient head. E. W.

Obituaries were published in the Suffolk Times, Mar. 3, 1883, etc. See "Old Age in Southold," published in the local paper, 1882. Mrs. Ency (Hubbard) Cleveland resided in the Cleveland mansion the remainder of her life, together with her son, Nathaniel Hubbard<sup>7</sup> Cleveland, Esq.

George Clinton, by whom it was presented with a bell. During the years 1818 and 1819 William Henry<sup>6</sup> was the preceptor in School Dist. No. 9 of the town of Smithtown, Suffolk co., L. I., N. Y., where, according to the custom of the day, he "boarded around." There he decided to be a physician, and during the time he taught there was also a student with the resident physician, Dr. C. H. Havens. He entered Yale after the death of his first wife. He first settled in Enfield, where he was a successful practitioner ten years, and then located himself at Shelburne Falls. After several years he removed to Springfield, where he always afterwards resided, and was a well-known allopathic physician. He was beloved and esteemed by all.

By act Mass. Gen. Court, Jan. 16, 1790, the name Dudley Atkins was changed to Dudley Atkins Tyng, that Mrs. Sarah (Tyng) Winslow of Tyngsborough (sister and heir to James Tyng of large landed estates in Tyngsborough) having no children has devised to him of her estate, and has requested him to take the surname Tyng. She was the last surviving child of Eleazur Tyng, knowing that her family were on the verge of extinction in the male line, and she having inherited the southerly portion of the Tyng plantation, wished to save the name, hence her agreement with Dudley Atkins, whose grandmother, Mary Dudley, was child of Rebecca Tyng, a da. of Edward. His mother, Sarah Kent, also of Tyng descent, was gr. gr. da. of Hannah Tyng, a da. of Edward.

Channing, the eldest son of William, in college 1793; p. 33—Francis, a lawyer at Newport 1798, p. 77, 90—letters by Francis: p. 314. — In the spring of 1810, Francis, from the effects of fatigue while engaged in the laborious discharge of his duties as a lawyer, was seized with a violent hemorrhage, and sank rapidly into a decline. He retired to Newport, where he lingered for a time amid the beautiful scenery of his native island, receiving every kindness which the assiduous care of anxious friends could lavish, and in the autumn sailed with his wife and a favorite cousin for Rio Janeiro, with the hope of finding benefit in a change of climate. But his strength had been too much exhausted, and on the 19th day out he died. Months passed over, and the spring opened before the news reached Boston, on a Sunday. On the Sunday following Rev. W. E. Channing preached two appropriate discourses, in which, while not attempting to hide the sense of his own loss, he showed his people that an ascending angel had opened to him bright glimpses of heaven. — *N. +3195 HORACE WILLIAM SHALER<sup>7</sup> CLEVELAND, b. Dec. 16, 1814, Lancaster.

CAPT. RICHARD JEFFRY<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, the navigator, well known by his Narrative of Voyages and Commercial Enterprises. An account of these voyages is now contained in the neat volume, Voyages of a Merchant Navigator of the days that are past, compiled from the Journals and letters of the late Richard J. Cleveland by H. W. S. Cleveland, Harper & Bros., 1886. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. Richard J.<sup>6</sup>, when 14 years of age, entered the counting-house of Elias Hasket Derby, remaining 4 years, and acquired not only the merely technical elements of mercantile education but an accurate knowledge of naval affairs and a taste for commercial adventure. Went on his first voyage when only 18. He went first as captain's clerk, under command of Capt. Nathaniel Silsbee, his fellow clerk at Mr. Derby's. His subsequent voyages were made in the capacity of commander and owner. In 1797, while in command of Mr. Derby's ship Benjamin, at Havre, France, he was ordered to abandon the voyage to Mocha, and sent the ship home. He bought the cutter Caroline and embarked on his own account, and sailed for the Isle of France. In 1799 he voyaged from China to N. W. coast of America, back to China, thence to Calcutta; 1803-4 round the world in his own brig, the Lelia Byrd. He navigated to all parts of the world from 60° S. lat. to 60° N. lat. His son, H. W. S.<sup>7</sup> Cleveland, gives the following incidents of his life:

"My father, Richard J.<sup>d</sup>, soon after marriage, bought an estate in Lancaster, Mass., in company with his brother, William<sup>d</sup>, and they both removed there, accompanied by their father-in-law, Major Hiller, who was then a widower. My father's intention then was to abandon the sea, but as may be seen in his narrative he was subsequently obliged to return to it, and performed some of his most adventurous voyages between that date and 1825. About 1822 William<sup>d</sup> sold his share of the property to Richard J.<sup>d</sup>, who dwelt at Lancaster to 1825, then sold to his old friend and fellow voyager, Wm. Shaler, who had just been appointed U. S. Consul at Havana. Mr. Shaler invited Richard J.<sup>d</sup> to go with him as Vice-Consul, sharing equally the emoluments of the office. Mr. Shaler was a bachelor, and the Lancaster home was occupied by his sister, Mrs. Stillwell, to whom he bequeathed it. It was afterward purchased by the State and has been occupied for many years as an Industrial School for girls. The old homestead, however, was set on fire by one of the inmates and destroyed in 1876. It was a fine specimen of an old-fashioned country house of the better class, of brick, three stories high, with massive walls and deep window-seats, a piazza in front and a lawn of several acres shaded with grand old elms between the house and the highway.

In Havana Mr. Shaler resided with Richard J.<sup>d</sup>, in a house on the Calle Obra Pía, at the corner of a short street leading from the gate of the Custom House to the Plaza de San Francisco. The warm friendship which had existed between them for so many years continued unbroken till Mr. Shaler's death, of cholera, in 1832. The disease was then raging fearfully in Havana, and on coming in from his afternoon walk, at 5 P. M. Mr. Shaler said he was attacked by it, and although every effort was made for his relief he died the next morning at 7 o'clock. More than 800 victims died at Havana on the same day, and so great was the panic and consternation that it was with great difficulty that my father procured permission to place the remains of his old friend in a coffin, as the bodies of the dead were piled in carts and buried together in pits. Richard J.<sup>d</sup> attended in person and alone at Mr. Shaler's burial in the foreigner's cemetery, near Chorero, on the sea shore about 5 miles west of the entrance to the harbor of Havana, and subsequently placed upon his grave a massive block of granite with a suitable inscription. I last saw it in 1835.

On the death of Mr. Shaler a petition was sent to Washington, signed by all the American merchants in Havana, another from New York, and a third from Boston, backed by a letter from Daniel Webster, soliciting appointment of my father to the vacant Consulship, he having been in actual performance of all the essential duties of the office for four years, and so satisfactorily as to elicit the encomiums of the Department of State and Treasury to which his reports were rendered.

But Gen. Jackson was then President,— my father was a staunch Whig, and the then Sec'y of State, Mr. Marcy, had just announced the policy that "To the victors belong the spoils"; the place was given to Nicholas P. Trist, a young Virginia lawyer, who had been private secretary to the President, a gentlemanly, intelligent, and honorable man, but inexperienced in maritime affairs or the peculiar duties devolving upon the Consul in a port of such importance as Havana then was to American commerce. He had counted fully upon securing my father's services as Vice-Consul, and at once proposed to him to continue in the office on the same terms as before. To this, however, my father could not be reconciled, and he left the office on Mr. Trist's arrival, which, however, was not till 18 months after his appointment.

On returning from Havana in 1835, my parents lived for a time in Salem, but removed from there to Boston in 1837, and remained till 1845, when they removed to Burlington, N. J., and took up their abode with me, and where my mother died. Her remains were brought to Salem. In 1854 my father removed with me to Salem, where we resided to 1857, when I purchased a comfortable house in Danvers, where my father dwelt till his death. He was buried in the same grave with my mother in my lot in Harmony Grove Cemetery in Salem. Salem Register contained an obituary written by the editor. A number of extended notices appeared in different quarters. From Boston Courier, Dec. 8, 1860, written by Geo. S. Hillard, Esq.:

"The late Richard J. Cleveland. In announcing a few days since the death of this venerable and excellent man, we promised to pay some more extended tribute to his worth than we then did, and this promise we now propose to redeem. He had nearly reached the great age of 77 years when he died, having long survived most of his contemporaries, and moving among their children and grandchildren as one of the few survivors of a former generation. He was trained in the counting house of the late E. H. Derby, Esq., and, as was the case with so many energetic spirits at that time, he combined the duties and the knowledge of the merchant and the navigator. His first voyage was in 1793, in company with the late Nathl. Silsbee, who commanded the brig. Mr. Silsbee was not 20 years of age, and his chief mate was about as old, and Mr. Cleveland, who was captain's clerk, was only 19. The beginning, however, of that series of enterprises which formed the main work of his life, and in which he showed such remarkable qualities of mind and character, was in 1797, when finding himself at Havre, and left at liberty by the unexpected abandonment of a voyage by the owner of a ship he had the charge of, he bought a little cutter of only thirty-eight tons, and sailed for the Isle of France, with a crew of two men and a boy. From that time till 1804 he was navigating at first alone, and afterwards in company with the late William Shaler, in all parts of the world, and achieving triumphantly feats which experienced navigators regarded as impossibilities.

"From 1804 to 1820 he was more or less engaged in commercial enterprises which were marked with the characteristics of almost unequalled boldness combined with a power of execution which enabled him to carry them to a successful issue. The incidents of these eventful years were detailed by him in a work published in 1842, in two volumes, entitled, 'A Narrative of Voyages and Commercial Enterprises,' which was favorably received by the public, passed through two editions in America and was republished in England. The work is written in a style of attractive simplicity, and no one can read it without admiration of the noble and generous qualities which the unpretending narrative unconsciously reveals.

"He was a man of traits of character not often found in combination. He had great boldness, resolution, and energy, inflexible courage and indomitable perseverance; but he was no less remarkable for refinement of feeling, purity of soul, and delicacy of perception. A more perfect gentleman, alike in essence and manner, was never seen. His domestic affections were very strong; he had a genuine enjoyment of nature; and a love of reading which was a constant pleasure and resource, alike in the busy and the unemployed moments of his life. Capt. Cleveland during the crowded years of activity and enterprise made and lost much property, and more than once deemed himself and had a right to deem himself a rich man; but the end of it was that in his old age he found himself a poor man. This result was not owing, as might be surmised, to any reckless and extravagant habits induced by the ease with which his independence had been won, for he was a man of very simple tastes, and with no expensive wants. But he was extremely generous, and this trait led him to aid with profuse liberality all who had any claims upon his affection.

"His own nature, too, was so simple and guileless, that he never suspected selfishness or dishonesty in others, and thus his confidence was sometimes misplaced, and to his loss. And while in the planning of commercial enterprises he showed rare inventive qualities, he was somewhat deficient in those humbler faculties which tell men how to keep and manage what they have earned; and no one need be told that the accumulation of wealth depends quite as much upon the latter class of gifts as upon the former. But this reverse of fortune served to bring out more and more of the beauty of Captain Cleveland's character, and give him new claims to the affection and esteem of his friends. It was gently, patiently, and heroically borne; never a word of complaint was heard from his lips, never a bitter arraignment of the ways of Providence, never an envious fling at the prosperity of others. And the wise, kind, cheerful old man was happy to the end. His last years were passed in the family of his youngest son, soothed and gladdened by the most affectionate care. His decay was gradual and he was released at last without suffering.

"Capt. Cleveland, among other traits, was remarkable for his strict temperance, although he grew up at a time when the usages of society made abstinence from intoxicating drinks a harder duty than now. During his whole life he never drank a glass of wine, or of any alcoholic liquor, or of porter, ale, or beer, and never used tobacco in any form. He ascribed his uniform good health to these temperate habits; but with his usual simplicity of nature he never took any moral airs upon himself on this account, but was accustomed to say, when he alluded to the subject at all, which was very rarely, that the reason he did not drink wine was because he did not like the taste of it."

H. W. S.<sup>7</sup> Cleveland writes: "Of my father's character I hardly dare trust myself to speak lest the mere expression of what I know to be simply the truth in regard to its many rare traits of excellence should seem the exaggeration of natural affection. His courage was the most unflinching I ever saw. When opposition was to be overcome he seemed to be utterly insensible of danger, and yet in his familiar intercourse with friends his invariable good humor and genial temper was a marked trait, and his shrewdness and ready wit, together with the rich store of information and knowledge of mankind acquired by his wide experience, and his extensive and judicious reading, made him a favorite wherever he was known and won for him the warm friendship of a wide circle to whom he was always a welcome guest. To my mind, however, his most admirable characteristic was the moral courage which enabled him to bear up and preserve his cheerfulness and self-reliance under the most trying reverses of fortune. I should be doing injustice to his memory were I to omit to notice his devotion to my mother, which was nothing less than chivalrous. Her characteristics were such as justly to command his love and admiration, and to the end of her days his tender regard for her wishes seemed to be the actuating motive of his life. He was much gratified by the fact that the Admiralty Board ordered a copy of his Narrative for the library of every ship of war in the British Navy."

HON. WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND resided Lancaster to 1821, afterward always in Salem, where he succeeded his bro., George<sup>6</sup>, in the presidency of the Commercial Insurance Co. of Salem, and was for many years an incumbent in that office. He was a prominent business man. He represented Lancaster in the General Court of Massachusetts—Marvin's Lancaster, 528: Voyages of a Merchant Navigator, 13—was a member, from August, 1821, of the E. India Marine Society of Salem. H. W. S' Cleveland writes:

"The memory of my dear uncles, William and George, brings with it such a flood of delightful associations that I cannot be content to pass them by with the mere record of dates of birth and death. With less of the impetuous energy which led my father to the achievement of such feats as are narrated in his voyages, they possessed the chivalrous spirit, the refined taste, and the generous and affectionate disposition which won and held firmly the friendship and esteem of all who came in contact with them. In a letter from my brother Henry, from La Recompensa, Cuba, during the last winter of his life, to my Aunt Lucy, the widow of my uncle, William, he thus records his recollections of him:

"Well do I remember the long and pleasant walks we used to take together, and the taste and various ideas I acquired from him. All that I know and care about architecture is owing to the taste which he inspired, and much of my musical taste was formed by his correct and strictly accurate judgment. And what is far more than all this, I have before me, in my recollections of him, the model of a truly just and good man. When I think of all the beautiful attributes of his character, I am incited and encouraged to become like him, as far as possible. I am taught how immeasurably above wealth and worldly pomp are the humble and truly Christian virtues which adorned his life. His memory is a rich legacy to his children (and I feel almost like one of them), and to all who knew him."

"I am ready, from my own recollections, to endorse every line of the above, and I am sure that my dear brother would have said the same of my uncle, George, whom he equally loved and admired, and with whom he had a very strong bond of sympathy in literary tastes. My own recollections of these two most excellent men serve chiefly to show me the futility of the effort to convey to others any adequate conception of their attractive powers." Bancroft's Hist. of Cal., II, 10, mentions his vessel touched the Cal. coast, 1803.

Deacon WILLIAM<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND resided first at Norwich, where he learned the trade of silversmith, watch and clockmaker. His farm was on Bean Hill. His jewelry shop, the first house south of the Methodist E. Church, is still remaining, now A. A. Adams' tavern. Here he manufactured spoons; on the back of the handle of which the name CLEVELAND was embossed in bold, handsome letters. Specimens still exist; one of these spoons was presented to his great grand-daughter Ruth, a daughter of President Grover Cleveland; an account of the presentation appeared in The Sun, N. Y., Feb. 6, 1893.— Soon after marriage he set up in business at Worthington, Mass. He removed to Salem where he remained in business a few years, thence went to New York. However, he lived most of his life at Bean Hill, an outskirt of Norwich.

Caulkins' Norwich, 520 — "Dea. William Cleveland, after a residence of some years in New London and N. Y., returned to Norwich and was set apart to the office of deacon of the first Congregational Church, Apr. 30, 1812. He was a man of sociable, amiable temperament and fervent piety." He was deacon in the church at Norwich Town for 25 years — the remainder of his life. He was a quiet man, and, according to the fashion of the times, had his seat under the lofty pulpit of Rev. Dr. Joseph Strong's church, from whose hands he received the bread service to distribute on communion days, and where, with his clear, rich, piercing tenor voice he "raised the tune," St. Martin's or St. Ann's, when, as occasionally befel, the choir, the tuning fork, pitch pipe, bass viol or organ happened to be wanting.

REV. CHARLES<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, the well known City Missionary of Boston for many years. The events of his life are given in his obituary :

Boston Daily Advertiser, June 6, 1872—The Rev. FATHER CLEVELAND, the aged, respected, and beloved minister, d. at his residence at 6.20 o'clock yesterday morning. His death had been anticipated at any moment during the past few weeks, although at times he has seemed to revive, and his friends were led to hope that he might live to complete his 100 years. His birthday would have occurred on 21st inst., so that he lacked but 16 days of that period. He was conscious to the last. But a short time before he expired a friend asked him, "Is all peace within?" and he replied, quoting that verse which was always a great favorite with him, "Trust ye in the Lord forever: for in the Lord (Jehovah) is everlasting strength." He then spoke to another friend and said "Prayer," but before the petition was concluded he was dead. He was b. at Norwich, Conn. At the age of 12 he was taken to Salem and placed in the family of his uncle, Maj. Joseph Hiller. Two years later he sailed on a voyage to Cape of Good Hope, and shortly after his return in 1784, he was apprenticed to a Salem merchant. For the next 13 years he was clerk and Dep. Col. of Custom House, Salem. Afterward he rem. to Charlestown, where he was engaged as clerk. 1800 to 1810, he did business as a stock and exchange broker in this city, and while thus engaged published a set of exchange tables which have not yet passed out of use. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. He followed mercantile pursuits the next 9 years [was, 1827, of Cleveland and Dane (John) English goods], the place of his business being 43 Market st., now Cornhill. [Was, 1829, broker, 40 State st. There exists an office desk used by him many years.] About this time he became interested in the formation of a Society for the Moral, &c., Interests of the Poor, organized, 1816, at his house. A lot was purchased, 1819, on which to erect a mission house (the funds for which he collected), built and dedicated May, 1821. He was appointed, 1830, city missionary to the poor, with 2 associates. The work from that time on engaged his undivided attention, and the devotion of his best energies. When 3 years later the managers of the mission, their funds being greatly reduced, found it necessary, to their deep regret, to dismiss their 3 missionaries, Mr. Cleveland, recommended by numerous clergymen, continued to work as a missionary on his own individual responsibility. He was licensed to preach, 1835, ordained as evangelist, 1838. His work for the past 40 years has been remarkable. He devoted his whole time ministering to the poor. His eulogy is written in the hearts not only of the thousands of the poor whom he had befriended, but of the rich as well, of whose bounty he was the almoner. He had written his report for 1872, also a hymn for his 100th birthday.

Advertis., June 10—Funeral June 8, from his late res., 20 E. Springfield st., and public ceremonies, conducted by Rev. Drs. Webb and G. W. Blagden from Shawmut church of which father Cleveland was member many years. Flowers were in every place near the coffin. His remains were interred by side of Mrs. Cleveland, in Forest Hills.

A fine steel portrait of him has been engraved by H. B. McClellan.

He and his beloved companion united with the Brick church R. Aug. 2, 1829, and on Sabbath Nov. 4, 1838, he was ordained one of its elders. From his funeral discourse by Rev. Dr. James B. Shaw :

"We loved Mr. Pratt and lament him because of his Christian courtesy. He was a gentleman of the old school, a school fast dying out. Such natural grace, such quiet dignity; such forgetfulness of self and thoughtfulness of others; such unaffected modesty and winning gentleness we do not soon expect to find again. But if we have sustained a loss by the sudden departure of our father Pratt, Christ has gained thereby."

DR. ANTHONY BENEZET<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND resided first at Salem, Mass., where he was taught watch-making by his uncle William<sup>5</sup> Cleveland. In Salem he became an Unitarian. He became Professor of Physics in the Maryland University, Baltimore. His sensitive nature forced him to relinquish his profession. He prepared for teaching with Dr. Cox, and afterward established and conducted many years in Baltimore a school for young ladies, which in a short time became a flourishing institution. On account of failing health he was obliged to relinquish his labors in 1845. The school still (1882) exists, and belongs to Mr. N. H. Morrison. Author and poet. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. He studied medicine, and became a practising physician of Dedham, Mass. (lived on Federal Hill), of Cincinnati, O., of Boston, and of Cambridge, Aug., 1859. Member, Aug., 1859, of the American Assoc. for the Advancement of Science, of Mass. He is buried in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, where a monument to his memory has been erected by his Baltimore pupils.

Dr. Anthony Benezet<sup>6</sup> Cleveland was named for an anti-slavery man, evidently Anthony Benezet, an early agitator against slave trade here, a son of Jean Etienne Benezet, a Huguenot, who fled from France time of Nantes edict.

Rev. Samuel Hanson Cox, D.D., LL.D., the well-known Presbyterian divine and author, was educated at Weston, Penn. He also received private instruction in Philadelphia, and in 1811 commenced the study of law with William Halsey, Esq., at Newark, N. J. In the War of 1812, with a number of young men who subsequently became eminent—among them Mr. Southard and Mr. Frelinghuysen—he served in a volunteer company of riflemen. He became deeply interested in the Scriptures (1812), and was baptized March, 1813. He studied theology partly with Rev. Dr. James Richards of Newark, N. J., and then with Rev. James P. Wilson, D.D., of Philadelphia. He was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of New York Oct. 10, 1816. He was ordained and installed pastor of the church of Mendham, N. J., July 1, 1817; he was installed by the Presbytery of New York Dec. 25, 1820, pastor of the Spring street church. The congregation built a new house of worship in Laight street, corner of Varick, which was opened August 28, 1825. Here his congregation was largely composed of many leading merchants and professional men of the city. He took a leading part in the foundation of the University of the City of New York, and in the literary conventions (one of which was presided over by ex-President John Quincy Adams) which promoted and counselled the plans of its organization. He was appointed to open the instructions of the University with the late Dr. McIlvaine, afterward Bishop of Ohio, and delivered one of the two memorable courses of lectures in the winter of 1831-'32, his department being that of Moral Philosophy. During the cholera season of the latter year he remained at his post until stricken down by the disease.

In impaired health Dr. Cox went to Europe in 1833, where a speech, which he delivered at that time at the anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in London, Lord Bexley in the chair, gained him great distinction, and opened the way to high honors and attentions. What was then unusual for Americans, he was introduced to the highest social circles in London, as also in Scotland and the Provinces.

The anti-slavery sentiment then predominant in England made a great impression on Dr. Cox, and although he publicly defended his country in a memorable speech, as well as in private society, he soon after his return preached a sermon against slavery, which although moderate in tone, drew upon him as a conspicuous person a great share of the violence with which the anti-slavery agitators were then visited (1834). [His house and church in N. Y. city were mobbed in the riots of 1834.] He was never identified, however, with extreme measures, and afterward took a leading conservative position in all questions connected with the South, which for a long time agitated the Presbyterian Church. In other questions which for a time divided that denomination, his theological standing was with the New School, of which he was a prominent champion. In the order and discipline of his church, however, he maintained an exceptionally high and most thorough Old School position, so far as conformity to the Standards is concerned. He was elected Professor of Pastoral Theology in the Theological Seminary at Auburn in the spring of 1834, and accepted the position; but in May, 1837, he became pastor of the first Presbyterian congregation in Brooklyn, L. I., where he built a new church in Henry street. For a long time, both in Brooklyn and New York, he maintained a position of great eminence with unvarying popularity and commanding influence.

In May, 1846, he was elected Moderator of the General Assembly (N. S.) of the Presbyterian Church, and the following August attended the Evangelical Alliance in London, of which he was a leading member. On his return he encountered peril of shipwreck on the coast of Ireland, when the steamer "Great Britain" was stranded in the Bay of Dundrum. In 1852, his health declining, he visited Nassau; but with so little good effect that, against the remonstrances of his people and the most liberal proposals on their part, he resigned his charge, April, 1854, and retired to a pleasant property which they enabled him to purchase at Owego, N. Y. He considered his career as a pastor at an end, but frequently delivered lectures and appeared in pulpits in New York for several years subsequently.

Dr. Cox for many years was Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the Union Theological Seminary of New York, and also presided for a time over the Female College at LeRoy, N. Y. For the last twelve years of his life he lived in great retirement in Westchester county. Although much criticised for personal eccentricities, he has been generally recognized as a man of high character and commanding talents, of great boldness in expressing his strong convictions, and of singular power and magnetism as an orator. For a long period no man was regarded as his superior in popular eloquence among the clergy of New York. As a consistent Christian, his great purity and marked simplicity of life secured to him, through a long and useful career, the uniform respect of his fellow men.

The honorary degree of A.M. was conferred on him in 1818 by the College of New Jersey, and of D.D. by Williams College in 1825. He received also the degree of LL.D. in 1855 from Marietta College.—Compiled chiefly from the New York Tribune, as republished in the New York Evangelist, Oct. 7, 1880.

The New York Observer, Oct. 14, 1880, contains a letter by Rev. S. Irenæus Prime, "Memories of the late Rev. Samuel Hanson Cox, D.D.," from which we extract:

"One of the most brilliant intellects of the American pulpit passed into another sky when Dr. Cox was glorified. More learned men, more logical and far more nicely balanced minds, more useful ministers and leaders, have lived in his day. But we have had no one with his blazing genius, bold and dazzling eloquence, range of imagination, fertility of illustration, astonishing memory, exuberant wit, rapid association of ideas, stores of fact and words from classic authors, and a faculty of expression that combined the sturdy, grotesque eccentricities of Carlyle with the flow and beauty of Macaulay. A meteor streams across the sky, and for a brief moment we rejoice in its light, its beauty and brilliancy disappear, and the stars shine on steadily in their orbits. It is sad to know that so little of what Dr. Cox said remains on the printed page or in the memories of those who survive him. He did not write as he spoke. He would have failed as an author. No reporting did justice to his rhetoric, which, transcending all rules, was a law unto itself, blinding the eyes and ravishing the ears of his hearers. When he was told that Caleb Cotton had said, 'Were it not for his Coxisms, Dr. Cox would be a great man,' Dr. Cox answered, 'Yes, he might even have been as great as Caleb Cotton.' He did have his 'Coxisms.' They were marked peculiarities of verbal utterances, by which he was distinguished from all the preachers of his time. Having a slight impediment of speech (like Demosthenes of old) to contend with, he hesitated on certain letters, and hence he selected instinctively words with such initials as he could utter readily. This accustomed his lips to words and modes of expression that startled by their novelty. His vocabulary was copious, and words were made fluent by fitness to convey the idea; words which no mortal man but Dr. Cox or Thomas Carlyle would have invented for their place. The Latin and Greek languages were so familiar that he garnished his discourse with classic phrases. * * I do thank God for such men, for their friendship, for genial intercourse, nightly converse, and daily service with such servants of Christ. Their names were long since written in heaven. The earth seems dim since their light has gone out. IRENEUS."

FUNERAL SERVICES OF DR. S. H. COX.

The bringing of the remains of Dr. Cox from Westchester county, where he had lived in great retirement for the past twelve or fifteen years, to the First Presbyterian church of Brooklyn for services befitting the memorable career of his active life, seemed like the resurrection of a saint from the grave. As in the history of all men, whether great or small, once out of the current of usual activity they are soon forgotten. The First Church of Brooklyn was built for Dr. Cox. The first words of worship in it came from his lips; and here he administered the first communion. The house was filled on the impressive funeral occasion of Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 7th, and all the more solemn by reason of the fact that a large proportion of the congregation was made up of people beyond the prime of life, many of whom had grey heads and came with feeble steps. A simple black cloth covering the pulpit was the only mourning emblem. Nor were any flowers seen, as the friends of the deceased had requested that they be omitted.

The casket was of ebony covered with a black velvet pall, and on the silver plate, upon the lid, was the inscription, "Samuel Hanson Cox, D.D., died October 2, in his 88th year." All the First Church elders and trustees accompanied the relatives to the grave. A correspondent who was present sends us the following detailed account of the services:

"This church (the First church of Brooklyn) was the theater for seventeen years of the most honored and useful pastoral and ministerial labors of this eminent servant of God, and the congregation honored his memory by making their house of worship, for a few hours, the last resting place for his remains, on their way to the 'City of the Dead.'

"Rev. C. Cuthbert Hall, the present pastor of the church, repeated the usual words of Scripture as the corpse was borne up the aisle and placed in front of that pulpit from which the great truths, warnings, promises, and consolations of 'the glorious Gospel of the blessed God' had been, from 1837 to 1854, so ably and so eloquently proclaimed.

"Rev. Charles S. Robinson, D.D., a former pastor of the church, read the 90th Psalm and a part of 1 Cor. XV. Hymn 1187 of the Songs of the Sanctuary,

'Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb,
'Take this new treasure to thy trust,' was then tenderly sung by the choir and congregation. Rev. Mr. Hall made some appropriate remarks, and offered prayer.

"The principal address was by Rev. R. S. Storrs, D.D., of the Church of the Pilgrims. He was followed by Rev. Dr. E. F. Hatfield. Each of these clergymen, from long and intimate personal acquaintance with the deceased, was qualified to pay a glowing tribute to his memory. [Dr. Storrs, in an outburst of eloquence, said: "When Dr. Cox expounded the mysteries of the Book of the Revelation, such was the wealth of his illustrations and imagery, that it seemed as if all the gold and precious stones — jasper, sapphire and emerald, jacinth, amethyst, and pearls — of the heavenly City were showered upon the hearers in a flood of glory."]

"The 77th hymn, 'My faith looks up to Thee, Thou Lamb of Calvary,' (a favorite of Dr. Cox) was then sung. Dr. Hatfield offered prayer and gave the benediction. The remains were taken to Greenwood, and deposited in the tomb prepared by the congregation for the pastors of the church, two of whom, Rev. Mr. Sanford and Rev. Dr. D. L. Carroll, had preceded him to their final rest.

"A large number of clergymen were in attendance. The pall-bearers were the Rev. Drs. John Hall, of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church; C. S. Robinson, of the Memorial Presbyterian Church; Wm. Ormiston, of the Collegiate Reformed Church; R. D. Hitchcock and E. P. Prentice, of the Union Theological Seminary; E. B. Burchard, formerly of the Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church, and A. W. Spaulding."

Gen. ERASTUS<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, who commanded the U. S. forces at Sackett's Harbor and Owego, N. Y., war of 1812, was one of the most prominent citizens of Central New York in business matters, politics, and military affairs. Gen. Erastus<sup>6</sup> gave the following account of himself in a statement written about 1855:

"The first Cleveland who came to this country (as related to me by my grandmother), from England was John Cleveland, whose wife was Scotch. They landed at Boston, had 7 sons 1 daughter Phebe, she m. and went to Halifax, 2 sons settled in Mass., 2 in (now) Vt.; 2 in Conn., and 1 in Va. [No records whatever to substantiate; likely his grandmother confounded John with Moses<sup>1</sup>.] There is in the family to which I belong a coat of arms said to have been brought by the first that came. It contains 3 moons and a battle axe. At the age of 14 I was turned into the world to shirk for myself. Possessed of a good constitution and a laudable ambition I went to New London to learn the carpenter's trade, and engaged to serve as an apprentice until of age for my board and 45 shillings a year. When 18 I went to merchandizing. I bought my time, went to Richmond, Va., to work. When I got to Richmond I had one shilling for which I had sold the pilot of the vessel a pair of mittens. Thence I went to Petersburg, Dinwiddie co.,

MR. L. W. CRAWFORD.
MRS. L. W. CRAWFORD.

Va., and then to Savannah, Ga., was knocked overboard on the way by a boom. Worked in Savannah 3 months, returned North, spent the winter. In spring hearing of small-pox I inoculated myself with a penknife, and went to Whitestown, N. Y., and worked getting out timber. Had the small-pox bad. Lived at W. 2 years. The 20 townships, now parts of Oneida, Chenango, and Madison counties, called Governors Purchase, then offered for sale. I had saved some money and came here and bought land from Bond and Blodgett; they failed to pay for the land. I was obliged to sell my chance, and the purchaser paid for his land to the agent of Col. Troup, who was agt. for Sir William Poultney in Eng. I then bought another lot of land, 25 acres, paid $4.50 per acre. When in 1793 I came here [Madison] there was only 1 family in the town, and they moved on the day before. I built 1775 a log house and then a saw mill. The hemlocks were thick and hemlock boards good as cash. I built a grist mill and got money enough from sale of lumber to pay my workmen. My advantages for education in early life were limited. I have felt the loss, and tried to give my children all the advantages in that respect in my power. My motto has always been "Be careful in your deal and punctual in your contracts." When civil government was organized in the county they had to use such timber as they had. I was appointed Justice of the Peace, and was Judge of Court of Common Pleas [1808-10] a number of years. I was 12 years Supervisor [1807, &c.], Commissioner of Loans 20 years, Supt. of Madison co. poor 10 years, have twice represented the co. in Legislature. I have many times said I had more public favor than I was entitled to, but have endeavored to discharge the duties of any and all the offices I have held with what ability I had and with fidelity. In military affairs my first commission [1807] was 2d Maj. of militia, from that I arose through a regular grade [Lt. Col. 1812, Col. 1814] to Brigadier-General. I served 2 campaigns in war of 1812 and 1815, and have lately received a bounty land warrant of 100 acres." French's N. Y. Gazette, 1866, p. 302 — Madison, the first settlement made, 1793. Gen. Erastus Cleveland built the first grist-mill and kept the first store. Civil List and forms of government of the Colony and State of N. Y., Albany 1800 — p. 177, First Constitution, Members of Assembly, Cleveland, Erastus; co. Madison 18-7; p. 333, Second Constitution, Cleveland, Erastus, 1833.

His gr. s., Hon. Theodore Sedgwick Gold, relates that Gen. Erastus<sup>6</sup> in 1838 took him to Waweekas Hill, Norwich, and said, "Here I was born, and I bless the misfortunes that drove me from here."

Obituary of Gen. Erastus, written by Mrs. Eliza Howard, appeared in Oneida Dispatch and Democratic Republican, Feb., 1857. See History of Madison co.

Dr. WILLIAM PITT<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND dwelt many years at Morrisville, N. Y., where he was a well-known practising physician and surgeon. See Cleveland, O., Herald, Dec. 16, 1882.

[Utica Morning Herald and Daily Gazette, December 26, 1882; Morrisville, Dec. 25.]—The 100th anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Polly Cleveland was celebrated at the residence of her grandson, Charles Cleveland, a mile or two from this village, Saturday. Mrs. Cleveland came into this county and settled in Log City—now Eaton—while yet young. She married Dr. William P. Cleveland, a physician and surgeon, who resided here for a great number of years, dying here about thirty years ago. Mrs. Cleveland has a half sister, Mrs. Peggy Lombard, who is some 20 years her junior, and she is her nearest living relative. During her entire life she has attended to all the duties of a housewife, but to-day she says that she is not going to do any more work. During the past summer she has worked both indoors and out, retaining the use of all her faculties and strength to a remarkable degree. As is customary with very old people, her eyesight is dimmed and her hearing slightly impaired, but she does not suffer with the palsy or loss of memory which is so often found among people of but half her age. Accustomed during her entire life to simple fare and plenty of exercise, the entertainment furnished to the guests Saturday furnished a striking contrast. The table to which the guests sat down was loaded with all the luxuries and delicacies which adorn the menu of a first class city table d' hote. About thirty persons partook of the generous hospitality of Mrs. Cleveland's two grandsons, Charles Cleveland and our postmaster and village president, William P. Cleveland, near all of whom were relatives. A number of Mrs. Cleveland's great-grand-children, some of whom are married, were present. But few acquaintances were invited, the family circle being very large, and unbroken for four generations. See Oneida Dispatch, Dec. 20, 1882.

Mrs. Frances<sup>6</sup> (Sangster) Morse, obituary, pub. Nov., 1883:

Mrs. Morse for many years gave good evidence of being "a new creature" in Christ Jesus. Her last illness, which was protracted for several months, was very painful, but she bore her sufferings with Christian submission to the providence of God, and at last passed away in joyful hope of a blissful immortality through the merit of the Saviour of sinners. Her remains were interred in the Morse family burying-ground, Bridgetown. May God answer her prayers that her children and grandchildren, widely scattered in different lands, may all meet in the mansions of the celestial city.—

Rev. William H.<sup>7</sup> Caldwell dwelt at New Germany and Halifax, N. S. From a religious newspaper :

Account of his death and burial from the Rev. E. N. Harris. Being somewhat acquainted with Bro. Caldwell and his family previous to his entering the ministry, we may add our testimony to his devotedness to his Master's work and general concern for the progress of the gospel, long before he gave himself wholly to the ministry. With respectable natural abilities he had made good use of his opportunities, and attained a position of respect and usefulness, which many might emulate with advantage to the Church of Christ and their fellowmen.

We deeply sympathize with the bereaved family and the church of New Germany, in their affliction and sorrow.

BRIDGEWATER, July 10, 1861.

MR. EDITOR, —

Rev. WILLIAM H. CALDWELL, of New Germany, expired on the morning of the 8th inst., aged 49 years, after a sickness of five months. At an early hour this morning the Sons of Temperance, with many more, repaired to his late residence, and in procession bore away his mortal remains, deploring the demise of the man of God.

At 11 o'clock the large assembly entered the new chapel, where we were entertained by a very appropriate sermon, pronounced by Rev. B. Taylor from Heb. iv, 10. The preacher, in unfolding the passage, was careful to make very prominent the necessity of Christian labor, that by the grace of God we fail not of entering into that rest. Residing in New Germany, and being conversant with the departed during his pastorate of two years in that place, he bore the most unqualified testimony to his fidelity in his Master's cause. Bro. Taylor referred to his having visited him in his deep affliction, which he bore with sweet submission to the Divine will, accompanied with unshaken confidence in the promises of a covenant keeping God. After the writer had addressed the mourners, the church and congregation, the body of our dear brother was lodged in its last resting place, until "the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised."

Brother Caldwell had labored but a few months in New Germany before he saw and felt the necessity of having a much larger and better house for God. His brethren sympathized with him, in his views, and with a will they purchased a central site, which, under his superintendence, was soon honored with a beautiful structure, forty feet wide by fifty long. This chapel is in so advanced a stage of completion as to have, with its well arranged temporary seats, accommodated the large assemblage who entered it in tears, after the mortal remains of him, who anticipated the pleasure of publishing from its pulpit the glad tidings of the Gospel of the Son of God.

This sketch may be read with interest, as connected with a good minister of our denomination; hoping that some one acquainted with the history of Bro. C. will furnish for your columns an appropriate article.

The widow and large family of seven fatherless children let us commend especially to God and His grace. I was glad to learn that the good people of New Germany show them every kindness mingled with true Christian sympathy.

E. N. HARRIS.

History of Sandusky co., O.—contains portrait of Samuel Baker, and sketch, "The Baker Family," from which following items: "A portrait is presented of the first known representative of the family which made the first permanent settlement in Green Creek tp. Rugged labor from boyhood gave him a constitution capable of enduring pioneer life. When 16, he was in the midst of an unbroken forest, with no other society than the home circle. Clearing and planting was his only occupation, but every working day of the year was diligently occupied. He was of quiet habits and unassuming manners, a farmer, and wasted little time on outside affairs. His many friends will recognize in the portrait the plain, honest old gentleman."

Baker ancestry.—Samuel<sup>1</sup>, emigrated from N. Y. state to Sandusky co. winter of 1818, bringing family, m. Anna Utley.

Dr. ELISHA WHITTLESEY<sup>6</sup> CLEAVELAND removed 1826 to New York city, where he for many years was a successful practitioner of medicine; dwelt 1854, 144 Spring st. In 1856 he gave up medicine and retired to a farm in Lakeville.

Conn. Western News, Canaan, Conn., Feb. 13, 1881: — A Memorial Tribute.— Elisha Whittlesey Cleaveland, late of Lakeville, was born near the spot where he departed this life. He began the study of medicine in the office of Dr. Kellogg of Sheffield, and was graduated at the medical college of Pittsfield, Mass., when about 21 years of age. After his graduation he was assistant physician in the office of Dr. Turner of Salisbury. Dr. Cleveland removed to New York city to begin the practice of medicine by himself. He opened one drug store and then another, superintending the two for several years. He employed in each a capable foreman and one or more clerks. Meanwhile he practiced, keeping a careful record of his calls, but never sent out a bill for collection. Office advice he never made any record of, nor would he accept any fee for it.

His health failing somewhat he sold out his drug stores, gave up his large city practice and removed to his native town, on a rugged farm adjoining that of his father at Lakeville.

He was from boyhood an original character. He was gentle, but observing and thoughtful. He was a great admirer of nature and of the curious in art and nature. The last evening that he was able to walk, he on returning from out of doors summoned so many of his family as were home to come out and look at the stars. It was not an infrequent remark of his, "I can't see my stars very well this evening. Clouds hide them."

His language was simple, but his expressions were for the most part unique. While he never laughed, one could not converse with him without smiling or laughing at his witty sayings. As a physician he studied men more than medical books. It was common for him to advise one and another to have the least possible to do with physicians. And still he would never doctor himself nor any member of his family. He always had his family physician. He held salt and water in high esteem as a medicine and a wash; for over 60 years he daily washed his head (close shaved), his face and hands in salt and water. He never used soap to wash his person. His clothing in color and fashion was quakerish; a black garment he would not wear. He never wore a cravat or so-called necktie; he would not black his boots, but did keep them oiled. He would "broom" his clothes, but not brush them. Swimming was a diversion and constitutional with him all his life.

For over 40 years he was an active Mason. His religious views were avowedly those of the Quakers, though it is not known that he ever worshipped with them. His religion was thorough-going honesty. He preferred to lose dues rather than go for men as if they would cheat if they could.

On coming into the country he said he came there to withdraw from practice. When persons came for him he would sometimes respond to their calls, but in no instance would he accept compensation for his services. He possessed quite a museum of curiosities from all lands.

One of his admirers and true friends to the last was the venerable and renowned ex-President Hopkins of Williams college.

Standing by his bedside one night he unaccountably fell to the floor, dislocating his hip joint and fracturing its socket. Unable to move or be moved, he after a few days peacefully died, 87 years old, greatly respected and beloved by all knowing him." *.*

Mrs. Jane (Greason) Cleaveland still res. Lakeville, 1895.

"You ask for a sketch of my father. I can only say I could easier write his biography than a sketch that would do him justice. Near the close of the Revolutionary war his father was drafted into the army, and he, though but seventeen years of age, was accepted as his substitute. While acting as a scout he was taken prisoner near Lake Champlain, and carried to Quebec, Canada. Being in prison with an Englishman of education, who took pleasure in teaching him arithmetic and surveying, a thirst for learning more was awakened, and on his return home, at the close of the war, he commenced studying with Rev. Dr. Burton, Thetford, Vt., with a view to entering Dartmouth College. This was prevented by the failure of his health, and he was employed by Government in surveying the new townships of Northern Vermont. Another benefit of his soldier life and what appeared the misfortune of imprisonment, was his receipt of a pension for life, which was continued to his widow after him. He was passionately fond of the business of surveying, and his apology for not writing me on his 80th birthday was that he was out surveying. His sight, which had failed for years, had become strong again, and his hair retained its color, and though three miles from church, he often preferred walking to riding, for the sake of the exercise. Though settled upon a farm, he was engaged in teaching during the winter for twenty-five years, till most of his children had received their common school education. He usually held one or more town offices, and often assisted in the settlement of the estates of his neighbors and friends. Though too doubtful of his own religious state to join the church till late in life, he was eminently a religious man, always maintaining prayers in his family and in his school. He was the first Sunday-school superintendent I ever knew, and among the first in New Hampshire; and continued his connection with the S. S. either as supt. or teacher as long as he lived. His love for children increased with his years, and he was greatly beloved by them in return. Though a moderate drinker, as to the use of ardent spirits so universal in his day, he was one of the first to place himself under the banner of total abstinence, giving up for the sake of others what he conceived to be the real advantages of a restricted use of such stimulants. In fine, he was a good man, and a just, and his memory is precious. He was the most honest, unselfish man I ever knew. If he erred at all, it was in loving his neighbor better than himself, a characteristic which has descended to some of his children."

and will be no less interesting than the preceding one by his son.

"Daniel, eldest son of elder Samuel and Abigail, Cleveland Hovey, was born in Canterbury, Conn., July 24, 1724. In his childhood or early youth his parents removed to the town of Lyme, N. H.

"On the 27th of October, 1781, he, with four others, were sent on a scout from a fort in Corinth, and were fired upon in the town of Jericho by a party of sixteen Tories, some of whom were acquainted with, and had partaken of the hospitality of, the family. One member of the scouting party was mortally wounded, and died the next day. The scouts jumped into some hogs, brakes and tank bushes, and hid themselves. Four of them were soon discovered, and three being asked in turn how many there were, answered, 'four'; when the fourth one was asked, being a very honest fellow, he answered, 'five.' Thereupon search was made for the fifth, and Daniel was discovered. On being ordered, he at once gave up his arms, but he told me that for awhile he trembled excessively. He said, 'One said on hearing my account, "I would not have given up my gun"; another, "I would not have come from my cover"; but none of them knew what they would have done.' The leader of the Tories shook him by the hand, inquired after the health of his father, and said if he had him there he would treat him. It appeared this story was supposed to be a patriot, and had been told of the contemplated expedition of the scouts.

"The four scouts were taken to Quebec and imprisoned; Daniel being confined in the same cell with an elderly prisoner of good education, who had been for some years a teacher. They sold a part of their allowance of food, and bought paper and a few books, and at this manner the ready scholar acquired a considerable part of his education. They were permitted to exercise occasionally in making pickets under a guard, outside the prison walls. A charitable lady occasionally sent them a welcome present of some nice little dish as an addition to their prison fare. After a captivity of eleven months, his father received intelligence that an exchange of prisoners had been made, and that the son was liberated. He went a day's journey to meet his footsore son, lent him the horse, and walked home by his side.

"After the close of the war our scout married Beulah Pingree, a highly accomplished and very beautiful young lady, and settled on the banks of the Connecticut, in the town of Lyme, Grant's Island being a part of his farm. In addition to his farming business, he taught in the district schools of the town more than twenty winters; filled nearly all offices of honor and trust; was active in establishing a circulating library; was often chosen to settle differences among his neighbors and townsmen; never had a lawsuit, and was 'Uncle Daniel' to all, young or old, of his acquaintance.

"Having for many years received from a grateful Government a pension for the patriotic services of his youth, and having lived to a good old age and seen his six children useful, beloved, and respected, the dear old saint departed to that rest that remaineth to the people of God.

"In stature he was short, had dark brown hair and blue eyes; was very unassuming, in his appearance, and in his countenance and manner of speaking resembled his mother more than any other of his children I ever knew. In his will he bequeathed a Bible to each of his grandchildren and one to his grandnephew, D. H. Sprague, my younger son (deceased)."

The following inscription upon his monument in the cemetery at Lyme, N. H., was prepared in accordance with his wish:

"Daniel Hovey, born in Windham, Conn., July 24, 1724, married Beulah Pingree of Hanover, Feb. 15, 1751;—by whom he had four sons and six daughters. Died March 11, 1852, aged 127."

Abigail<sup>6</sup> Hovey "was m. to Oliver Hibbard, whose parents were emigrants from Conn. She and her husband resided on a small farm in the vicinity of their respective parents, suffering the hardships and enjoying the pleasures incident to the dwellers in a new settlement. They were frequent attendants at Sabbath worship in the schoolhouse, with the long benches, and many are the times they have ridden to the meetings—about a mile—on one horse, with each a child in arms. As their family increased in numbers, the parents and children rode together in a common farm-cart, drawn by a yoke of oxen; for pleasure carriages were then unknown in the community, or were few in number. She always seemed to feel the presence of poverty very sensibly, endeavoring to compel limited means to make a respectable appearance. Although an excellent cook, she was accustomed to disparage the fare set before her friends and family. Her pious husband's answer usually was: 'It is good enough for saints; too good for sinners.' She was large in form—would probably weigh 180 or more; was extremely quick and sensitive in her feelings, and resembled her father in features and mental character more than her mother. She was quick, active, and diligent in household occupations—a very neat housekeeper."

RUTH H. SPRAGUE.

Capt. Oliver Hibbard was a prosperous farmer. Was enrolled at Brookfield in First Light Infantry Co., Vt., State Troops, rose from private through the non-commissioned and commissioned offices to capt., commanding his own co., served in this rank until no longer liable to do military duty. He never could be induced to hold an office except on school boards. Was beloved by all.

Concerning her own parents Mrs. Sprague contributes the following interesting account:

"Elizabeth Perkins<sup>6</sup> Hovey, tenth child of Elder Samuel and Abigail C. Hovey, was born on Grant's Island, in Connecticut river, containing sixty acres of excellent land. A slight bluff near the centre of the island was adorned by a house and barn, to one of which a canoe was fastened during times of high water—all of the remaining land being submerged. At the time of her birth, Apr. 15, 1783, the ice of the river being deeply covered with water, and rapidly thawing, the company invited on the occasion were carried across on men's shoulders. The family remained in this island home till her ninth year, and the little fishes were among her earliest playthings. She delighted to feed them with crumbs of bread and bits of meat, and her brothers, desiring to terrify her, caught her and tossed her into the water, but instead of being terrified she was delighted.

"From the island the family removed to Norwich, Vt., and at the age of twelve they again removed to Brookfield. Here she became a pupil in a little log schoolhouse, which was afterwards burned. Her health during three years was very delicate, and she was believed by her family to be in a confirmed consumption; but at the age of eighteen it greatly improved, and a journey on horseback, with a change of air and diet confirmed it.

"At the age of nineteen she formed a contract of marriage with Gurdon Hibbard, a brother of Oliver, he being one year her senior; but constant labor as a journeyman carpenter destroyed his health, and he was pronounced by his physicians, after a year of medical treatment, to be in a hopeless consumption. But he was not hopeless. He performed a journey on horseback to Saratoga Springs, in the state of New York, in opposition to the strenuous advice of his family, they never expecting to see him come back alive. After drinking the water a few weeks, his racking cough abated, and his violent night sweats disappeared. After his recovery, he bought fifty acres of land near his father, built himself a barn, set out an orchard, and was finally married, on Dec. 25, 1800, after an engagement of seven years, her father officiating at the ceremony, and presenting her a Bible as a wedding gift. The next day she rode behind her husband on horseback to his father's, about three-fourths of a mile, in a part of whose house they made a temporary home while he should build himself a house.

"Her furniture consisted of two tables, two chests of drawers, six kitchen chairs and a rocking-chair, two bedsteads, a large wheel, a linen wheel, a quill wheel, reel, and swits manufactured by her father, a looking-glass, and some necessary crockery. She had devoted some years to sewing, making men's clothing, which was as lucrative as any employment for young women, at that time; she was therefore able to furnish beds with bedding, sheets, and pillow-cases, also very beautiful tablecloths and towels of her own manufacture.

"Her wedding cloak was of scarlet broadcloth, reaching nearly to her feet, the body, armholes, cape, and standing collar trimmed with silk velvet ribbon, nearly three inches wide; her bonnet, black velvet, with very little trimming; and, no doubt she was thought to make a very respectable appearance on a pillion. She had very deep-blue eyes—they passed for black in the evening—dark brown hair, a very full forehead, and a fair skin. She was taller than any of her sisters, and weighed, at her marriage (as did her husband), just one hundred and sixty pounds.

"She was a splendid singer, the best of the family, equal to her mother. She sang, in her girlhood, more than sixty songs, and I have heard that while singing 'The Exile of Erin, tears would fall fast from the eyes of the company of auditors, and the music and the pathos of the song. Her children were indifferent singers, but her husband had a very fine cultivated voice; her grandchildren and great-grandchildren are some of them excelled only by men. There was music in the whole family, and wife, by their own fireside, their children for anitors, sang the old ballad tunes which were then passing out of use among the people, but have sometimes returned and been popular with musical choirs.

By close economy, they were enabled to make, at different times, additions to the farm, till it numbered between two and three hundred acres; to build two additional barns, and a very convenient farm-house. Her husband, a few years after marriage, introduced the first Spanish merinos into the town, having bought a pair of ewes, for one hundred dollars, of Wm. Jarvis, late consul from the United States to Spain. Two spinners were hired two or three months in the summer, and, some years, as many as two hundred pounds of wool were manufactured into cloth, she doing the weaving; the cloth, when dressed, compared favorably with imported broadcloth, and commanded one dollar and a half to two dollars per yard. These spinners worked in the room where she and her little daughters were performing the household work for the family. While the work went on, beautiful hymns were sung, and there was much happiness under a very humble roof.

After fourteen years of married life, their son and six daughters, having been taught, began to take the places of hired laborers, and in the succeeding years mother and daughters performed music on wheels and loom, which, if not equal to the piano, yet had a very cheerful sound, and besides helped to render the family comparatively independent. The long evenings of winter were passed with a table in the center of the room, the mother and daughters employed in knitting or sewing, at the same time listening to the vocal reading of the father, who was extremely fond of books.

The oldest daughter married at the age of nineteen, the third went to reside in New Hampshire with a cousin, and the second was about to follow to New Hampshire as a teacher; the mother's heart began to be bereaved. Her cry was, 'Joseph is not, Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin also.' But swiftly passed the fleeting years. All the children departed to other homes, excepting the third daughter, who returned to the parental roof, and relieved the mother of her burden while moving down the vale of years. Finally, at the age of eighty-one, after one day's illness, she folded her tired hands, gently closed her eyes, and breathed her latest breath, and slept that sleep which seemed more like translation than death.

Her daughters, with loving hands, robed the sacred remains for burial, and she rests in hope of a glorious immortality. Her husband survived her eight years, a most desolate mourner. He said to his daughter, 'There has been no day when I have not thought of her.' During all the years of their married life she had been the chief company he sought, had been consulted in all business affairs, and, although a feeble woman in health, had borne her full share of the family burdens. I never knew a more conscientious person. She was worthy of all the confidence and affection she received from him and her children.

Like all her sisters whom I have seen she resembled her father in features, but, more than any, she resembled her mother in the qualities of her mind. In all her work she was extremely nice, so exquisite with her needle. Six of her children survived her; and in hope of meeting her in a world where is no death, we laid her in that cemetery where her parents and daughter, and many other relatives are laid, and where, eight years after, we laid her husband by the side of her who was the choice of his youth.

OREN<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND was one of the number of the Cleveland family who reached the great age of 98 years 2 months and 5 days, almost a centenarian. His unblemished life is thus sketched by his son, Horace Gillette<sup>7</sup> Cleveland +4480, in Genealogy of Benjamin Cleveland, 1879, (this work has for its frontispiece opposite the title the photograph of OREN CLEVELAND. Taken at Ninety), p. 43:—

Oren<sup>6</sup> Cleveland was brought up by his maternal grandparents at Warehouse Point, East Windsor, Conn. A good student at the academy in the village, he graduated with credit to his preceptors and himself. After his marriage and removal to Litchfield co., Conn., he was much sought for as a school teacher, and taught successfully in various places two summers and fourteen winters. He entered the employ of the firm of Belknap & Hammersly, booksellers in Hartford, as a canvasser, and traveled over a considerable portion of the New England states. He also sold clocks for Riley Whiting of Winsted, extensively in the New England states and in Eastern New York and Pennsylvania. In 1839 he came to Geauga co., O., to be near his eldest daughter, where he resided up to the death of his wife in 1869. In the fall of that year he took up his residence with his youngest son, a merchant in Cleveland, O. In stature he is about five feet eight inches, and in his prime of life of ruddy complexion, with black hair and dark blue eyes. He was a superior horseman, and was accounted the finest "trooper" in his company. His kindness of heart, combined with a natural politeness of manners and rare conversational powers, not to omit to mention a fund of anecdotes and incidents of travel, made him hosts of friends wherever he went.

Although nearly a century has passed since he first saw the light of day, he still enjoys a fair degree of health, with his mental faculties unimpaired. His memory of persons and past events is certainly very remarkable, to say the least. He has invariably acted with the Whig and Republican parties, though never radical in partisanship. About the year 1814 he united with the Congregational Society in Winsted, Conn., and continued without other ecclesiastical connection until 1872, when, after much reading and reflection, he was confirmed by Rt. Rev. G. T. Bedell, in Grace (Episcopal) church in Cleveland. Contented and happy, in peace and charity with all men, he cheerfully awaits his Master's call from the church militant on earth to the church triumphant in heaven.

Telegram from Rt. Rev. Gregory Thurston Bedell, D.D., Bishop of Ohio, on receiving notice of the death of Oren<sup>6</sup> Cleveland:

AT REST—DEATH OF OREN CLEVELAND.

A long, useful, and honorable life was closed Saturday, when Mr. Oren Cleveland, who had nearly attained the remarkable age of ninety-nine years, breathed his last at the residence of his son, Mr. H. G. Cleveland, No. 74 Hamilton st. The immediate cause of Mr. Cleveland's death was the shock to his system produced by a fall sustained in moving about in his room, although but for his advanced age this would have had little effect upon him. Oren Cleveland was a direct descendant of Moses Cleveland of Woburn, Mass., who emigrated to this country from Ipswich, Suffolk, England, 1635, and the father of Oren Cleveland was a second cousin of General Moses Cleveland, from whom this city derives its name, the name being spelled Cleveland or Cleaveland, according to the taste of the members of the various branches of the family. Oren was the third son of Rufus and Mary Cleveland, and was born at East Windsor, Conn., May 3, 1785. His early youth was spent with his mother's parents at Warehouse Point, East Windsor, Conn., and he obtained his education at the academy in that village. He was married in Enfield, Conn., in 1806, to Miss Esther Allen, the daughter of Moses Allen, who was a cousin of General Ethan Allen, of revolutionary fame. After his marriage Mr. Cleveland spent several years as a teacher, being eminently successful in that profession. He then engaged in business, and remained in New England until 1830, when he removed to Geauga co., to be near his eldest daughter, Mrs. Esther Allen Barnes, who is still living in Geauga co. After the death of his wife, which occurred in 1860, Mr. Cleveland came to this city and has since resided with his youngest son, Mr. H. G. Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland was a man of rare qualities of heart and mind. He was of a modest disposition, and shrank from any political or other distinction, but throughout his long life was one of those men of high principle and great ability, whom other men delight to honor. He was noted for his kindness of heart, which, combined with his natural politeness of manner and rare conversational powers, made him hosts of friends both in his early home in Conn., in his newer home in Ohio, and wherever his business called him. In politics he always acted with the Whig or Republican party, although never a radical partisan. He voted at nineteen Presidential elections, a remarkable record, which probably no other man in the country can show. His first ballot for president was cast for

Hon. Charles C. Pinckney, in 1878, and his subsequent votes were for DeWitt Clinton in 1812, William H. Crawford in 1816, James Monroe in 1820, John Quincy Adams in 1824 and 1828, Henry Clay in 1832, Daniel Webster in 1836, General Harrison in 1840, Henry Clay in 1844, General Zachary Taylor in 1848, General Winfield Scott in 1852, John C. Fremont in 1856, Abraham Lincoln in 1860 and 1864, U. S. Grant in 1868 and 1872, R. B. Hayes in 1876, and James A. Garfield in 1880.

Oren Cleveland was an earnest and consistent Christian throughout his life. He united with the Congregational Society in Conn. in 1814, and remained a member of that denomination until 1871, when, after much reading and reflection, he decided to unite with the Protestant Episcopal Church, and was confirmed by Rt. Rev. Bishop G. T. Bebell, at Grace church, Cleveland. His last years were spent in quiet and contentment. Peaceful and happy among his loved ones, he awaited the call of his Master from his home on earth to the home above, and, when the summons came, passed into the other world at peace with mankind and his own soul.

Nine of the eleven children born to him and his beloved wife are still living, the youngest being now fifty-one years of age. These sons and daughters are, Mrs. Esther Allen Barnes of Geauga county; Mrs. Jemima Maria Mitchell of Mentor, Lake county; James C. Cleveland of Litchfield, Conn.; Oren Luther Cleveland of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. Mary Clarissa Hope of Geauga county; William C. Cleveland and Moses Allen Cleveland of Geauga county; Edward Hooker Cleveland of Mentor; Horace Gillette Cleveland, of Cleveland, Brown & Co., of Cleveland.

Funeral services over the remains of Mr. Cleveland will be held at the residence of his son, Mr. H. G. Cleveland, No. 24 Hamilton street, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. Dr. Bolles and Rev. G. W. Hinkle officiating, and the body will then be taken to Geauga county for interment by the side of that of his wife. In the death of Mr. Cleveland earth loses one of its true noblemen. His mental powers were retained to the last, and many of the older residents of this part of the country found much enjoyment in visiting him and recalling anecdotes and incidents of the past, of which Mr. Cleveland had an almost inexhaustible fund. Cleveland Leader, July 6, 1883.

On Tuesday afternoon, July 10th, the remains of Oren Cleveland were interred in the cemetery of Huntsburgh, previous to which appropriate services were held in the Congregational church, by Revs. George W. Hinkle, rector of Grace church, Cleveland, O., and J. T. Blanchard, resident minister of the town. Although a busy season of the year, a large concourse of relatives and friends assembled to pay their last tribute to an aged father in Israel, and one so generally known throughout Northern Ohio. Six of the nine children now living were able to be present, and were all past middle age, the youngest being fifty-one. Three of the sons and a grandson lowered the remains into their last resting-place, by the side of the wife and mother who had preceded him fourteen years. "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." ### The Standard of the Cross, Cleveland, O., July 12, 1883—

CLEVELAND. On Sunday morning last, July 8th, at half-past two o'clock, Mr. Oren Cleveland, the venerable father of Mr. Horace G. Cleveland, junior warden of Grace church, quietly passed from death unto life, in the 97th year of his age. Had it not been for an accidental fall in his room ten days before, his physician says that in the ordinary course of old age he would have lived four or five years yet. He himself, although for many years he has been waiting patiently for his change, yet, as he approached his hundredth year, he was rather desirous of completing the century of his life. In a conversation with the Rev. Mr. Hinkle, a few days before his death, he expressed himself so. "Although," said he, "it could, of course, be no satisfaction to me when beyond the grave, it would be a source of gratification to my children and grandchildren to know that I had lived so long." He knew that his dissolution was nigh, but he feared it not. Since 1870, he has lived in Cleveland with his youngest son, Horace G., where he has been most tenderly cared for. The freshness of his recollection of the many interesting events of the past over which his long life extended makes his departure worthy of note. He was a lad fourteen years of age when Washington died, and he remembered well the public expressions of grief at the loss of the Father of his Country. When a full-grown man of forty, he saw General Lafayette on his last visit to America, and remembered and could describe minutely his personal appearance.

It seems almost incredible that within the last few days has passed away one whose memory was a living link between this age and that in which moved the demigods of American history. His fund of anecdotes was inexhaustible, and his memory of names as well as faces was simply marvellous. During his life he had the rare privilege of voting in nineteen Presidential candidates, from Charles C. Pinckney in 1800 to James A. Garfield in 1880. The family of Cleavelands have been exceptionally long-lived. For sixty-five years Mr. and Mrs. Oren Cleveland lived together as man and wife without a death in the family. His brothers have attained to great age, as did his father before him, who was the cousin of General Moses Cleveland, for whom this city was named. They were born in the same town in the same year, and were boys together. Mrs. Cleveland, the mother of Mr. Horace G. Cleveland, was a relative of Ethan Allen, of Revolutionary fame, and was also connected with the Massachusetts Adams family.

Mr. Cleveland never was sick in bed from a fever or other illness a day in his life until that which was his first and last.

During the early part of his life Mr. Cleveland was a Congregationalist, but in 1871, after careful reading and reflection, he presented himself as a candidate, and was confirmed in Grace church by Bishop Bebell. The funeral services were held on Monday at the residence of Mr. H. G. Cleveland, and were conducted by Rev. Mr. Hinkle and Dr. Bolles.

Dr. Bolles, from the text, Leviticus 16: 31, "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head and honor the face of the old man and fear thy God," alluded to the many strange and instructive events which had occurred to him within the last two weeks in regard to the painful office which he was then tilling, that of conducting the funeral services of the dead. Two weeks ago he received a telegram informing him of the death of Rev. Dr. Edson of Lowell, Mass., who was, no doubt, the oldest priest and rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church, having entered upon his ninetieth year. No sooner had he returned from the funeral of the aged rector than he was called upon to officiate at the funeral of a young woman, a member of his church. Then the sad news came of the death of one of the oldest and most venerated Christian fathers in the nation. It is recorded that not more than one in 50,000 attains the age of the dearly-beloved father who has just passed away. No doubt but that for a singular accident that happened recently, Mr. Cleveland would have filled up an even 100 years of life on earth. In that life we have one of the most remarkable examples illustrating the moulding and transfiguring power of the Gospel in preparing the soul for the inheritance with the saints. Naturally, he possessed all those elements of character which belong only to men of noble minds. What industry, what energy, what perseverance, what skill, what wisdom, what undaunted holiness and courage he possessed to withstand the peculiar trial and temptation of the age in which he lived, and at last to come out of the furnace as gold purified! What a century in which to have lived! It has been the most eventful and historic of any century of human existence. So far as Mr. Cleveland's personal character is concerned, everything has worked together for good, and he has fulfilled the fundamental axiom of the kingdom of God, "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Standard of the Cross, July 19, 1883—

The following, furnished us by the kindness of our good Bishop Bedell, will be interesting reading to very many: On Sunday morning last, at an early hour, Mr. Oren Cleveland, one of the oldest citizens of Cleveland, died. He was born in New England, removed to this state among the earlier of that class of strong and healthy men, strong in mind and healthy in body, who gave character to the early history of Ohio. He was in his ninety-ninth year. Unfortunately, he fell whilst walking, a short time since, and was confined to his room, and in part to his bed for the first time in his life. To this unusual relaxation, leading to unusual changes in the current of blood, it is supposed that his death was owing, and his disappointment at not being able to count a hundred years. He was a man of strict integrity of Christian character, and of course was free from the curse of habits which bring so many to a premature grave. He attributed his long life to his constant ability to take sound, unbroken sleep at night. But he must have been free from care and possessed of a quiet conscience. These are the true sleep provokers. We know that he had the continued care of one of the best of sons, Mr. Horace G. Cleveland, who was the "nourisher of his age." Both father and son attended Grace church in Cleveland. We do not write idle words when we quote, in reference to this man of many years, "The memory of the just is blessed."

Other obituaries appeared: Cleveland, O., Leader, July 9, 1883; Weekly Leader, July 14; Cleveland Herald, July 9; Geauga Republican, July 9; Woburn, Mass., Journal, July 20, 1883; Catskill, N. Y., Recorder, Feb. 4, 1881, contains sketch of Oren Cleveland.

HUNTSBURGH.—Cleveland Family Reunion.—The descendants of Oren Cleveland enjoyed a very pleasant reunion at the residence of V. T. Barnes, on the 24th of August, that day being the birthday of Mrs. Esther A. Barnes, the eldest member of the family. Fifty-four persons were present, and, after doing ample justice to a bountiful dinner, were called to order by the president, Mr. H. G. Cleveland. In a few concise and appropriate remarks, he welcomed those present, and then, in behalf of the assembly, congratulated Grandma Barnes on having entered her eightieth year. In a brief manner he spoke of her coming to Ohio, then known as the "Far West," with her husband, Michael Barnes, and of his selection of a site for his future home. His choice was determined by a spring of pure, soft water, situated a short distance back of the house, to which he had the water conveyed by means of a lead pipe which he brought with him from the East. For more than fifty years the house has been supplied with water from this unfailing source. Mr. Cleveland closed his address by reading an original poem, called

THE OLD SPRING.

Oh, listen while I sing
Of the dear old spring
That bubbles where the meadow grasses
grow;
Where the butterflies will loiter,
Where the daisies kiss the water,
Till it's gathered in the iron tank below.

This tank of shapely iron
The waters clear environ,
Nicely fashioned by a strong and master hand;
There they sparkle in the sunlight
There they glisten in the moonlight,
Like the jewels of the elves in fairy-land.

And grateful for the boon
Are the toilers when, at noon,

They quaff the cooling waters as they glow,
While the honey bee is humming,
And the distant partridge drumming,
In the bushes where the stately maples
grow.

In love of merry cheer
Many drink their ale or beer;
Such example we'll not emulate to-day,
But good "Adam's ale" we'll cherish,
Though all other liquors perish,
And be thankful we have found the better way.

Then listen while I sing
The praises of the spring
Whose limpid waters never cease to flow,
And, as Adam's sons and daughters,
Let us drink these crystal waters
From the spring that bubbles where the grasses grow.

This toast, to "The Old Spring," was drank in its waters, amidst hearty applause. After the hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds," had been sung, an address was delivered by Mr. M. A. Cleveland as follows :

"We gather here to-day, to observe and commemorate the birth of the oldest member of the family of children born to Oren and Esther Cleveland, the record of her birth being Aug. 24th, 1808. Only another year to add, and the fourscore years are reached, yet enjoying a measure of health, she sits among us an honored and venerable matron. The period of her birth finds the parents lately emigrated from the fertile meadows of the Connecticut River to the green woods and rocky hills of Litchfield Co., forming part of the State's western boundary. In this section were reared a family of six sons and three daughters, who, for quite a number of years, although absent from the heart-stone, were enabled to meet together and enjoy such pleasures as those whose daily toil is for daily bread. Their history written would be only 'The short and simple annals of the poor;' yet I think you of the gray hairs will agree with me in saying that few families of our acquaintance and circumstances enjoyed as much as ours. Wealth brings its cares as well as luxuries, but we were blessed with God-fearing parents, whose greatest anxiety was to fulfill their Christian duties to those who were committed to their care, and gave to us children a fitter legacy than dollars and cents. They have gone to their reward, and we are biding our time with a fond hope of beyond the river, where partings are unknown.

"Turning back the record of years, May 4, 1835, the aged matron of to-day was a bride, and a few days later, with her husband, she left her native state for Ohio, taking the 'overland route.' Brother Edward, then a lad, accompanied them. After a wearisome journey they arrived in Huntsburgh, and began housekeeping in this their first and only home. To-day we look out upon the fields and woods made dear to them and us. Changes have taken place, but here many years of hard labor and patient toil were passed; here all their children were born, scenes of joy and sorrow passed through. But I know it is with grateful hearts to the All-Father that we to-day share the hospitality of the son who occupies the Old Homestead, while so many of the old landmarks pass into the hands of strangers, — a joy to you, my sister, that your children settled in the town of their birth, and that you can see them often in your lonely widowhood.

"Must I allude to the vacant chairs in the several families here represented? The inevitable changes, sure to come with years, have come to us also, and the silent tokens in yonder cemetery mutely attest the memory of the departed. Of their worth we can all speak. Of his kindness who, for so many years, tilled these fields, I fain would speak for myself, and also others who will never forget the ready hand and pleasant word for all his kindred.

"Here are gathered the old and the young, all treading the path of life with far different prospects. The years will pass with rapid strides; change is written on all earthly things; some present to-day may never meet again; we who bear the burden of years will soon follow those gone before, and the question might be asked, with our experience, Would we return? A poet writes :

" Would we return, if once the gates That closed upon the Past were open wide for us, * * * Recalled the old, sweet days of childhood fear, With all their faded hopes, and brought anear	The far-off streams in which our skies were glassed? Did those lost dreams which wake the soul's sad yearning, But live once more, and waited our re- turning, Would we return? Would we return?"

"The Present only is ours. So let us enjoy as much as possible these red letter days of social gatherings. I think we all feel it is good to be here, and can ask of others, 'Ant ye glad ye come?'"

Mr. H. G. Cleveland then read a journal kept by a member of Oren Cleveland's family during their journey from Conn. to Ohio, by way of the Erie Canal, in 1830, which was both interesting and instructive. This was followed by the reading of several poems, of which "Sea Ventures" and "Carleton's Second Settler's Story" were especially pleasing.

Mr. S. A. Cleveland, the Secretary, read his report. Among the sixty-five living descendants of Oren Cleveland, there had been, during the year ending Aug. 26, 1887, two marriages, that of Rev. George H. Cleveland of Northport, L. I., to Miss Cuyler, Dec. 7, 1887, and also that of Miss Viola A. Tyler to Mr. H. E. Grace, Feb. 3, 1887. Of births there have been two, a son, Carl, to Frank and Essie Millard, March 5, 1887, and a son, Charles Chapin, to Marvin and Mary Moss, June 7, 1887. No deaths during the year.

After the report of the Secretary, the hymn, "When shall we all meet again?" was sung, after which it was voted by acclamation that the present President and Secretary should hold their offices for another year. This business finished, all present rose to their feet and sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." Shortly after the guests regretfully bade their host and hostess good-bye, and scattered to their various homes, having passed a day long to be remembered with pleasant associations by each. Among those present, were Mr. Charles Johnson and family, Mr. E. H. Cleveland and wife, Mr. Willard Tyler and family, of Mentor; Mr. A. J. McWethy and daughter of Kirtland; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cleveland of Painesville. The President, Mr. Horace G. Cleveland of Cleveland, by his additions to the program, contributed much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mr. O. M. Barnes, Mr. A. W. Strong, and Mr. V. T. Barnes were appointed a committee of arrangements for the next annual reunion. S. A. C.

1715) 1715, Sarah Collins of Lynn, Mass., d. c. of Benjamin<sup>1</sup> Thomas<sup>1</sup>, b. C. Chester, Aug. 30, 1715. It is not yet determined by Adams genealogists whether he was identical with, but the weight of evidence is that he was the following: Thomas<sup>1</sup> Moityville, Conn., and E. Windsor, Conn., d. Warehouse Point, Nov., 1767, m. 1744, Mrs. Mary (Hammond) Vallett. The circumstances are romantic: Jeremiah Vallett, sea-capt. m. 1712, Mary Hammond, Ch.; Jeremiah Vallett. Three years after his marriage, Capt. Vallett, leaving his snug little home well stored with the necessities of life, bade his wife an affectionate farewell, kissed little "Jerry," his only son and heir, and joined his vessel for a short cruise. The time came around for his promised return, but no tidings of the ship or its captain. Weeks and months passed by, and the disconsolate wife anxiously watched and waited for some message from the absent husband and father. At length the report came that the ship had been lost at sea with all on board, and the "widow Vallett" put on mourning for the prescribed period. At the expiration of the time, but with no unseemly haste, she accepted the hand of Thomas Adams, a young and active ship carpenter at that time, and her junior by a few years only. Her former husband's estate being administered upon, as any dead man's should be, the newly married couple settled down to domestic happiness in the comfortable home of "the late" Capt. Vallett.

Everything was going on swimmingly enough when, to the consternation of all, Capt. Vallett himself appeared at the door of his former domicile, and the consequent surprise and astonishment may be imagined better than described. But under the laws of the colony no wrong had been done or intended, and a consultation was held without delay with the good minister of the place who had tied the second knot, and a magistrate of the law as the legal counselor, to effect an amicable arrangement among the parties so deeply interested. It was agreed that the wife should herself say which husband she preferred, and she unhesitatingly chose the second one, undoubtedly, from her past experience, being more in favor of a land lubber on shore, than the best sailor man in the world afloat.

So the Captain graciously accepted the situation, with the stipulation, however, that young Adams and his wife should depart from that neighborhood a considerable distance, little "Jerry," of course to remain with his father.

In 1842 Chauncey Fitch<sup>6</sup> Cleveland was nominated by the Democratic party for Governor, his competitor in the convention being Hon. Isaac Toucey of Hartford, Conn., afterwards Secretary of the Navy, in the cabinet of Pres. Buchanan. The Whig candidate for Governor was Hon. William Wolcott Ellsworth of Hartford, then Governor, who had held the office four years, elected by large majorities each year. Gov. Cleveland was elected over Ellsworth by about 2,000 majority. In 1843 Gov. Cleveland was again nominated for governor, the opposite candidate being Hon. Roger Sherman Baldwin of New Haven, the ablest and best man of the Whig party. Gov. Cleveland was elected by about the same majority. He was unanimously renominated by his party in 1841, but defeated by Mr. Baldwin in a small majority, being the Presidential year, and Henry Clay the Whig candidate.

While in office, Gov. Cleveland recommended and carried through the law abolishing imprisonment for debt, and an appropriation for the insane poor, and that children under 14 in factories be worked only 10 hours a day, and receive 3 months' schooling each year. In 1842 Washington (now Trinity) college, Hartford, conferred the degree of LL.D. He was again elected to Congress, 1849, representing the Third District, New London and Windham counties, for 4 years, fighting slavery extension faithfully. (See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAPTER IV, Governor's messages, speeches in Congress, etc.) He has a number of times received the vote of his party in the Legislature, for United States Senator. Gov. Cleveland was vice-president of the Republican convention at Philadelphia, Pa., in 1856, when Gen. John Charles Fremont was nominated for President. He was a vice-president of the Chicago convention, 1860, a body always memorable by nominating Abraham Lincoln for President. When the war cloud was gathering, he was selected a member of the Peace Congress, so called, that assembled at Washington, D. C., Feb. 4 to 27, 1861. His remarks during the conference were full of fraternal love and conciliation. Rec. of debates and proceedings in the secret sessions of the National Convention for proposing Amendments to the Constitution of the U. S., by L. E. Chittenden, 1864, pp. 80, 105, 214, 288, 367, 434, 440. He was nominated for Presidential elector, 1871, on the Democratic (Van Buren) ticket, but not elected. However, he was one of the five Clevelands who have been members of the U. S. Electoral college; the others were Hon. Elijah Cleveland - 2315.

Hon. Francis Cleveland +3212, Hon. Francis Landon Cleveland +3256, Hon. Robert Cleveland +16013; being elected an elector-at-large on the Connecticut Republican ticket, and was chairman of the Connecticut Board of Presidential Electors, 19th Presidential election, that met at New Haven and cast the vote of Conn., 1861, for Lincoln and Hamlin. For President, Abraham Lincoln received 180 votes, John Cabell Breckenridge 72, John Bell 39, Stephen Arnold Douglas, 12. For Vice-President, Hannibal Hamlin 180, Joseph Lane 72, Edward Everett, 39, Herschell V. Johnson, 12. In 1876 he was elected an elector voting for Samuel Jones Tilden and Hendricks. He was nominated for elector, 1880, on Democratic (Winfield Scott Hancock for Pres., William H. English for Vice-Pres.) ticket, which was not elected.

After leaving the gubernatorial chair, Gov. Cleveland refused all business except that of counselor and advocate, and remained at the bar in full practice until nearly 80 years of age. A parallel case cannot be found in the state. He became connected with many important cases at home and in the neighboring states. Among others the celebrated case of William Mason of Windham co., acting with Hon. Charles O'Connor of N. Y. as senior counsel for the defense.

Larned's Windham co., II: 471, 520-3, 553, 502-4, 508, 557, makes frequent mention of Chauncey F. Cleveland from the time of his admission to the bar, 1814, describing at length the conspicuous part he bore in the affairs of Windham co., etc. Chauncey F. Cleveland won immediate success at the bar by his intuitive skill in seizing upon the salient points of a case and presenting them before a jury, and was equally successful in winning the suffrages of his fellow citizens. A Radical by training and conviction, he soon became a power in the Democratic party. . . . He was capt. of the Hampton co. His military bearing and affable manner gave him great popularity as an officer, and he was rapidly promoted. . . . So great was Gen. Cleveland's popularity and personal influence that he was elected governor, 1842, though the Whigs had elected Ellsworth the preceding year by 5,000 majority. . . . Even the staunch old city of Norwich, with a large whig majority, yielded to the fascinations of Windham county's Democratic champion. Gov. Cleveland's administration was radical and aggressive. . . . His recommendations were always made for the benefit of that class who are more or less at the mercy of the rich. His course with relation to the famous Dorr Rebellion was somewhat unsatisfactory, Whigs insisting that he should have surrendered the pseudo Gov. upon R. I. requisition, and ultra Democrats complaining that he did not retain and defend the fugitive.

Hampton Hill greatly enjoyed its honors as the seat of Government, and the county at large exulted in its first resident governor. . . . The call to aid in putting down the gigantic rebellion met immediate response. A county mass-meeting was held in Brooklyn, Apr. 22, 1861, Gov. Cleveland presiding. Annals of Charlton, Mass., I: 314, 317—Celebration July 4, 1870, at Woodstock, Conn. Gov. Cleveland introduced by Gov. Marshall Jewell to Pres. U. S. Grant, and delivered the address welcoming the President as chairman of the general committee. After the oration by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, Gov. Cleveland read the resolutions. Lanman's Dic. Congress, 87; Drake's Dic. Bio., 100.

Gov. Cleveland occupied a place with the ex-governors in the procession on Battle-Flag Day at Hartford, Sept. 17, 1870, when the glorious old flags of regiments in the civil war were removed from the arsenal to the new Capitol.

HAMPTON HILL, CONN., Mar. 6, 1883.

EDMUND J. CLEVELAND, Esq. Dear Sir:—I send you some of my speeches in Congress which will show you the position I occupied there. When I found the slave states had a majority in the Democratic party, I left it and did yeoman duty in organizing the Republican party, and did my whole duty in supporting the war for the Union, until the Union was secure and slavery abolished. When I found the Republican party legislating for the benefit of wealth, exempting the property of the rich from taxation, and casting the burden of the war upon labor, in short, having adopted the principles of the Federalists of 1803, I abandoned them, and have done what I could to restore the principles of Jefferson, under which the country prospered.

Very sincerely your friend,

CHAUNCEY F. CLEVELAND.

Obituaries appeared in the newspapers, and his decease was editorially noticed in Hartford Times, June 7, 1887.

The funeral took place June 8, 1887, 1 P. M., from Hampton Congregational church (on whose front steps he had expired), and was attended by prominent persons. The body was placed in the "Cleveland" tomb in the village cemetery.

STEPHEN<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND entered Burlington, Vt., college of which Eliphalet H. Nott was then president. He was an officer in the last war with England. 1812. While attending college he marched as commander of a company of students to meet the British army then coming from Canada on Plattsburg, arriving too late to participate in that battle. The college buildings were soon afterward taken for barracks and Stephen<sup>6</sup> returned to his home. He subsequently grad. Union college, Schenectady, N. Y., and then became a pupil of Judge Reeves in his famous law school at Litchfield, Conn. Later he studied law with Judge George Bloom, Poughkeepsie, and when admitted to practice, 1818, formed a partnership with him, remaining in Poughkeepsie afterward. Became master in chancery. He was eminent in his profession, and had as clients some of the most distinguished citizens of the nation, including the Gov. of N. Y., a Vice-President of the U. S., and a Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. Stephen<sup>6</sup> was distinguished for great learning and remarkable skill and ability as an advocate. He identified himself with the Whig party. His political speeches were eloquent, persuasive, and convincing. He was a leading Mason, being Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of N. Y. state. He was President of the Trustees of the village of Poughkeepsie, 1823-5, serving several terms. In 1830 he owned and edited the Poughkeepsie Gazette—see BULLOCK-RAPHY, CHAP. IV. About 1832 he organized the Trinity Land co., which contracted with the Mexican Govt. for the improvement of the navigation of the Trinity river; he expended large sums in sending materials, laborers, and colonists to Texas. His friend, Hon. John Thompson, lawyer of Poughkeepsie, about 1848 published in the Poughkeepsie Eagle a sketch describing characteristics of members of the Poughkeepsie bar, including Stephen<sup>o</sup>. After death of Stephen<sup>o</sup> his family rem. to Biloxi, Harrison co., Miss., thence to San Antonio.

Dea. BENJAMIN' CLEVELAND lived always in his birthplace, a prominent, honored, useful, and greatly esteemed man. The following from New York Evangelist, Jan., 1883. Obituary of Elder Benjamin Cleveland :

Mr. Cleveland was known in Salem as a business man for more than forty years, and was long a prominent merchant. Ten years ago he retired with an ample competence and the sincere respect and good-will of the entire community. He was a director of the National Bank of Salem from its beginning until his death, and one of the most influential protectors and trustees of Evergreen Cemetery ; he also took much pride in seeing this beautiful and sacred spot brought to its present state of perfection. He united with the First Incorporated Presbyterian (Brick) Church in 1843, and became an elder of the same in 1847. He was a devout Christian, and always faithful in the public and private duties of religion ; was never absent from the place of duty or prayer, when health or circumstances permitted ; and often went to the house of God when he was evidently too feeble to be there. Mr. Cleveland's personal characteristics were known and read of all men. He held clear and well-defined views regarding any subject to which he gave his attention, and, once formed, his intelligent and conscientious convictions were not deviated from. He was honest to the letter, and prompt to the hour in meeting every obligation. He expected this of others, but he never oppressed them, and he was lenient in the extreme with a struggling debtor. His truthfulness was proverbial. He was a most loyal friend, true, and to be depended upon in time of need; and it was hardly within the power of any one to make of him a personal enemy. Always an active supporter of every good cause, for many years his liberality knew only the bounds of others' needs and his own reasonable capacity to help. He was not, however, an indiscriminate giver; for in this, as in all his affairs, he adopted a carefully planned system. If there were burdens to be borne, his broad shoulders were cheerfully ready for his full share of the work. His church and the cause of Christ generally were ever dear to him; and for these he constantly prayed, labored, and generously gave of his means. His last and crowning act of liberality was the furnishing of the "Mary Bancroft Memorial Chapel" (now being completed), at an expense of something more than $1,000. It was while engaged actively and with great enjoyment in this, his last work upon earth, that he was suddenly called to his heavenly rest by the Angel of Death. He left the chapel at 4 o'clock P.M. on Wednesday, Dec. 27. At about 6:30 of the same evening, while passing rapidly through his dining-room, he accidentally fell upon some coal scuttles, and sustained serious internal injuries. His sufferings were intense during the night; but without a murmur he repeatedly referred to the goodness of God to him; and his last conscious utterance was a thanksgiving for the mercy and grace of his Saviour. Death did not find him unprepared or unwilling to obey its summons. He had for years lived in a state of constant preparation for the event of death. "We heard it remarked recently," says the editor of the local paper, "that he was one of the men to whom it would make no difference when he died; that he was always ready for life or death." As a citizen, as a Christian, as an officer of the church, as a friend (he was friendly to all), as husband and father, Benjamin Cleveland was highly esteemed, revered, and loved; and his memory will be long and gratefully cherished by all classes. His funeral was attended by a large number of neighbors and friends, who gathered to pay tribute to his worth. Rev. Mr. Hunter officiated, assisted by Revs. Mackenzie and Van Decar. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace." J. L.

Resolutions of Respect adopted by the Session of the First Incorporated Presbyterian Church of Salem, Jan. 6, 1883: Whereas it pleased God to remove from us by sudden death our beloved Christian brother, friend, and fellow member of Session, Elder Benjamin Cleveland, in the 75th year of his age, therefore—

Resolved, That we make grateful record of our high appreciation of Brother Cleveland's character as a devout Christian, as an esteemed member of this Session, and as an active and generous supporter of this church and congregation.

Resolved, That a copy of this minute be delivered to the family of our lamented brother, together with our expressions of sincerest condolence of Session, in view of their deep sorrow at this time.

Judge Waldo<sup>6</sup> Colburn grad. Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., 1842, in English Dep. and Teachers' Seminary, and 1845 Classical Dep.; Harvard Law School, 1850. Was a civil engineer to 1847. Entered law office of Ira Cleveland, Dedham, May 13, 1847, studied diligently, admitted to the bar May 3, 1850, and commenced law practice in Dedham, where he always resided. He soon took a leading position at the bar, and continued to practice until May 27, 1875. He was appointed May 27, 1875, by Gov. William Gaston, one of the justices of the Superior Court, a position virtually thrust upon him, as he knew nothing of the intention of Gov. to appoint him until confirmed by the Council. Of his appointment a writer says:

"The comprehensive knowledge of affairs, the wisdom, tact, and ability, the legal culture and judicial grasp of mind displayed by Judge Colburn clothe his appointment to the bench of the Superior Court with special fitness and propriety, and make it one of the salutary acts of Gov. Gaston's administration."

Nov. 10, 1882, he was commissioned by Gov. Long as a justice of the Supreme Court, which he occupied the remainder of his life. A leader of the Suffolk bar said: "Judge Colburn is one of the ablest, most successful, and popular judges in the commonwealth." Although never an active politician he has always labored to advance the interests of Dedham and filled many positions of trust and responsibility in the town. Was chairman of Board of Selectmen, assessors and overseers of poor of Dedham, 1855 to 1864. Was member Legislature, 1853-4, Chairman of Com. on religious societies, and of Com. on railroads. He opposed loaning the state's credit to the Hoosac Tunnel scheme. Was State Senator from 2d Norfolk Dist., 1870, was on Judiciary Com., had charge of drafting the corporation act, was several years candidate of Democrats for atty.-gen. Was Pres. of Dedham Institution for Savings, a director in Dedham National Bank. He was a kind and beneficent neighbor and friend, a learned and upright judge, and one of Massachusetts' most honored citizens. Judge Colburn, our valued correspondent, took great interest in this work, and we are delighted that his family have contributed his portrait. His widow res. at Dedham.

Dea. Josiah<sup>6</sup> Cady resided at Killingly to 1810, when he rem. to Providence, and lived his several last years at Lebanon. He was a man of fine intellect and a leader on religious thought and work in his day. He was a prominent "Anti-Slavery" man and a strong advocate of temperance. His old age was one of remarkable mental and physical vigor, and his character a tower of strength.

At his decease an extended and well-written obituary was published describing the high religious character of this worthy man, from the time when in his youth he united with the Congregational church in his native town, under the pastoral care of the late Rev. Israel Day. On removal to Providence he united with the Congregational church in Richmond street, then under charge of Rev. Thomas Williams. In this church he held the office of deacon for about 30 years, and was remarkable for the diligence, uniformity, perseverance, self-denial, and independence with which he labored to uphold Christian discipline, to maintain sound doctrine, to sustain public worship and social meetings for religious conference and prayer. Prof. PARKER<sup>6</sup> CLEAVELAND, M.D. (Dart., 1823), LL.D. (Bowdoin, 1824), the eminent mineralogist and author. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAPTER IV. Professor of Chemistry, Materia Medica, Mineralogy, and Natural Philosophy in Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me., from Oct. 23, 1805, until decease. He was called "the father of American mineralogy." History of Bowdoin College. By Nehemiah Cleaveland and Alpheus Spring Packard, 1882, p. 126 — A fine steel plate of Parker Cleaveland and biographical sketch:—

PARKER CLEAVELAND was born Jan. 15, 1780, a winter long afterwards remembered in New England for the depth of its snow and severity of its cold. He was prepared for college in Byfield, at the old Dummer school, and was sent to Cambridge by its amiable and learned preceptor, Rev. Isaac Smith. His first essay in teaching was made in Boxford, Mass., during a winter vacation. He afterward taught a district school in Wilmington, Middlesex co., Mass. In 1796 he graduated [at Harvard] with a high reputation for ability, and went immediately to Haverhill, Mass., where he took charge of the town school. At the same time he entered his name in the law office of Ichabod Tucker. After a few months in Haverhill as schoolmaster and law student, he went to York, York co., District of Maine, and took charge of the central town school, where he taught for 3 years with marked success. During this period, still having in view the legal profession, he assisted Mr. Daniel Sewall, clerk of the courts, in his official duties. In 1803, he was summoned to Cambridge as a tutor. Two years later his reputation as a scholar and instructor had reached the ears of the curators of the young college in Maine, and he was appointed its first professor of mathematics and natural philosophy. He went to Brunswick in the autumn of 1805, and entered on that routine of active duty and punctual efficient performance which, down to his last hour, experienced no intermission. The sciences of chemistry and mineralogy, then almost in their infancy, soon arrested his attention and gradually became the chief objects of his pursuit. In 1816, he brought out his work on mineralogy: a work which was warmly welcomed through all the domains of science and education, and which made the college, as well as the author, far more widely known than before. The 2d edition of this work has long been out of print; but a 3d edition, though promised and much desired and impatiently waited for, did not appear. In the winter vacation of 1818, Prof. Cleaveland gave a course of chemical lectures in Hallowell, Kennebec co., Me. During the 3 succeeding winters he gave 2 courses in Portland and 1 in Portsmouth, N. H. These lectures were attended by the best society in those towns. No better test of the lecturer's peculiar ability could perhaps be given than the fact that, though highly scientific and instructive, these exercises commanded throughout the undivided and gratified attention of those large and popular audiences. His fame as a lecturer soon brought him applications from other places, but they were all declined. The establishment of the medical school in 1820, added largely to Mr. Cleaveland's official labors, and fortunately increased somewhat his pecuniary means. At this time he was invited to a professorship at the College of William and Mary in Va.

P. Cleaveland

Soon after, the chair of chemistry and mineralogy at Cambridge was tendered him, a far more alluring offer. For a time the supervisors and friends of Bowdoin college were alarmed at the prospect of such a loss, and did what they could to retain him. The question was finally decided in favor of Brunswick. During the long period of his connection with the college, Mr. Cleveland instructed every class that received its honors. About 2,000 young men, graduates of the academic and medical departments, have attended his recitations and lectures. As a lecturer, Mr. Cleveland has been eminently distinguished; always clear, exact, concise. The subject ever prominent. His illustrations, whether addressed to the eye or the ear, always appropriate. Invariably methodical, skillful, cautious, his experiments never fail. Mr. Cleveland has received many degrees of honor and certificates of membership from learned bodies abroad and at home. Unlike some of his brother and contemporary savants, he is eminently a "keeper at home." So far from venturing across the Atlantic, he would not cross a river except by bridge, and then only after a careful investigation of its strength. As to steamboat and railway travel, he is innocent of it. These well-known facts show, in part at least, why he has won no fame on the broad but dangerous field of geological survey, and why his name has never figured in the doings and sayings of scientific convocations.

The following passage from the report of Dr. Wood's address at his funeral, in the Christian Mirror, Oct. 26, 1858:

"A few years since there appeared to be a momentary failure of his powers; but he soon rallied, and from that time till within a few weeks his physical and mental powers have been in such perfect action that he seemed to have taken a new lease of life, and almost to have begun a new career of duty. Within a few weeks past more alarming symptoms began to appear. But though his years, by reason of strength, had become almost fourscore, he still kept on, and walked to his laboratory to hear his recitations; and after his disease had become so far developed as to require him to stop several times on the way to rest himself and get breath, when his limbs had become swollen and his chest suffused, and his sight almost gone, and he could no longer walk, he would ride. After further failure, and he could not get out before breakfast to hear his class, the hour was changed to a later one. At last, when he could not hear the whole recitation, he persisted to hear what he could, and went as far with the exercise as his strength allowed. Though thus driven from one resort to another, he did not quit the ground, but still kept on. The day before his death he was prevented from attending recitation, for the third time only since the term began. After a night of comparative rest he was getting ready to go to his recitation, when his discharge came from the only power from which he could accept it. He died with his harness on. 'Well done' will be the verdict of the thousand graduates of this college. 'Well done, good and faithful servant,' we cannot doubt, has been already the verdict of that higher tribunal before which he has gone to appear."

Necrology of Alumni of Harvard College. By Joseph Palmer, 1864, p. 220-173. Parker Cleveland . . . . In the middle of the year 1830 he began teaching a school at York, Me.; and, at the same time, was clerk in the office of Daniel Sewall, Esq., clerk of the Supreme Court; was with him at the courts and continued the study of law. Here he remained until the autumn of 1833; when he was appointed tutor in mathematics at Harvard, which office he held until Commencement, 1835, when he resigned it to fill a professorship in Bowdoin, the college then having been in operation but a single year. The duties of this professorship, together with those of lecturer on chemistry and mineralogy, he discharged with distinguished ability until 1838, when it was deemed expedient to separate the departments of mathematics and natural philosophy, and establish a distinct professorship of chemistry and mineralogy. Mr. William Smyth, the distinguished professor of mathematics, was raised to that department, and Mr. Cleveland was installed in the new professorship of chemistry, mineralogy, and natural philosophy. This position he occupied until his death, having acquired a world-wide reputation, and a success seldom attained by a scientific instructor. . . . He spent 6 hours a day in his laboratory, recitation, and lecture room, and was frequently engaged for 10 of the 24 hours. The college never bought any minerals. James Bowdoin gave about 500 specimens, the rest have been collected either by Prof. Cleveland's personal labor, or by the exchange of specimens which he obtained, and they now amount to upwards of 7000. He became widely known in the U. S., in Great Britain, and Europe by his great work on mineralogy and geology. He had contemplated publishing a 3d edition; but his eyesight, which had failed by incessant application, deprived him of the honor, and the world of the benefit of his increased learning and experience from the proposed work. His high reputation as a lecturer is spread all over the country by a succession of graduates of the college, who will transmit the praise of his learning and eloquence, and will rise up with one accord and bless his name and memory. Aug. 4, 1838, Mr. Cleveland was elected a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; Sept. 9, 1841, a corresponding member of the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia; Apr. 17, 1843, a member of the American Philosophical Society at Philadelphia; Nov. 11, 1845, an honorary member of the Literary and Philosophical Society of New-Astington-Tyne; Jan. 7, 1846, an honorary member of the Mineralogical Society of Jena; Oct. 4, 1846, an honorary member of the Mineralogical Society of Dresden; Apr. 27, 1847, a member of the Society of Natural Science at Halle, Germany; Dec. 16, 1848, a member of the Mineralogical Society of St. Petersburg; June 11, 1849, an honorary member of the Literary and Historical Society at Quebec. He was also a fellow of the Werneriian Natural History Society of Edinburgh, and an honorary member of the Geological Society of London. He was for many years the corresponding secretary of the Maine Historical Society.

He was also a member of the American Geological Society; a corresponding member of the Linnean Society of New England; honorary member of the Lyceum of Natural History of New York; an honorary member of the Smithsonian Institution.

American Cyclopaedia by George Ripley and Charles A. Dana, N. Y., D. Appleton & Co., 1877, p. 658—Cleveland, Parker, Grad. Harvard 1833, and then taught 7 years in Haverhill, Mass., and York, Me. Being in York also postmaster and clerk of the courts. • Connected with Bowdoin from its infancy. He devoted himself especially to mineralogy and traversed the surrounding country as far as the White mountains, forming a valuable cabinet. His mineralogy earned for him the name of father of American mineralogy, and did much to associate this country with the scientific labors of older nations. It was upon the general system of Brongniart and Haüy, and was chiefly distinguished by the original information which it gave of the new localities of minerals. The correspondence of Prof. Cleaveland was now solicited by the most eminent scientific men, by Sir Humphrey Davy, Sir Daniel Brewster, Cuvier, &c. * In 1839, the presidency of the college was offered him, but he declined. * During 3 years of his connection with Bowdoin he failed attending only 3 recitations; and kept a meteorological journal, noting weather 3 different hours every day.

Address at Opening of the Cleaveland Cabinet of Bowdoin College, July 10, 1872. By Nehemiah Cleaveland, 25 Appendix. At a meeting of this committee Aug. 12, 1872, Mr. P. W. Chandler of Boston presented a plan which he was prepared to carry out at his own expense. He explained his object and desire to be to preserve Massachusetts Hall and at the same time to erect a memorial hall or gallery to the late Prof. Cleaveland, by fitting up the 2d and 3d stories as a cabinet for those departments of natural science to which the life of the Prof. was mainly devoted. * The sides of this hall are divided into 2 stories by a light, open gallery, which runs all round it, and which is reached by 2 spiral staircases in diagonally opposite corners of the room. Around the hall, upon the main floor, are 14 alcoves, lighted by 3d story windows. [The first minerals in this collection were all contained in a few little boxes; now one of the best cabinets in the country.] * Of the corner alcoves, on the main floor, one is to be used as a curator's room, while the other will contain manuscripts, &c., of Prof. Cleaveland. The small 1-story projection on the eastern side has been enlarged and contains a fine staircase to the cabinet. The floor is laid in marble tiles. The stairs are finished in hard wood. A memorial stone tablet is set in the wall of the staircase, and bears the inscription :-

In his arrangements with the committee, Mr. Chandler made it a condition that the new Hall shall be called the CLEAVELAND CABINET.

This eminent author and teacher has been long known as one of our most distinguished and useful professors of science. * He was graduated with high honors in Harvard, 1814. Among his distinguished classmates were Hon. Samuel D. Parker and Gen. William H. Sumner. His moral character was pure, his social disposition amiable and genial, and his manners affable, warm, and winning — Boston Advertiser. Prof. Cleaveland was for a long course of years a member of the Congregational church, Brunswick, and a firm believer in divine revelation. The senior editor of this Journal first became acquainted with Prof. Cleaveland in 1814. His reputation for zeal, industry, and learning, and his success in the cultivation and diffusion of science were even then conspicuous. His Mineralogy was constructed upon the plan of the Treatise of Alexandre Brongniart of Paris, and like that admirable work it was lucid in statement, rich in facts, attractive in style. * His natural ardor and activity were very great; they were tempered by an excellent judgment and a chastened taste, rendering his writings models of a pure English style. It is much to be regretted that such a man should have been so much withdrawn from original research by the exhausting toil of incessant college duty. Prof. Cleaveland was well able to have filled a more extended sphere. His talents as a lecturer and a teacher were of a high order. He left a name which will be long honored and revered. Three eminent professors have departed almost together: Dr. Robert Hare in Philadelphia, Prof. Ira Young of Dartmouth, and Prof. Cleaveland. B. REV. JOHN PAYNE<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, D.D. (Marietta college, Marietta, Washington co., O., 1844), the eminent Congregational clergyman, lecturer, and author. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. Spent his childhood and boyhood in his native place. He was baptized when 3 weeks old by Rev. Elijah Parish, D.D. He attended the town school in the winter months and there commenced the study of Latin. He was fitted for college at Dummer Academy, Newbury, Samuel Moody, principal. Joined Congregational church, Byfield, Mar., 1820. Entered Bowdoin college, 1817 (where his bro., Parker<sup>r</sup>, was prof.), grad. 1821, and then studied 6 months in the divinity school, Andover, Mass. He taught the Academy at Wolfboro, Carroll co., N. H., from spring 1822 to 1824, the academy's first two years, on the shore of Lake Winnipiseogee, and with a classmate, one of the first tourists to make the ascension of Mt. Washington. Next he taught the Rochester, N. H., academy 1 year, preached and studied theology with Prof. Thomas Cogswell Upham, D.D., then pastor in R., afterward prof. mental philosophy in Bowdoin. Rev. John P.<sup>r</sup> Cleaveland was approbated to preach by the York co. Association, Me., Sept., 1824. Was invited to become tutor at Bowdoin, but declined. Preached 3 months at Barrington, Stafford co., N. H. Succeeded Hosea Hildreth as prof. of mathematics and natural philosophy in Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., 1825 to 1826, also preaching regularly. Was ordained pastor of the Tabernacle church, Salem, Mass., Feb. 14, 1827.

He was dismissed May 14, 1834. Was installed pastor of First Presbyterian church of Detroit, Mich., June 1, 1834. After a popular ministry of 4 years he was elected president of Marshall, Mich., college, established by the Presbyterians of Mich. He was unwillingly relinquished by his people in Detroit in 1837, and was sent East to raise funds, but it was no time to get money for any purpose, however, President Cleaveland managed to build at Marshall an academy and boarding-house. Taking charge himself of this preparatory department he got together a large school and a class of students in theology. The institution afterward was merged with the University of Mich., Ann Arbor. In 1839 he preached in Ann Arbor 10 months, building up a large Presbyterian society; preached in Marshall to 1843. He succeeded Rev. Lyman Beecher as pastor of Second Presbyterian church of Cincinnati, O., installed Dec. 25, 1843. An unfavorable effect of climate led him to return to N. E. April 10, 1846, installed over the Beneficent Congregational church, a large and wealthy society in Providence, R. I.; a successful ministry to 1852. From 1852 to 1854 was pastor of First Congregational church, Northampton, Mass., once under the care of the great Edwards. Installed Apr., 1855, pastor of the Appleton st. church, Lowell, Mass. During 1857 he was Chaplain to Mass. Senate and also to House of Representatives. Left his church Jan. 15, 1862, having been appointed Jan. 1, 1862, chaplain 30th Mass. Vols. (Col. Nathan A. M. Dudley), Gulf Squadron, went to Ship Island and New Orleans. Mustered in Feb. 20, 1862, discharged May 2, 1862, by the surgeon; camp life was too trying on health. He lived at Lowell to spring 1865; Buzzard's Bay, Mattapoisett, Mass., to Sept., 1867; Billerica, Mass., to spring 1870, and always afterward at Newburyport, where he purchased a home. In person he was about 5 ft. 10½ in. in height, full figure, light complexion, blue eyes, rich brown hair, which blanched early.

NEHEMIAH<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND, LL.D., grad. Bowdoin college, 1813. His autobiography as follows is from History of Bowdoin college by Nehemiah Cleaveland, edited and completed by Alpheus Spring Packard, 1882, p. 171-2 — "When I was eleven years old I was sent to Brunswick. My cousin [Prof. Parker<sup>6</sup> Cleaveland] then the young professor, received me into his family, and directed my studies preparatory for college, which I entered at the immature age of 13. On leaving college I went, at my father's desire, to the school of theology in Andover, Mass., where I stayed during the Junior year. During the years 1814 and 1815 I taught boys and girls in my native town, in Dedham and Wrentham, Mass., and in the academy [under charge of Rev. Reuben Nason] at Gorham, Cumberland co., Me. In 1816 and 1817 I had charge of the Preble st. school in Portland, Me. This was a private boys' school and my predecessors in it were afterwards known as Judge Wright of Cincinnati, O., and Judge Emery of Paris, Oxford co., Me. In the autumn of 1817 I left that pleasant town and its delightful society to become again a denizen of Brunswick. Busy, happy, and not, I trust, unuseful were the three years of my tutorship. [Classical Tutorship in Bowdoin college.] I had begun the study of medicine, and had attended a course of lectures, when the preceptorship of Dummer Academy, Byfield, Mass., was offered me. In 1821 I settled in Byfield, and in that still retreat passed nearly 19 years. [Nehemiah<sup>6</sup> was the orator-of-the-day at centennial celebration of Dummer, Aug. 12, 1863.] Having resigned my post in 1839

Went to Exeter, N. H., as professor of ancient languages in Phillips Academy. From that charming village and admirable institution I was invited to Lowell, Mass., where for more than a year I had charge of the boys' high school. From 1842 to 1848 I kept a very pleasant school [Seminary] for young ladies in Brooklyn, N. Y. Since I left Brooklyn I have lived in the city of N. Y., at the old homestead in Topsfield [to 1866] and in Westport, Conn., my present abode. Twice, also, have I visited Europe." [1851, 1858.] After mentioning some of his publications, Hon. Nehemiah<sup>6</sup> continues: "This brief enumeration, which might be considerably extended, though it amounts to very little, may yet perhaps save me from the suspicion of having been only an idler." The following from a pamphlet memorial entitled:

Nehemiah Cleveland, LL.D., 1799-1877, for private distribution; subscribed A. S. P. — evidently Prof. Packard — 1877, pp. 12. Such is the formal entry in the annual Necrology of a college. But this event which removes from us the last survivor save one of the first 8 classes of this [Bowdoin] College, and one who has been so identified with its history, during nearly its whole life, and has rendered to it valuable service, demands more than a brief newspaper paragraph. * He was fitted for college mainly at Dummer Acad., then under charge of Rev. Isaac Smith, the successor of the noted Master Samuel Moody. * He entered the freshman class, Sept., 1807. * Graduated at age of 17, with the higher honors of his class, having assigned to him an English oration, a second part in a forensic dispute with John Anderson, subsequently M. C. and Gov. of Me. Young Cleveland was one of our best college poets. The writer recalls the favor with which his poem was received at the anniversary of the Peucinian Society, Nov. 22, 1812, especially the skill and grace with which the youthful poet contrived to weave into his verse the name of the river near by Androscooggin, leaving it, as he expressed it, to Indian poets to sing its praises. At one commencement he presented a mathematical thesis, which Prof. Parker Cleveland exhibited to a visitor and commented on the beauty and pains-taking shown in the figure illustrating the problem. "It shows the estimation in which his poetic talent was held, that when he took his master's degree a poem was assigned him and that, by invitation of the general Peucinian Society he delivered a poem at its annual meeting at Commencement, Sept. 17, 1817. * As a teacher and manager of youth Mr. Cleveland was exacting, firm, yet sympathizing, and kind. His whole bearing in the teacher's chair was that of a man to be respected. * Pupils remember him with the highest respect and regard. He excelled in classical training. His own fine taste and severe critical judgment and discrimination in the use of language eminently fitted him to form the taste and inspire with a just appreciation of classic models. * He closed his labors in teaching by giving lectures on English Literature. * Mr. Cleveland was always a busy man. The fruits of his reading and study appeared in public addresses. His Alma Mater gave repeated proof of her estimation. At the Commencement of 1821 he pronounced the annual oration before the Peucinian Society, which was published at the request of the Society. At the semi-centennial celebration of the College 1852, the commemorative discourse was assigned to him, and at the opening of the Cleveland Cabinet, July 10, 1873, in Mass. Hall, the original structure on the college grounds which had been beautifully renovated by the liberality of Peleg W. Chandler, Esq., LL.D., of Boston, he delivered a discourse in which his skill and taste and humor are admirably exemplified. * His commemorative discourses at the centennial celebrations at Dummer Academy and at Topsfield exhibit his happiest moods in such efforts. His chaste, simple, and graceful style, the play of his rich and delicate humor, with his resources of literary culture, conspire to make these productions of his pen interesting and attractive in the highest degree. * Reference might be made to other literary labor, in public addresses, communications to periodicals, all exemplifying his fruitfulness, facility, skill, and taste. * The name of Mr. Cleveland is deservedly held in high esteem in the annals of the College. One of its earliest alumni, for three years an efficient officer of instruction and parietal government, repeatedly contributing of his resources of talent and acquisition to the pleasure and profit of its festal days, and laboring to perpetuate the memorials of its history, he is worthily honored as a true and tried son. To the proofs already mentioned of the regard and confidence he received from his Alma Mater should be added, that she bestowed upon him at the Commencement of 1867 her highest academic honor. Mr. Cleveland excelled as a letter writer. His flowing unstudied style, his skill in narrating incidents of mutual interest, his criticisms on what he was reading or what he had heard, his comments on passing events, and his happy, humorous turns of thoughts and expression, all set forth in a chirography of singular beauty and clearness, made his letters a pleasure and joy. The person and bearing of Mr. Cleveland was something to be noticed. His compact form of medium height, his firm elastic movements to his last days, the scrupulous neatness of his attire, his self-sustained, easy, gentlemanly carriage, as of one accustomed to the best society, his ready powers of conversation, his variety, aptness, and humor in anecdote inexhaustible, and always new, and above all, his steadfast, cordial, yet discriminating friendliness made him a companion that one loved to be with, and to be parted from with regret. Though diligent and unsparing in his devotion to the main object of his life as a teacher, and though a lover of books and of literary labor, Mr. Cleveland was not a recluse. He was through life a man of the world in the sense of being eminently a social man, ever alive to the claims of society, and contributing his full share to its pleasures and attractions. * It may seem almost superfluous to add the testimony which a close acquaintance of more than sixty years can give, without any reserve, to the sterling principle of this life-long friend. No act, no sentiment can the writer recall in the free intercourse of so many years, which he would wish to erase from memory. His was a singularly pure life, though it was to be thus judged more from his known tastes and example than from his professions, for he was peculiarly reticent in respect to feelings and inward experiences. * Mr. Cleaveland lived a happy life, unusually exempt from the ills of the common lot, blessed with a strong physical constitution and an even temperament, scarcely ever the victim of ailment or disease until he was seized with fatal malady ten weeks before he peacefully passed away. His early training, the influences by which he was surrounded through life, and his own inquiries and reflection had made him firm in the faith of the Gospel. With his first wife he united with the Congregational church in Byfield in 1836. After his removal to Brooklyn, N. Y., having a preference for the service of the Episcopal church, he was an attendant at St. Ann's, of which Dr. Cutter was rector, and subsequently at Christ Church under Dr. Stone, although he never withdrew from his connection with the Byfield church. Always reserved regarding his religious sentiments and experiences, yet his life at home and abroad bore witness to his steadfast regard for Christian principle. He soon anticipated what must be the event of his illness, and gave assurance to his family and friends that he had laid hold of the hope that "maketh not ashamed." A. S. P.

Nehemiah<sup>6</sup> Cleaveland made preliminary researches in 1842 for the Cleveland Genealogy (later increased and returned by Rev. Oliver Alden Taylor), and afterward added to the compilations by corresponding, &c., and will be pleasantly remembered by those who sent him their family records; the author of a number of elegantly illustrated, and other works; see BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV.

His funeral took place Apr. 20, 1877, at Westport; he is buried in Greenwood cemetery, of which he was the historian. See: Dummer Academy improvements, 1837; Essex Ins. Col., XI: 84; N. E. His. Gen. Reg., XVIII: 110; Allen, 237.

Mrs. MARY<sup>c</sup> (CLEAVELAND) TAYLOR resided, the evening of life, in Topsfield, beloved and honored.

Rev. Oliver Alden Taylor, clergyman and author. The following is from Memoir of the Rev. Oliver Alden Taylor of Manchester, Mass., with a Portrait. By Rev. Timothy Alden Taylor [his brother], 1854, 8<sup>o</sup>, pp. 568:

When 3 months of age his parents rem. from Yarmouth to Ashfield, dwelt 2 years, and then took up their residence in Hawley. He was the eldest of 11 ch. At an early age Oliver exhibited a thirst for knowledge. His father took him into the fields and instructed him in agriculture, but as soon as the child returned from work he would seize a book before seating himself. He often borrowed books of neighbors. When 13 years old his zeal for learning became so intense that he would sit up very late at night reading by the blaze on the hearth, and he often arose from his bed and studied by the pale beams of the moon. He described these efforts: "I possessed a library which numbered 200 books, many received from my uncle, T. Alden. I made a desk for my books, and to it I resorted whenever I came from the field. My attention was chiefly directed to music and mathematics, also studied Turner's Arts and History, and wrote poetry. I began to study about 1813." It became necessary for him to go out of his own school district one winter to find a teacher capable of aiding him in arithmetic. When quite young he turned into verse the most pathetic parts of the Bible. His first attempt was David's elegy on Saul and Jonathan, and in a few years the book of Lamentations had thus passed under his pen. From Feb., 1816, he kept a journal. This, with the letters appearing in his memoir, furnish a connected view of his life. After making a public profession of religion his account of himself proceeds: "I now have a desire to be a minister of the gospel, and to do what shall be in my power for the good of mankind. Not because of supposed worthiness in me, but on account of the goodness of Jesus." Having completed his 17th year, Oliver felt that some direct and efficient steps must be immediately taken toward obtaining an education. His father permitted him to be absent during winter 1818-19, and he attended both an evening singing school and a common day school, also working for his board. He was afterward received into the family of Rev. Jonathan Grout, and, under his tuition studied about 7 weeks. Oliver details his difficulties in commencing his studies until he became, Dec., 1819, a member of Sanderson's Academy, Ashfield, where his studies were interrupted by the death of his father. He remained till Apr., his board and tuition were gratuitous. In Apr. he went to Williams coll. and was examined by the Faculty, that he might become a beneficiary of the American Education Soc. Rev. Timothy Alden, Jr., his eldest maternal uncle, had established a college in Meadville, Pa., of which he was president. He invited his nephew to become a student there. No railroad existed in that direction in those early days, and the only alternative was to make the journey of 550 miles on foot. There was an interesting scene in the home circle the evening before he started, Apr. 20, 1820. He reached Meadville in 3 weeks, expending about half his small capital. He entered the college May, 1820. The curriculum did not offer, in those early days, the advantages essential to his highest success. One of the lessons Pres. Alden imparted to his pupil was to seek a broad scholarship, master as many languages as possible, and Oliver so shaped his studies as in the end to become a careful French, German, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew scholar. Reluctantly, but for better opportunities, he took up his connection with Alleghany coll. Apr. 30, 1822, and ent. Union coll., Schenectady, May 16, 1822, becoming a member of the class about to enter the Sophomore year. In Dec., 1822, he visited his home, and tender indeed was the reunion of parent and child, family and friends. His untiring assiduity while in college is evinced in several ways. He was elected to membership in the Phi Beta Kappa Society at the close of the Junior year. He ever prized his connection with this society, and attended its anniversary at Harvard. Just before graduation he completed a translation from the French of a geometrical work of Biot, making 450 8<sup>o</sup> pages, for Prof. Potter of the College Faculty, who remunerated him liberally. He stood high on the Roll of Honor of his class. His exercise on Commencement Day was a poem; graduated July 28, 1825. He ent. Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass., Sept., 1825. In Oct., 1825, he visited Boston, and there began with great zeal to trace his Taylor ancestors. This employed his attention for years, until he learned the main facts relative to their first settlement in America. The Aldens had been already traced by his uncle, Timothy Alden. He was city missionary of Boston May 2, June 12, 1827. Was licensed to preach by the Presbytery Apr. 27, 1828. Graduated Andover Sept. 23, 1828. Preached in Topsfield, Mass., to supply the pulpit and, Nov. 13, 1829, was called to settle there, but declined. Generally on the Sabbath he preached in the vicinity of Andover. For several years he was occupied chiefly in literary pursuits. Was ord. evangelist at Newburyport Nov. 14, 1830, by the Londonderry Presbytery, and preached in Greenfield, Hatfield, Danvers, &c. Was installed pastor of the Congregational Church Manchester Sept. 18, 1830. From 1831 he gave attention to family history, and Nov. 23, 1850, sent Nehemiah Cleaveland his accumulations of Cleaveland Genealogy, gathered from town and printed records, and persons. He was a corresponding member of the New Eng. His. Gen. Soc., elected Sept. 23, 1847, whose Memorial Biographies, 1737, contain a sketch of his life; elected Oct. 23, 1851, at New Haven, Conn., member of the American Oriental Soc.

The library of Rev. O. A. Taylor numbered 2,562 volumes, left by him to Union coll., Amherst coll., and his three brothers. The pastorate in Manchester was closed by the death of the pastor.

Rev. O. A. Taylor was interred in the central part of the new cemetery. Individual friends have erected a free stone monument at his grave, with the inscription: "He was a man of clear intellect, of deep and various learning, of rare humility, candor, and kindness; a laborious Student, an able Preacher, a devoted Pastor; he was in every relation faithful, and lived as one 'who must give account.' Torn, while yet in his full strength, from the warm affections of wife, kindred and flock, he calmly resigned them all and fell asleep in Jesus."

Many letters of condolence were received by his widow, and obituaries appeared in the Boston Daily Traveller and other newspapers, in Bibliotheca Sacra, Oct., 1854. New Englander, Nov., 1853 — an extended review of his memoir, by Rev. JOHN<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND lawyer and law author. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. Grad. Bowdoin college, Brunswick, Me., 1813. His. Bowdoin College, by Cleveland and Packard, 336: — JOHN CLEVELAND was fitted at Dummer Academy. In the autumn of 1826 he took charge of the academy, North Andover, Essex county, Mass., but soon after entered the office of Hon. Hobart Clark in Andover (South). Having completed the course of law study under Elijah (afterwards Judge) Paine of New York, he was admitted to the bar in that city in 1831. His first law partner was William W. Campbell, afterwards member of Congress and judge of the Superior Court, city of New York, and at this time judge of the Supreme Court of the State of N. Y. John Cleaveland formed a second partnership in business with George N. Titus, Esq., which lasted several years. The amount of legal business transacted by this firm was very great. In 1836 he was assistant alderman for the Third ward, a position at that time which it was no discredit to hold.

He, in addition to other aid, gave the noble bell which from that time has summoned the congregation to worship, and which, alas! tolled at the funeral obsequies of his brother. The fondness of the two brothers for each other was very great.

Rev. ELISHA LORD<sup>6</sup> CLEAVELAND, D.D. (Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Washington co., Pa.), the distinguished Congregational clergyman and author. See BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV. Grad. Bowdoin college 1829, Andover Theological Seminary 1832, from Jan., 1833, attended lectures at Yale Theol. Sem. Resided in New Haven afterward.

Memorial of Elisha Lord Cleaveland, 1866, pp. 70 — Discourse delivered Feb. 10, 1866, at the funeral, by Rev. Leonard Bacon, D.D. * He grew up in a thoroughly Christian household, the mother with her good sense and goodness, the father with his sedate dignity. * He is remembered as an exceedingly amiable boy. Until 16 years old he lived at home, working on the farm and attending the common school. He then prepared for college at Dummer Academy. When he had reached his 17th year he entered Bowdoin college. * While in the last year of his college course he became deeply interested in religious things, and to the great joy of his parents he chose the ministry of the gospel as the work of his life. Soon afterwards he made profession of his personal faith and hope in Christ, and was received to communion in the church in which his parents had consecrated him to God. * From college he went to Andover Theological Seminary. There he passed through the 3 years' course of study with the approbation of his teachers and the esteem and affection of his fellow-students. Having been duly commended to the churches as a preacher of the gospel he began to try his powers in the pulpit. His earliest efforts attracted more than ordinary attention, and gave promise of eminence. Yet he felt the need of a more thorough acquaintance with the science of theology. About 6 months after completing his course at Andover, he came to New Haven, expecting to spend the year under the teaching of Rev. Nathaniel William Taylor, D.D., Dwight prof. of didactic theol. in Yale. When he arrived Jan., 1833, the pastoral office in the Third Congregational Church had recently been made vacant by the dismissal of its first pastor, Rev. Charles A. Boardman. It was so ordered in the Divine Providence that on the second Sabbath in Jan. after his arrival he supplied the vacant pulpit. The congregation to which he preached, probably with no thought of being a candidate, saw immediately the promise that was in him. * The church invited him to the pastoral office, he accepted, was ordained July 24, 1831. It was my lot to give the right hand of fellowship. * The Third Church was formed Sept. 2, from the First Church, it worshipped 3 years in the Orange st. lecture room. * Dr. Taylor preached to the little congregation those great sermons which had made him one of the most renowned of living preachers. In 1829 the church occupied the edifice on Chapel st. * soon placed itself under the pastoral care of Mr. Boardman, whose short ministry here was eminently successful. * Early in Mr. Cleveland's ministry the tendencies toward division began to be manifest. * His religious memories of the great struggle in Eastern Mass. against a false liberality which was bringing in a system of unbelief in the place of the old orthodoxy. He was brought into sympathy with those who thought they saw in the Theological Department of our University the same process going forward which had just been arrested in Mass. * The connection of the Third Church, through its pastor, with the opposition to what was called "New Haven theology" accelerated the process of disintegration. * The society weakened by withdrawals unable to pay interest on the debt contracted in building its house of worship, surrendered the property. A new church was formed to occupy that edifice, and the Third Church and Society went forth to find another place of worship. * The young pastor had placed himself conscientiously in opposition to men and to an institution held in the highest honor here, and whose influence might have been thought irresistible. Yet there remained of the congregation a little flock who were willing to share with him the disadvantages of that position. It was their love to their pastor * that bound them to him. * The new Orange st. Chapel was offered them by the First Society. There they worshipped 7 years. * At the end of 3 years the church occupied a new house of worship in Court st. * They grew by accessions from other congregations, and by the addition of strangers attracted by the conspicuous ability of the pastor, but also as God's providence enlarged their pecuniary ability by the growing wealth of individuals among them. At last the time had come for another effort. The building of this stately temple, in this commanding position, the constant increase of the congregation, the great spiritual blessing of 1838, and within these few months past, the removal of the last incumbrance of debt from the edifice, finished the work which will stand, we trust, for ages the speaking memorial of his ministry. So long as these massive walls shall stand and the spire point heavenward. * It would be an injustice to his memory if I should fail to say something of what he has done as a Christian patriot for his country. * When the first battle had been fought at Charleston his voice was heard more impressive than any other in the great assembly of our citizens. * In the autumn of 1864 the opportunity of passing a few months in foreign travel was unexpectedly offered. * At Paris in an assembly of Protestant pastors he had the privilege of speaking * what the conflict was from which the nation was then emerging into victory. * At London in the English Congregational union, May, 1865, * of telling them as the representative of American Congregationalism what our position had been in all the long conflict. * His last sermon was preached on the same day with the last sermon of the beloved Dr. Dutton, Jan. 21, 1866. * Memorial of Rev. Elisha Lord Cleveland, D.D., a discourse preached to his beloved people on the Lord's day, Mar. 4, 1866, by Lyman H. Atwater, D.D., of Princeton, N. J.—In performing the melancholy yet grateful duty which you have laid upon me, of setting forth the character and services of your late revered and beloved pastor. * His faith and doctrine. His attitude of mind in regard to theology, as on other subjects, was, in every good sense of these terms, both conservative and progressive. But he could not sympathize with the lovers of change and innovation for their own sake. Neither did he cleave to existing hereditary principles simply because they were such. Dr. Cleveland was no rationalist. That is to say, he held that the declarations of the Word of God have an authority paramount to any judgments of our short-sighted and sin-blinded intellects that may militate against them. Dr. Cleveland's intellectual powers, as you well know, were of a very high order. And yet it was not so much any single faculty as the unusual number, variety, symmetrical blending, and remarkable balance of his gifts, that constituted his peculiar strength and made him an extraordinary man. His intellect was vigorous, profound, and comprehensive, less remarkable for unusual quickness than for its steadiness and persistency of application, and the clearness, depth, and justness of the view obtained by such application. Few minds acquire a more complete mastery of the subjects they study than did his. He was unwilling to write or speak upon matters which he did not well understand. This was one great secret of the excellence of his productions. Hence Dr. Cleveland was a student while an active executive man in his own parish. His discourses were not shallow, flashy, repetitious, or commonplace, but solid, fresh, instructive, and interesting. Others might boast of what they could achieve by the power of genius without study; he was thankful if he had the genius to interest and profit his hearers by means of study. * These solid powers of mind were brightened by a strong and almost poetic imagination, which clothed the truths which he set forth with beauty and force often with magnificence of illustration. * His exuberant imaginative powers were under control of a taste naturally fine, and cultivated to a classic correctness and delicacy, which controlled all the manifestations of his inner and outer being. In aid of these inward resources and endowments for high oratory and eloquence, came all that richness, pathos, and melody of voice so familiar to you, and with which in its milder outbursts, you and others have been so often electrified. There was his broad yet not disproportionate frame; his face of singular beauty and strength; his deepest eye, instinct with intelligence, at times almost hidden under his massive, overhanging brow, so often and not unjustly likened to Daniel Webster's; the whole so apt to be lighted up by that smile which loved to play upon his lips, and which, if less than so rapid, often seemed more than human. * Few preachers have been oftener requested to publish or repeat their sermons, and fewer still have better borne the test of such a trial. In these discourses we find some of the most eloquent pleas of our time in behalf of public morals and in reprobation of popular vices; in support of popular evangelism and benevolent foreign missions; in eulogy of departed great and good; in burning appeals for the poor; and in trumpet-toned calls upon the people to rally to the support of the Government, including those delivered in France and Great Britain. The late Rufus Choate's testimony is still extant, in his own handwriting, of that high estimate he formed of Dr. Cleveland as a preacher, from hearing him a few times in the Essex st. church, Boston.

Mr. Choate sent him a valuable copy of the first edition of Lightfoot's works, accompanied by a note in which he speaks of it "as an expression of the gratitude and admiration and most affectionate interest which your visit and ministrations have inspired." The sketch of Dr. Cleveland's powers would also be imperfect without reference to his executive and administrative ability. * His whole course in the management of the affairs of this church through all its vicissitudes, in the erection of its edifices of worship, and filling them with attached and devoted parishioners; to his great efficiency as a member [from 1841-2] of the Board of Trustees of the Theological Institute of Conn. [at E. Windsor incorp. May, 1834]. * Humility was a strong trait of his character. He so underrated his powers in early life that he shrunk from every public effort. It was long, in his course at Andover, before he could be persuaded to take his turn in delivering a sermon before the students. When it was over he was assured that it was of superior merit, and regarded as indicating great promise for the future. This gave him courage to overcome his self-distrust, and meet without any paralyzing despondency future calls upon him.

Judge ELIJAH<sup>6</sup> CLEAVELAND came to Waterford 1800, where, when 7 years old, he attended school kept in a barn by a lady teacher. Here he pursued his studies 3 months of each summer and winter for 5 years, assisting his father on the farm, and making and selling, on his own account, birch brooms and baskets. His father bought for him some shoemaker's tools, and he mended the shoes of the family, even manufacturing some rude shoes. When aged 15, engaged with Mr. Rowell of Littleboro, N. H., to work in his shop 3 months each autumn for 2 years learning the trade. In March, before becoming of age, he bought the 3 months of his time from his father. May 15, 1816, he settled at Passumpsic, Barnet tp., Caledonia co., Vt., commenced his trade under favorable auspices, adding manufacture of harness, trunks, weaver's rods, and shoe blacking, continuing to Dec., 1824. He commenced business in Coventry Feb., 1825, in connection with Levi P. Parks of Passum., and John and Luther Clark of St. Johnsbury, Caledonia co., Vt., purchasing the stock and goods of Calvin and Daniel W. Harmon. By increasing the variety, taking barter, and reducing price, he built up a heavy business, thus laying the foundation for his future prosperity. John Clark d. Aug., 1837, and Elijah<sup>6</sup> continued alone to Apr., 1846, then admitted as a partner William H. Baxter. He relinquished mercantile business May, 1850. During this period Elijah<sup>6</sup> retained his early love for mechanism. He built a grist mill, ashery, began to make pearl-ash Dec., 1825, potato-starch factory 1836, began manufacturing, Nov. 27, 1837, and cultivated his farm of 175 acres. Bought a saw-mill. His operations gave a new impetus to industry. The Bank of Orleans, Irasburg, Vt., was chartered 1832, Elijah<sup>6</sup> Cleveland, one of the commissioners, since continuously a director, and from Jan., 1848, its Pres. He was an early friend and supporter of railroads in Vt. The transportation of goods from Boston by horses was a drawback, and when the Conn. & Passumpsic R. R. was projected he freely gave time and money for its prosecution, doing more than any one to extend road to Canada line; was a large stockholder, and from 1849 a director, from 1835 its secretary. In politics a Republican; was town clerk and treas. 1827-34; selectman 1836, '56, P. M. 1833-7; repres. 1839-41, '46; first Assist. Judge of Orleans co. court 1844-6; was elected a Presidential Elector 16th election, 1849 (being one of the 5 Clevelands who have served in the Electoral college — the others were: Gov. Chauncey Fitch<sup>6</sup> Cleveland +1717, Hon. Francis<sup>7</sup> Cleveland +3212, Hon. Francis Landon<sup>7</sup> Cleveland +3256, Hon. Robert<sup>1</sup> Cleveland +10013), for 4th Vt. congressional dist., voting for Taylor and Fillmore. For Pres.: Zachary Taylor received 163 votes, Lewis Cass 127 votes. For Vice.-Pres.: Millard Fillmore received 163 votes, William Orlando Butler 127 votes. Was member Constitutional Convention fr. Coventry 1857, senator 1862-3. Was interested in every improvement of Coventry, was agt. for the town for prosecuting, &c. Elected, Dec., 1850, first pres. Coventry Academy, incorporated fall 1858. He was noted for liberality to worthy objects. He superintended the building of the Cong. church 1830, and when the bell was hung, 1847, gave a clock, which for many years was the only one in Orleans co. In 1810 he joined the Freemasons, and became master of a lodge and high priest of a Royal Arch Chapter. In these varied occupations he was ever distinguished for prudence, far-seeing financial skill, and faithful devotion to every enterprise. He was indeed "a man thoroughly manly." *Portraits of Eminent Americans, by John Livingston of the N. Mrs. OLIVE<sup>6</sup> (CLEAVELAND) CLARKE, the centenarian, resided in Williamsburg to 1806, Northampton to 1808, Williamsburg ag. to 1809, West Chesterfield, Hampshire co., Mass., to June 8, 1882, and at Springfield afterward. In 1881 it became our great pleasure to put in communication with each other the 3, then the eldest members of the Cleveland family, viz.: Olive<sup>6</sup>, Mrs. Susan<sup>6</sup> (Cleveland) Pratt + 1112 of Geneva, N. Y., and Mr. Oren<sup>6</sup> Cleveland + 1472 of Cleveland, O., and a very interesting and affectionate correspondence ensued.

Olive<sup>6</sup> and Richard Clarke appropriately celebrated their golden wedding May 25, 1859, at Chesterfield; the occasion was described in Hampshire Gazette 1859. An address was made by Rev. Edward<sup>7</sup> Clarke; a hymn prepared by Miss Delia Amanda<sup>7</sup> Strong was sung. There they also commemorated the 60th anniversary May 25, 1869, on which occasion Mr. John Clarke, brother of Richard, presented her two $5 gold pieces of the first U. S. coinage. On Sept. 26, 1875, at West Chesterfield, she celebrated her 90th birthday and received a call from William Cullen Bryant and daughter, who presented her a handsome Shetland shawl. She observed her 95th birthday, Sept. 26, 1880, at Chesterfield. She sent to the compilers a specimen of her embroidery, beautifully done May, 1881, without spectacles, and writes: "My health is good and I enjoy life. I am looking forward to another world where everything will be perfect."

Daily Union, Springfield, Sept. 26, 1885, gives an account of her centennial birthday celebration.

This celebration graphically described in Mrs. Elizabeth<sup>7</sup> (Edwards) Gifford's Our Patronymics 14, and was noticed by the press generally. Author — see BIBLIOGRAPHY, CHAP. IV.

Hampshire Gazette, Northampton, 1886, contains her portrait and biographical sketch. Her obituary in Springfield Daily Republican Feb. 17, 1887; Republican Watchman, Greenport, N. Y., Feb. 26, 1887, by N. H. C., and her decease noticed in the papers.

Richard Clarke owned and operated an excellent farm. He was widely known and greatly esteemed.

ER<sup>6</sup> CLEVELAND had moderate opportunities for education. After 1815 went to West Hector with Elder James Reynolds, a faithful Baptist minister, and found a home with Richard Ely, a prominent man, farmer, and public house keeper on the Lake road 1 mile S. of Peach Orchard. Er<sup>6</sup> spent summer of 1820 in the West, going down Ohio river on rafts shipped by James Reynolds from Olean; visited Cincinnati and Indiana. He remained with Ely to spring of 1822, when he removed to "Burnt Hill," Hector, and bought of Moses Burgess, original settler, 95 acres, on which was a log house. Lived there to spring of 1843, bought and rem. to a 211-acre farm at Lodi, remaining to 1866, sold, and bought and rem. to 140 acres at Sheldrake, N. Y., on which he was living 1871. Er<sup>6</sup> taught in common schools during winters in his early life. He was an ardent anti-Mason, a zealous Whig, and was a thorough and efficient Republican from the party's organization. A steadfast and liberal member of the Methodist church. By industry he gained a fair competency.

Rev. Voltaire<sup>6</sup> Spalding, a clergyman in the Protestant Episcopal church. Concerning his life he wrote the compilers :

"I came from Niagara co., N. Y., 1820, to Detroit, then a village of 1,500 people, where I lived to 1828. Engaged in a great variety of secular pursuits to 1830, when I was persuaded to give them all up and take upon me Christ's easy yoke and light burden in His ministry. I was made a deacon by Rt. Rev. Samuel Allen McCoskry, Bish. of Mich., in St. Peter's church, Tecumseh, May 8, 1831, and was sent as a missionary to break up a new field at Paw Paw, Mich., where I remained 1½ years. I was ordained a priest at Nashota, Waukesha co., Wis., Aug. 11, 1832, by Rt. Rev. Jackson Kemper, Bishop of Mo. and Ind. (my own bishop being absent), with concurrence of 8 presbyters, who were present, several of whom continued my lifelong fast friends, especially Roosevelt Johnson, D.D., and George P. Schetky, D.D. My next field, a mission to Saginaw co., then including Bay co., my residence Saginaw City, where I held services in an upper room of a schoolhouse, until I procured a commodious church, to be built spring of 1853. During that 5 years I had succeeded in establishing churches in 2 new fields, viz.: East Saginaw, Saginaw co., and Lower Saginaw, now Bay City, Bay co., Mich., both of which have proven to be strong permanent plantations of the gospel. Was called to Trinity Church, Aurora, Ill., and was rector May 16, 1858, to Aug. 1, 1860, when I was called to St. Peter's church, Dansville, N. Y.; resigned this parish Apr. 6, 1863. My next parochial was another fallow field, where the church's voice had never been heard, viz.: Three Rivers, where I organized Trinity Church, and was rector Oct. 26, 1863, to Apr. 22, 1866. My next parish was St. James, Dexter, Mich., an old plantation which I was invited to cultivate Nov. 24, 1866, and remained to Feb. 25, 1872, when I organized Christ Church, St. Joseph, Berrien co., Mich., and served it until Dec. 31, 1876. I returned to Three Rivers, ready to officiate, and to spend my remaining days among my old parishioners."

The funeral services were in Trinity Church, Three Rivers. Rt. Rev. George de Normandie Gillespie, D.D., Bishop of Western Mich., delivered the address.

The Church Helper, Hastings, Mich., Sept., 1886, and The Churchman, N. Y., Sept. 11, 1886, contained appropriate obituaries.

Joel<sup>6</sup> Keyes resided at Westford and Tyngsborough to 1810, Dunstable afterward. Here he purchased a fine farm.

Keyes Genealogy, 151 — He was of commanding personal appearance, 6 feet in height; had a strong, well-rounded character, constituting him one on whom others felt they could rely. In his bearing there was an unassuming dignity that impressed even strangers; possessed clear judgment and marked intelligence, of spotless integrity. To abide in justice and righteousness was natural to him, for these elements lay at the foundation of his character. A vein of quiet but effective humor sprung from his heart, and distilled a peculiar charm over his conversation. His Dunstable farm was greatly improved under his cultivation. Few rural homes are more attractive in their situation and surroundings. Under his elms the aged owner would often sit reading, or looking upon the peaceful fields. Here, also, in thought, he often looked out upon the eternal scenes that lay around, hid from mortal eyes.

For 30 years he was actively engaged in useful work, widely known. Independent in views, manly in tone. In person, above medium height, light figure, ruddy complexion, dark hair, Roman nose, broad, high forehead, powerful voice. He left a handsome estate, honestly earned by his own labors. He was P. He never held town office, but served on most of the important committees, frequently was Moderator at town meetings, and presided at the Bi-Centennial celebration, 1835. He was Master of Concord Masonic Lodge, and an officer of the Grand Lodge of Mass. A director from the beginning in the Concord Bank, Savings Institution, and Middlesex Insurance Co., and was President of the last when he died.—Keyes Gen., 154-6.
